Campus Illustrated Returns With More Features, Photos

Campus Illustrated, Cerritos College's new look for collegiate journalism, will make its second appearance next Wednesday.

Illustrated takes on a larger look also, combining photos and material. Specially featured is a four-page article on the Falcon student council, written by Bob Pollock.

More Features

Other features will include a humorous investigation of the art of taking final examinations by Pat Stewart, a look at the college book store operation, a photo essay by Pat O'Donnell of a Cerritos basketball game and a four-page layout of aerial photos taken by Gary Tyner, published just prior to the Christmas holidays, drew critical raves from journalism authorities at many levels.

Pollock Chief

The supplement is headed by Bob Pollock, Talon Marks feature editor.

Plans call for the publication of four or five more monthly supplements during the rest of the college year. A third issue will make its showing in late February.

Falcon Band Campaigns For Spring Recruits

During the course of the school year the Cerritos Falcon Band performs before more people than any other organization on campus.

Other events of the year have been the Norwalk Pioneer Days, Artesia Dairyland Fair, Santa Claus Lane parade, noon concerts, high school visitations and many others.

With the end of football season the band does a Cinderella stunt and changes from a high stepping pep band into a concert band and wind ensemble.

Throughout the Spring semester the band concentrates on the music of the "masters" in preparation for the many concerts which fall at the end of the semester.

Qualifications

Students who would still like to join the band for the next semester may contact any of the counselors or Jack Wheaton, the band director in Electronics 5 or Office H.

Future band aspirants should have had either band or concert experience and are required to audition before they can be accepted as members of the band.

Awards were presented at the Annual Band and Drill Team Banquet for outstanding achievements and efforts by members of the band and drill team during the fall football season.

Held at Bellflower's "Purple Mug" Coffee House, the banquet's evening agenda also included a film of the UCLA band in action plus the reading of several letters of commendation to the band and drill team by Masters of Ceremony Mike Cahoon and Brad Lantz, followed by dancing to a combo composed of members of the band.

Awards

Selected by Jack Wheaton, advisor, as the outstanding band members were Earl Rahder, who received the "Outstanding Freshman Band Member Trophy"; Nyals Andreason, who was awarded the "Outstanding Sophomore Trophy," and a special "Drum Major Trophy," which went to Lou Gross, state champion baton twirler.

Falconettes

On the other side of the fence Nan McCoid was voted by her fellow Falconettes as the "Most Inspirational Falconette" and the "Most Improved Sophomore." "Nancy Salvage, the only two year veteran and also captain, also snared two trophies, the "Most Outstanding Falconette" and a special "Advisor's Trophy," which was given by Joan Schutz to the Falconette to whom she felt was the most deserving.

"Milk Wood" Applauded; Performances Added

Because of the highly acclaimed first run of "Under Milk Wood," five command performances by the Cerritos dramatists are being presented.

"Under Milk Wood," a comedy by Dylan Thomas which was sold out for its first five performances, started its second run January 5, 10, and 12 and the final two showings will be given Tuesday and Thursday nights, January 17 and 19.

Small Town

"Under Milk Wood" is described as a "play of life," and deals with the lives of the people of a small seacoast town, during their dreams and waking hours.

It is highly acclaimed by playwrights and critics and has enjoyed successful seasons in New York and other larger cities. It is a unique play and not often performed on the college level.

Dighera Narrates

James Dighera, who teaches English and speech at Cerritos, has an extensive part as "the voice of the Poet" and will narrate the whole play. Dighera has had much

Pat Stewart Post Scripts

Reflections from a trip way up north. To Modesto, California to be exact, and not only did I not catch nary a glance at any gold, but also not even a prospector. It's getting to where you can't even believe the lyrics of a popular tune anymore. And this prompts me to ask you the burning question of the day: Haven't you ever wondered why telephone poles are stuck in the ground at the same end? It seems that of all the thousands upon thousands of telephone poles in the country at least ONE would be stuck in the ground other end first. Don't you often lay in bed at night looking at the fly specks on the ceiling or the stars, depending on how leaky your roof is, and just wonder about it?

Hoff Brau

Almost every town I know of has a "Hoff Brau" restaurant. Modesto has a Hoff Brau restaurant. We (the basketball team) ate supper (the elite of the world call it "dinner") in it the first night we were there. The Hoff Brau restaurants, as everyone knows, are German, and therefore serve German food. This Hoff Brau was no exception; it had Lucky Lager beer served from a tap. We didn't have any.

Our team was furnished with blazers to wear to the tournament games. The school doesn't furnish slacks, but most of the guys wore their own. Lots of people said that our blazers looked nice, us all dressed the same and all. Sometimes I would be sitting in the bleachers and a purse would hit me in the back. I'd turn around to see a nice elderly lady smiling prettily who said, "You boys sure do look nice in your blue jackets."

"Thank you."

"You sure do look nice."

"Thank you."

She sure would remind you of your grandmother, ya' know? Yes sir.

From th East?

One fellow wearing fancy cowboy boots and a plaid shirt said to me, "Are you boys mostly from back east?"

"No sir, we're all from right around our college."

"Most of you aren't from back east, huh? You sure look like you're from back east."

"No sir, we're all from back down there."

"You aren't from back east then, huh?"

"No sir."

Up (I say "up, because Modesto's up toward the north pole) there, it's real cold. Sometimes it would be twenty six degrees and sometimes it would rocket way up to thirty three degrees. Anyhow it was hardly good advertising for Alaska state recruiters.

Lots of the people up there have real good senses of humor. I was sitting in a shoe shine chair getting a shoe shine, when I said to the old shoe shine gentleman, "When's it going to warm up (I'm not so bad at starting a conversation)?"

The old man chuckled and replied, "That's what we been wantin' to know."

People are just about the same everywhere.

Withdrawals One of Major Problems

Although it does not seem very apparent to many Falcons, there is a certain procedure one must take before dropping a class. One goes through so many procedures for a most everything one does it is not understandable why so many people just stop attending classes without going through the proper procedure of dropping out.

One would not think of washing dishes before he runs the water, or putting on his shoes before putting on his socks, or eating an orange before peeling it, then where do people get the idea they can just stop attending a class before they go to the Counseling office and officially check out.

Steps to Drop

On registration day every person is given a sheet of paper stating in detail the steps to be taken when registering for a class and also when dropping a class. The subject is also discussed in the Student Handbook which is available in the Student Personnel Office.

It must be that these sheets and books were completely ignored and not read at all or that the context of them did not seep into the minds of the students.

Last year in the Spring Semester, 34% of the student body dropped out of college. Only 18% of these drop-outs were legal. The other 16% of the students received an F for each class they were enrolled in.

Many Reasons

There are many reasons that students drop college and most of them seem valid and good at the time. Example A is the girl who cannot wait to finish school to get married. She has set the date so she just stops coming to school.

Another example is the boy who is having trouble making his car and insurance payments. His boss informs him that there is an opening for a full-time worker. So instead of coming back to school to check out he starts working full time the following week and never gives school another thought.

The F received for not attending a class is the same as an F for not doing passing work in a class. It is put on the permanent record sheet which is asked for many times for references.

Poor Records

Later in life many of these students realize what they have passed up and decide to go back to college. So many times they are not admitted to a college because of their poor records from previous years. It seems so foolish to them then why they did not take time to check out of classes officially.

Stated M. Edward Wagner, dean of admissions and records, "There are certain procedures to register and be in a class and there are also certain procedures that must be done to withdraw. This office does not like to record an F because a student has failed to obtain an official withdrawal, but they must be recorded the same as an F for failing work in a class."

How to Withdraw

For the benefit of the students we are running the complete information below on how to withdraw from a class. It is hoped that it will be read thoroughly and that students will take heed to follow the instructions.

To withdraw from a class, see your counselor and secure an official "Petition To Change Program" notice and take it to the Admissions office. If you are in good standing in class and voluntarily drop within the first 16 weeks of the semester you will not be penalized.

To withdraw from college see your counselor and secure a "Petition For Withdrawal From College."

Editor's apprentice

By Bob Pollock

Now, after nearly a semester around the halls of Cerritos College, I can say that I have the distinct honor of not stepping on a single caterpillar.

This is not my basic aim in life; however, it does seem to be an interesting side-goal and my ego is infinitely assisted by the fact that my sole has preserved life here in what we now so loosely term reality.

As one famous playwright once said—"The world is but a stage and all the people players." Each must now assume his role as he sees himself, no matter what the poor caterpillar may think.

On the other hand, we must all do what people expect us to do or we would not last long in our socially-minded society. Imagine, momentarily, what this world would be if each did not apply his mask of society each morning and remove it upon succumbing to the pressures every evening.

Would we have more or fewer friends and enemies? Would they be the right ones? Would we find more or fewer hostile feelings of others pent up inside ourselves?

Lets look, now into the life of one such being—one who wears no mask and acts no part, and is crucified by the distorted rules of the game of life.

He goes through life's daily routine, doing what he wants to do saying what he wants to say, each with its own reward and each with its consequences.

He says that Mary's hair is atrocious, that Betty is ugly, that Jane is unacceptable to his standard of values—Mary, Betty, and Jane now have a feeling for him that is unattainable by any being other than a disgruntled female.

He is blackballed from the privilege of female company for the rest of his natural life.

After subtracting 85 per cent of his ego and ultimate goals with this action he is left with a mere 15 per cent of his former self, soon to be lost by another careless admission of what he really thinks.

He will learn, perhaps too late, that what some people don't say is far more important than what they do say and that people say what they are expected to say and do what they are expected to do—if they want to survive.

Every "yes" gets you that much more and every "no" puts you that much deeper into the pit of the outcast.

One may lose his job for what he thinks, another his social standing, but there is still something special about someone who isn't afraid to say what he thinks about Mary's hair or Betty's good looks.

Look now at the caterpillar—destroyed by some actor on this stage, applauded by an audience soon to assume a role of its own to be applauded by still another audience.

And so it goes, and so it goes—till each has found that he who was destroyed has suddenly come back to life to destroy the destroyer.

Each player may do a final curtain call before he sees the destroyed in the very back row, ready to turn out the lights of the theatre as he leaves to live on in a world the players never know.

(The former has been adapted from some likely author in some likely fit of depression.)

Magazine and Exchange Meet Top Falcon Council Business

In three major moves before the Christmas holidays, Cerritos' student council adopted the proposal for a monthly magazine supplement, noted that striped blazers would be purchased for the pep and dance bands and planned an exchange council meeting with a nearby junior college.

Magazine Adopted

The move to adopt the magazine supplement idea followed the successful publishing of its initial issue in early December. Details of the proposal include a monthly publication for all school months except September and December, with special features on all phases of campus life.

The band plans to purchase blazers out of its own account. Plans call for the new jackets to be on hand before the end of the college year.

Exchange Meeting

A plan to have an exchange executive cabinet meeting with Compton Junior College was defeated, but a proposal to hold an exchange full-council meeting was adopted. Details are to be arranged.

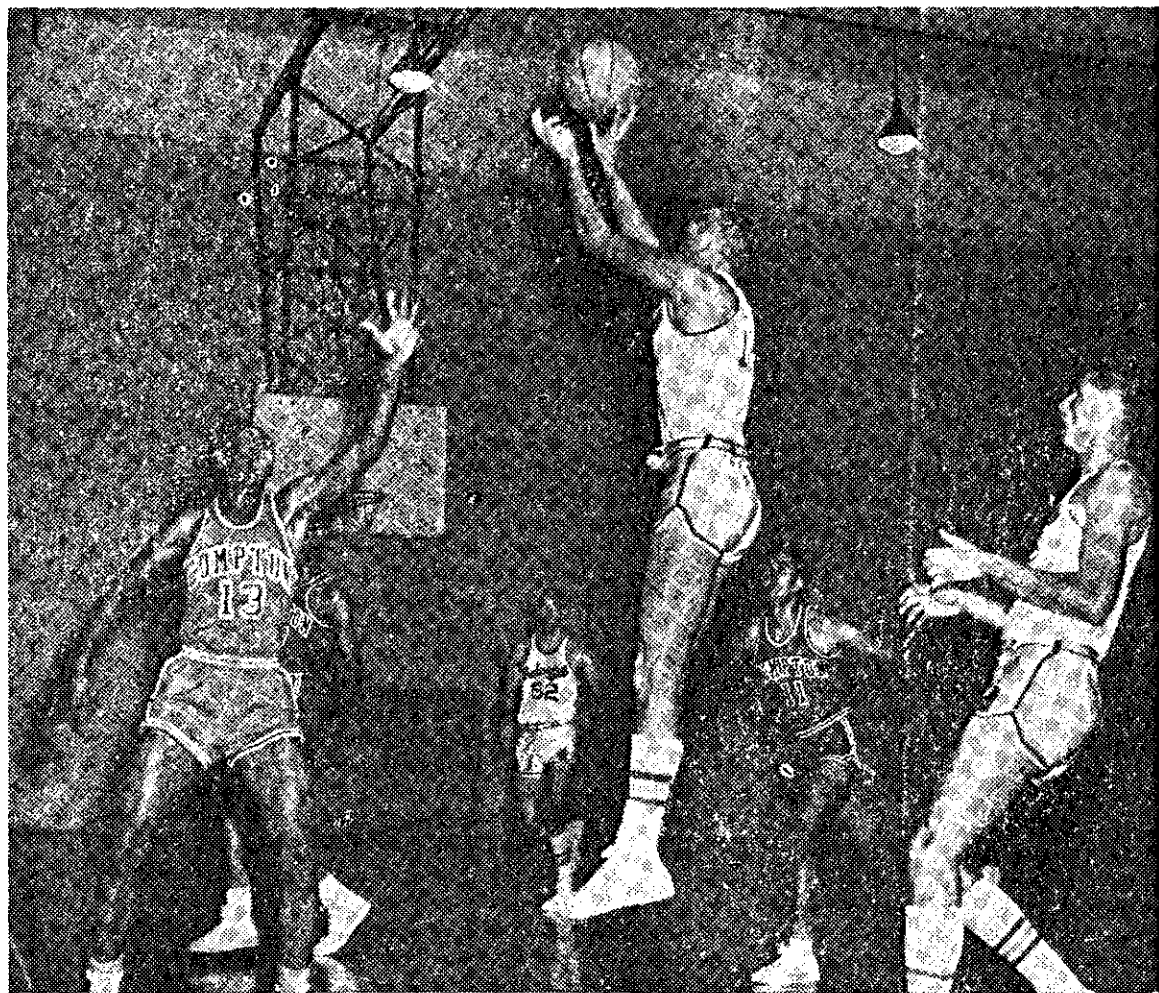

In more recent ASB action, outlines of the plan for the Mid-Winter Festival were given by Dean of Women Amy Dozier. The festival is scheduled for February.

Commissioner of Activities Yvonne Brower reported that an after-game dance has been scheduled following tomorrow night's basketball game against Pierce.

Sportraits

by Jim Ennis

In between football seasons there seems to be a couple of sports here at Cerritos that occupy somewhat less than a popular position. They are, namely, basketball and baseball.

Football, not too far removed from the sports scene, just produced a record gate for Cerritos, with 35,000 heads counted for the five home games. Employing our mathematical wizardry, we find this to be an average of 7,000 a contest.

It's safe to say this figure is probably second in the nation, behind Bakersfield, a hotbed for football.

Attendance Low

Our thesis is, why doesn't this sparkling attendance rate hold true in other sports here at Cerritos?

The Falcon basketball team will play nine home games this year at Norwalk Gym. their "home away from home."

At the present rate of attendance—based on the first three home games—the gate will be lucky to hit 1600 for the entire year.

Some attribute this lack of patrons to the fact that the cagers do not play in their own facility, and that attendance will naturally increase when it is completed, in April. Which is fine, considering that the basketball season winds up in early March.

Better Location

We can't buy this as a genuine excuse, however. The fact remains that Norwalk Gym is probably more centrally located for students than the future home is.

Wally Kincaid, baseball coach, received some bad news the other day. A prospective ballplayer for Cerritos this year, Wayne Neet, signed a contract with the San Francisco Giants. Neet, a 6' 6" righthanded pitcher, hails from El Rancho where he won a 1-0 no-hitter last year. He reportedly signed for $20,000.

Kincaid Greet Large Turnout

Twenty-seven prospects reported last Wednesday, January 4, for the opening day of practice for the 1961 baseball season.

Eight Lettermen

Among the try-outs were eight returning lettermen from last year's team.

Three of the returnees are pitchers. They are Dick White, Dick Sauers, and Butch Hughes, the winner of last year's most improved player award.

Catcher Bob Olson, second baseman Bill Martin, and third baseman Bob Beckner (a second team choice on the All-Western States Conference team last year), are the returning infielders.

Other returners are Larry Heathershaw and Gene Neri (an honorable mention for All-WSC honors last year).

Six New Pitchers

Among the new prospects are pitchers: Tim Riens from Warren High School; Ed Perry, just out of the service but formerly from Bellflower; Jim Jensen, Bellflower; Spence Noteboom, Norwalk; Jon Baker, Excelsior; and Jerry Otterson, a transfer from Washington University, formerly from Paramount.

New catchers included: Dale Gibbs from Santa Fe; Howard Lowder, just out of the service; and Vince Acosta, Bosco Tech.

First year infielders included: Dick Neel first baseman, El Rancho; Willy Reaney second baseman, Downey; third baseman Bob Durazzo from Downey and Ron Meints from Artesia; and shortstop Dick Snyder, just out of the service.

Rounding out the list of new prospects were outfielders Jim Kobzeff, Downey; Tom Bentley, Montebello; Len Patinsky, Warren; Pat Drohan, St. Paul; and Dave Ostebo, Whittier.

Wilford Long, manager of last year's squad, will return to fill the position again this year.

Friebwasser Assistant

Assisting head coach Wally Kincaid this year will be his new assistant coach Dutch Triebwasser from Oakland College.

The Cerritos squad is now preparing for its first game on Feb. 17, in which they will meet El Camino College on the Falcon diamond.

Pierce Next as Falcons Head Into Conference Schedule

In the basketball competition since the beginning of the vacation until now, the Cerritos basketball team has compiled a record of eight wins and three losses.

Four Ex-Falcons Drafted By Pros

Four ex-Cerritos football stars were drafted by the National Football League at the annual pro meeting held in Philadelphia. They are Pete Nicklas, ninth choice of Baltimore; John Frongillo, eighth choice of Cleveland; Bob Lane, 13th choice of Los Angeles; and Ken Gregory, fourth choice of Baltimore.

Nicklas, 6'4", 245, was an All-American tackle in 1958 for Cerritos before going on to Baylor.

Frongillo, an All-American end in 1958, was the Falcons' outstanding lineman that year. He's 6'4", 225, and also hails from Baylor.

Best

Lane, who made All-American in 1957 while making only second team all-conference, is a 6'2" end who also played basketball for Cerritos. Rated by Ram scouts as the best pass-catcher in the Southwest Conference, Lane, too, played for Baylor.

First Team

Gregory, an all-around athlete for the Falcons in 1957, set a NAIA record this year by catching 63 passes. This figure also led the nation. The 6'2" Little All-American also had the same distinction at Cerritos. He was also a standout basketball player on Cerritos' first cage team.

Basketball Over; Volleyball Starts

The intramural basketball tournament concluded its scheduled games on Thursday prior to vacation.

Team standings found the "Huns" winning the majority of their games with a 7-1 loss record. This team was composed of Captain Bob Pierce, Chuck Leveille, Kieth Lindly, Wayne Curfman, Lloyd Tolan, Larry Farrell, Harold Henderson and Dick Decker.

Don's Second

Finishing in second place were the "Dons" with a 5-3 record. This team was composed of Terry Anderson, Richard Nicholas, Chab Salvador, Bill Mulvihill, Gordon Browning and Bob Frako.

Winning team members were awarded intramural ribbons.

On resuming school after the Christmas vacation a men's volleyball league will be started. All interested clubs, groups and individuals check in with Dave Kamanski, intramural director.
