Around the U.S.

Les Angeles, Calif.—(I.P.)—Occidental College has completed "a milestone year of academic excellence" match by the greatest number of donors in the 73-year history of the College. President Arthur G. Coons outlined the vigorous progress of Occodental in his newly-published annual President's Report to the Trustees for the academic year 1958-59.

This cost of educating each Occidental student was $451 per student more than tuition and fees charged. This $451 aditional cost per student was met through expanding gifts and endowment income. Gifts of $1,338,000 were contributed by 249 corporations, foundations, trusts, estates and other organizations, plus some 3,700 individual donors, by fare the largest number in Occidental history. Endowment has now reached $6,700,000, which has grown four times $1,600,000 in 1950.

Madison, Wis.- (I.P.)—Approved this year by the Univesity of Wisconsin School of Education is a program known as the "block plan" designed to answer teacher candidate charges of "too much time behind the desk, not enough time in front of it." Students in several academic areas are now enrolled in the "block plan," and all teaching fields are expected to be included in the program by 1961.

Golden, Colo.—(I.P.)—What effect does publicity in national magazines and newspapers have on college enrollment? In the opinion of H. Dean Burdick, director of admissions as Colorado School of Mines, the national publicity has a great effect. A decline in engineering enrollment across the country is one of these efects.

Much of the news today stresses the need for scientists. But this word "scientist" as the press uses it is a catch-all for all technical personnel including the engineer. This publicity has caused an increase in college enrollment in the field of pure science.

Ithaca, N.Y.—(I.P.)—About 70% of the students who ordinarily would flunder on academic rocks and shoals are being rescued at Cornell University, it was revealed here recently by Prof. Blanchard L. Richeout, head of the University's Division of Unclassified Students.

Professor Rideout said that 646 students have been permitted to enter the unclassified division in its 15 semesters (7½ years) of operation. Started as an experiment in the spring of 1952 under his direction, it has become a fixture in the University's academic structure because it has been eliminating a tremendous loss in money, time and morale to the University, students' parents and the students themselves.

Sarasota Springs, N.Y.—(I.P.)—A recently change in the exam period at Skidmore College, initiated by the Student Curriculum Committee, eliminated the "days of review" and arranged eams so that no student had two tests in one day. This change was first discussed in the Student Curriculum Committee, then with Faculty Curriculum Committee, and was finally approved by the Registrar.

Such work will specialize in a particular interest area and be developed under close faculty supervision. Each senior major is required to pass a written and oral comprehensive examination prepared and presented by the staff. Honors sociology students may submit a thesis in lieu of the comprehensive examination.

Austin, Texas—(I.P.)—A student's college academic record counts for some 60 per cent in University of Texas medical schools' evaluation of his application for admission. That information appears in a new leaflet, "Selection of Students for Admission to Medical Schools, The University of Texas," prepared to answer kuestions on admission policies.

Counting for about 10 per cent of the final evaluation is the student's score on the Medical College Admission Test. Other measurer employed to select medical students are letters of appraisal plus personal interviews and supplementary tests at the medical campuses.

Carol Streets and Bill Axline suggested the advisability of having an intercollegiate news service exchange by mail,

Sandy Walberg and the rest of the Campsu Organizations delegates believed that junior colleges should be listed apart from junior and senior high schools in teh California Education Code due to the differences of problems at the jaysce level.

The workshop for Assemblies. Rallies and Forums, attended by Dorene Nunley, suggested that each service club on campus be responsible to encourage support and enthusiasm of one spring sport to stimulate all-school interest.

Communications

The need for better inter-collegiate communications regarding success of dances, assemblies, etc., was the chief problem discussed by Judy Zittel and the others attending the Social Activities workshop.

Bill Pope was one of the many discussing Elections. Their basic ideas were having ballots with the picture of each candidate for easy identification and allowing students who have attended for more than four semesters to be allowed to participate in student government.

Cheating Discussed

Campus Problems mainly talked about cheating on campus. Some suggestions was having a file of past tests given by all the teachers available in the school rbliayr. The also favored a student-faculty organization to deal with student problems and those between the administration and student government. Tom Ortiz attended this workshop.

Polly Olivas represented AWS. This group's main recommendation was that each AWS in the SCJCSGA send a list of successful AWS assemblies to the AWS cabinet of member schools.

Kathie Lewis attended a new workshop for student body Secretaries. They talked about ways of taking minutes, etc. Their suitable ideas were to have a method of orientating incoming secretaries, using motion forms to speed up minute taking and possibly place shorthand and typing requirements on candidates.

Just A Short Note

Took a couple days of last week and went up to Squaw Valley for the Winter Olympics and came away feeling real good. I was tremendously impressed with the way the games came off-the handling of the crowds, the athletes, the running of the events all were in true championship form and I feel the Winter Olympic people should be comended for a fine job wel ldone. My strongest impresion however was the astonishing display of young people from around the world-meeting here in our Nation-not around a conference table-and better still not on a battle field, but on a field of competitive sport. Fortunately, I was able to meet many many of the competitors. I was surprised at the number of students who were competing.

I got to comparing the students from Japan, Italy, Great Britain, and from the Iron Curtain Countries with many of the students whom I meet in my junkets onto the campuses here in Southern California. I am sure that any of them could step off the campus of Waseda or Kieo University in Tokyo - or from the Sorbonne in Paris onto UCLA - LA State or Cerritos and be right at home. They share the same zest for fun and living - the same ambitions the same keen interests in good music - art - movies - TV hamburgers and coke that we do. All read the American press avidly. The American way of life and particularly the freedom of America's young adults impress them. I did not see one single instance of poor sportsmanship - and I admire the sincere feeling of pride shared by teammates as one of heir club emerged triumphant - the brave smiles and unashamed tear of a loser - and the hearty congratulations proffered onto the victors from the conquered.

I suddenly thought that probably some soul searching might be in order before we take many steps further in the athletic deemphasis program now underway in many of our colleges and universities. True - we must step up our output of scientists - mathematics, etc., must play a big part of our college curricula - but somehow, I can't help but think that if we developed more teams like the American Hockey team, which boasted a roster made up largely of college students and who brought our Nation one of the hardest won Gold Medals in Olympic history - Atomic talks - Disarmament Conferences - border disputes and all these pressing issues confronting us might diminish in importance - for surely if twenty-six finely trained athletes - armed with "lethal" weapons like hockey sticks can go after one another like our guys and the USSR team did for two hours without the slightest blemish of one single scrap perhaps a lot of the answers might lie in friendly competition - rather than the needless bloodshed of wars.

Stumbling Along In Sports

By Pat Stewart

(Pat Stewart's column appears on page two this week, due to the larger quantity of sports news this week.)

Where are the sophomores from this years Falcon cage squad going? Bill Bogdanoff and his sleepy sidekick, Jerry Dotson, are ticketed for stardom under ol' Uncle Sam and the United States Army. Tiger Dotson wants to be an MP. Bogie doesn't wanna be nothin.'

Scott Iverson will probably choose to continue his diving thirst for knowledge at either Brigham Young, Arizona, Fresno State or the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Before his debate in the pro ranks, Dick Roche will probably stop off on the way at either San Diego State, or Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo. Roche denies the rumor that has it that he plans to work his way through school by hiring himself out as a medicine ball for the weight teams to work out with. Just ain't true, says he. "There's just no future in such a plan."

Tony Rosales says it's "Tijuana Tech or Bust." I wouldn't be surprised if he did bust either. Actually, Tony's going start concentrating on geting rich, and leave his sports career in his yesteryear.

Keith Lindley will be back at "birdland" trying to raise his 0.9 grade average which is frowned upon by universities.

Allan Roman who played basketball the first semester will likewise be back for grade raising and baseball. Meanwhile, Del Greco earns a splendid living in the Artesia Pool Hall. "A little snooker anyone?"

Al Walwork another sophomore player, who is going to Whittier next year to play football, likes to tell of one of his favorite sports from his homeland of Hawaii. Seems like Al and some of the other natives like to go octopus hunting, for they are fond indeed of octopus. The fellows would look for the creatures in among the rocks of shallow water, and when one was found it would be pulled up quickly by the bady and one of its eyes would be bitten out, killing it. Great fun, Octopi eye biting, testifies Al. He further explains that the eye must be bitten out quickly, or else the octopus can get hold of one of your eyes or ears with his suctioned tentacles and can actually pull the eye or eardrum out. Therefore, quick action is needed on the projecting octopus eye.

Bob Lyons, and old man of 25 or thereabouts, who is being lured out for track to throw the discus, quips, "What if I'd have started when I was 18?" After watching one of Bob's 100-foot throws you know the answer to his question, but don't tell him or he may become frustrated. Nothing worse than a 25 year old maladjustment case who dreams of a gold medal in the coming olympics.

29th Semi Annual CJCSGA To Be Held In San Diego

By Kathie Lewis

A delegation from Cerritos College will attend the 29th Semi-Annual California Junior College Student Government Association conference scheduled to be held in San Diego at the Hotel del Coronado on March 31, April 1 and 2.

More than 350 students delegates from the 68 members colleges are expected to attend this memorable event.

The purpose of the three-day meeting is to consider, on the state level, problems common to all member schools as well as those problems peculiar to individual colleges. This conference is also instrumental in training students for further work in the fields of government and business.

Experience

Ten Cerritos student leaders got a taste of conference problems by attending the bi-annual conference of the Southern California Junior College Student Government Association held last Saturday at Chaffey College.

Each delegate atended a workshop pertaining to his particluar office and discussed problems pertaining to his own school.

Workshops Attended

Barry Adams and other members of the Intercollegiate Athletics workshop discussed the idea of declaring a student on scholastic porbation as also being athletically inelligible. They also expressed the wish to keep free districts from having recruiting limitations placed on them.

Statehood, Technical Aid Big to Latin Americans

Statehood for Puerto Rico? An accelerated technical aid program for South America? These are ideas voiced by two young Latin Americans in answer to the question of improvement of the United States-Latin American relations.

Maria Henriquez, Ecuadorianborn Cerritos student, voiced the opinion that technical aid is more important than financial aid to the average South American. Henriguez, who has lived in the United States for four years, visited her native country over the Christmas holidays, and found that the average citizen understands the teacher or farm worker better than the dollars he cannot see.

Friendly to Us
The petite brunette asserted that President Eisenhower should have included Ecuador in his South American itinerary. She firmly believes that the majority of her countrymen like Americans in general, and President Eisenhower as an individual, Ecuador, she was quick to add, has always been friendly to North American visitors. She cited the example of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's tour of South America some fourteen years ago, when Ecuador gave the president his warmest welcome.

Charles White, who has lived all but five years of his life in San Juan, Puerto Rico, believes that there is a strong movement in Puerto to make the island territory the 51st state. White is convinced that only a comparatively small group of radicals advocate complete in-dependence from the United States, although he is also convinced that the island would be able to maintain an independent economy through an ambitious program of international com-

Student Objectors

Both Henriguez and White agree that the recent Eisenhower tour was a boost to Latin American relations, and was welcomed by the majority of the people. The only real objectors to the tour, according to Henriguez were student groups who are admittedly anti-American, and a few citizens who support the Communist Party.

A main reason for objection to the Eisenhower trip, as White sees it, is that the students believed that a personal visit by the president of the United States would lead to unwanted "meddling" in South American internal affairs. White agrees that American financial and technical support is welcomed, and even expected, by certain Latin American republics, but says he can understand why some South Americans do not quite trust the United States, due to its great size and power alone. The Future can statehood, and believes that with the influx of Americans, and the increasing economic importance of the island, the issue is a distinct possibility for the not-to-distant future.

Looking into the future, White's greatest hope is for Puerto Ri-

Henriquez looks forward to the time when there are no undevelóped nations in South America, and to the time when wealthy South Americans will consider the educational opportunities in their own countries great enough that they do not have to send their children to the United States to study.

THE CERRITOS FALCONETTES-As they marched and twirled at the Junior Rose Bowl Game in Pasadena last semester. This group has added color and spice to Falcon football games during the past two years, and becomes a service club during the off-season.

Falconettes Unique Group

This week, "Talon Marks" salutes the most exclusive service club on campus, the Cerritos Falconettes. This club qualifies as most exclusive because each member must be chosen by competitive try-out, and qualifies as one of the most active on the basis of the flag-twirling work done by the members during the fall semester.

Unique Organizations

The unique organization was first formed in the fall of 1958 by Miss Joan Schutz and several students who were interested in drill team activities. Using the double, 21/2 pound flags was the idea of Marge Kennedy, former Artesia High School flag team leader, and the dance routines done by the girls were the result of the planning of Dorene Nunley, former Excelsior High School drill team captain. The first group had 12 members, including then-freshmen Marge Kennedy, Dorene Nunley, Judy Zittel, Sandy Walberg and Helen Larabee,

Bigger, Better

In the fall of 1959, the Falconettes came back with a bigger, better flag team. Better tice put in by the girls, and bigger because of the addition of eleven new girls: sophomores Charlene Williamson and Arlene Megerle; and freshmen Nancy Salvage, Pat Patinsky, Georgia Oakes, Irene Maloney, Pat Elms, Paula Stark, Kathy Eisenbeiss, Sally Anderson, and Carol Han-

Since the organization is both a drill team and service club, it has two sets of officers. Marge Kennedy serves as drill team captain, and Dorene Nunley is assistant captain. The service club officers are: Judy Zittel, president; Charlene Williamson, veep; and Sandy Walberg, secretary-treasurer.

that sponsored the surprise breakfasts for the football and baseball teams, and the girls have served as hostesses at many student body events. This year, the Falconettes have initiated an awards system for their organization. In the spring, awards will be presented to the outstanding Falconette, most improved sophomore twirler, most improved freshman twirler, most inspirational Falconette.

Sometime this semester, the call will go out for interested girls to try out for the team. Practice sessions will be held to teach the students the techniques of flag twirling and marching, and competitive tryouts will be held. Any women students interested in the program are asked to contact either Miss Schutz or one of the cur-

Falcons' Fashions

The Do-It-Yourself craze took hold of this week's model, Nina Petrelli, and she made the dress she is wearing in the accompanying photo. The material is pink wool with specks of white running through it.

Basically

Actually, the dress is quite basic with a plain round neck and three-quarter length sleeves, but Nina makes it more than just a basic dress with the addition of a shawl-like piece she wears at the neck. It is of the same material as the dress with fringed edges which she drapes around the neck and fastens

To further change the appearance from a plain basic dress, she made the pleats in the skirt double. This also gives greater fullness, as this is the type of skirt she likes best.

Accessories

Black patent leather shoes and purse complete the outfit making a very striking combination.

While watching a recent baseball game in the Cerritos' professional-sized Falcon Field, I noticed a unusually large gathering of people at the game. The one set of bleachers was about three-quarters full, and almost forty people were stonding around the backstop. Seeing all those people made me stop an dthink; "With the great baseball teams that outstanding team we have this year, how soon will it be Cerritos has marched around the pads in the past, and the before we find it necessary to build a minature coliseum for them?"

Never A Losing Season....

Cerritos has never had a losing season. Our teams have always been known for their spirit and sportsmanship, and they always amaze the oddsmakers who say: "Cerritos doesn't have a chance because the school is too new, etc."

World Champions....

If Cerritos continues at the present pace, we might become the World Champion Cerritos Falcons! Who knows!

Past Records....

In looking through the record books, I noticed that this year's team is twice defeated in eleven games, including one two-day tournament in Northern California. So, let's all get out and support our teams, and before you know it, we will have our minature coliseum!

Already, So Soon!

Due to construction difficulties at the Pierce Campus. Cerritos is hosting the 2nd Annual Pierce Invitational Baseball Tournament beginning today. Games have been assigncd to the local diamonds in this area; Falcon Field, and Bellflower, Excelsior, and Artesia High Schools. See the sports pages for matches and follow-up material. Also. . . . rumor has it that Falcon Field will soon have an electric scoreboard. See, a minature coliseum already!

FAST BASEBALL ACTION—Swift-moving baseball play will be the thing at Cerritos this weekend, when eight collegiate teams get together for the Second Annual Pierce Tournament. The event is being staged at the Falcon campus and nearby high schools because of construction at Pierce College. The Friday-Saturday tourney gets underway with first-round games this afternoon. Cerritos opens the two-day event with Glendale College at Bellflower High at 2:30 p.m.

Fullerton will be the next king of California Junior College basketball! So say Coach Caine and members of Cerritos' basketball team which recently completed its best-ever season. Several players were asked their opinions on which teams they thought would be first three finishers in the upcoming playoffs at San Jose, March 10-12. The players' poll (which cleverly excluded me from crawling out on a limb) brought out the following results:

Scott Iverson—"Fullerton, Hancock and LACC in that order. Fullerton simply has too many horses, rebounding strength and overall shooting ability for the other teams to cope with."

Dick Roche "Hancock will win because of superior coaching. They also are the best drilled ball club in the state and will hold their poise when it counts the most. Added to this they have Paul Firth, whom I would consider the best ball player in the state. (Firth, 5'9" ball-of-fire, is Hancock's big man, scoring-wise.) Finishing second will be San Jose, followed by Fullerton."

Bill Bogdonoff--"In order, Fullerton, San Jose and Hancock. Fullerton has too much overall strength."

Pat Stewart—"Hancock will win if they play the play kind of game they're capable of. I'd have to pick Fullerton over San Jose for second place."

Keith Lindley-"Individual ability will pay off for Fullerton in the long run." After mulling over his second place choice awhile, Keith decided to pick San Diego over Hancock, (Provided San Diego whips Bakersfield for their respective conference title.)

Coach John Caine-"I think Fullerton will take it because of superior depth and experience. I would pick San Jose over San Diego for second place because of the home

Roche, who will give you a few thousand will-chosen words on any given subject, suggested I follow up Stewart's column on Cerritos' All-Opponent Team by printing a Cerritos All Worst-Opponent Team. Dick had already bestowed the dubious honor on someone to head the "Fumblin' Five".

After tossing the idea around awhile we decided it wouldn't make for popular copy-especially among schools represented on the team! I also declined to print the name of Roche's captain in order to protect the innocent me!

Cerritos Wrestlers Top El Camino; State Next

The Cerritos College matmen concluded their dual match season last week by defeating a highly favored El Camino College team 25-6, in the Warrior gym. Cerritos now has a 6-2 record for their dual match competition this season.

Although the score indicates a run-away, Cerritos was hardpressed through the first few rounds, and gradually pulled away to win.

The Falcons turned the trick on their own diamond, beating the Hornets for the third time in two seasons without a loss.

Three Hitter

Cerritos bunched all of its runs in three scoring bursts. The Falcons hopped on Fullerton for three runs in the first, then came back with two runs in the fourth and fifth innings to win the game.

Two Doubles

The Falcon outburst in the opening frame was highlited by back-to-back doubles by Jim Wolfsberger and Gene Neri. Both came after a walk and fielder's choice set up runners in scoring position.

Fullerton picked up its lone run in the fourth on a single, stolen base and follow-up single for the score. The Hornets never actually posed a threat in the game.
