

Freshman Class Elections Slated Oct. 4, 5

Four Freshmen Vie For Top Class Position

Aspirants for the Freshman Class President, consisting of John Kendrick, Tim Edwards, Dan Miller, and Stan Ross, along with the candidates for vice-president, secretary and treasurer will officially begin their election campaigns with the Nominations Assembly today in the Student Center at 12:30.

Other Candidates

Names of the other candidates for the offices of vice-president are: John LaRoche and Dolores Gonzales; for secretary are: Arden Hoover, Joanne Freeman, Kathleen Burce, Donna Gotwalt, Veronica Vracin and Barbara Griley; and for treasurer are: Deanne Dolard and Oliva Hare. The offices of Publicity Chairman and Activities Chairman are appointed by the elected Class President and the ASB Council.

In place of the candidates giving speeches there will be banners and posters carried by supporters of the different candidates and one campaign manager who will give a short speech for their candidate at the assembly.

Final Elections

Final elections will be held on October 4-5 in the Student Center all day on both days. In case of ties etc. there will be another day of voting set up for the run-off elections.

All full-time students holding ASB cards are eligible to vote in the election and are urged to make use of this prerogative. In addition, candidates are reminded that their campaign expenses must not exceed the maximum of $5, this includes donations from supporters. All posters must be okayed through the Student Personnel office before posting and are to be removed before 10:00 p.m. each evening. Also, there are to be no more than five posters per candidate and all the other Election Rules in the Student Constitution, listed in the back of the Student Handbook, are to be followed in all cases.

Football Rally

Coinciding with the Nominations Assembly will be the Football Rally for this week's game against the Fullerton Hornets on Saturday evening beginning at 8:00 p.m. in the Cerritos Falcon stadium. The rally will immediately follow the assembly and will this time be featuring all the coaches and the football player with individual introduction for most of the players and all of the coaches.

As usual, the Yell and Song Leaders will be on hand for the assembly.

Falcons to Phoenix

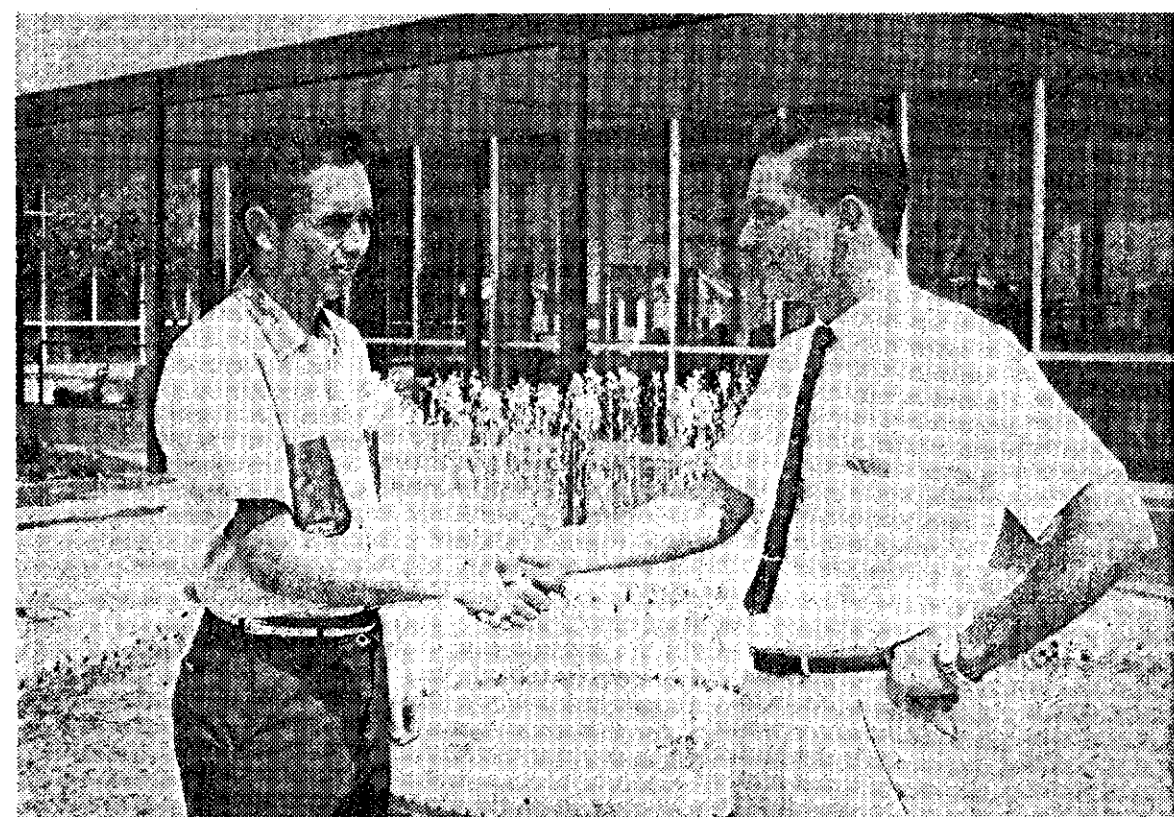

Special buses will take as many Falcon grid rooters to Phoenix as want to go, according to Cerritos Student Personnel officials.

The Cerritos-Phoenix football game is scheduled for the night of Saturday, October 13, but ASB chiefs will need to know the exact number of students that plan to go by Friday, October 7.

Officials indicate that the college will send as many buses as can be filled, but must have 39 to make the trip.

Student body card holders will pay $20 for the round trip ticket, which includes the cost of a hotel room for one night. Non-ASB card holders will pay $23. The full amount is to be paid by October 7 in the Student Personnel Office.

The grid contest will pit Cerritos' Falcons against Phoenix College, newest member of the Western States Conference, and one of the nation's top jaycee squads last year.

Cafeteria Adopts "Grab and Go" Scramble System

In order to speed up the service in the cafeteria a new system has been developed. Instead of standing in line everyone gets their tray, utensils, and "scrambles" to find what they want.

The new system has been

adopted to speed up the service and therefore accommodate more people. All items and prices are listed for easy selection. Other schools are reported to have successfully made this method work as Cerritos hopes to do.

Air Force Offers ROTC Information

On campus Wednesday from 10 to 11 will be a member of the United States Air Force to explain details of the College Air Force program.

Under this program students wear uniforms furnished by the university, follow military procedure and courtesies and act as men of the service. Drill classes are handled by advanced cadets. They consist of inspections, flight drills and other military functions.

Class lectures are taught by regular officers of the Air Force under the command of Lt. Col. John A. Newbauer.

Accreditation Team to Visit Cerritos Oct. 11-12

Cerritos, being such a new school, sets new traditions and has important "firsts" every day. One such important "first" will be October 11 and 12 when the Accreditation team comes to the campus to investigate all facets of Cerritos college education facilities.

Semons - Chairman

Chairman of the team is Dr. Hubert Semons, dean of instruction, Foothill College. Assisting Dr. Semons, will be Dr. Reed Buffington, assistant superintendent of Contra Costa Junior College District; Dr. Robert Haugh, president of Glendale College; Dr. W. H. Van Dyke, instructor of education and psychology at Long Beach State College; Bert Williams, instructor of humanities, Chapman College and George Roehr, consultant, State Department of Education.

Buffington and Haugh are California Junior College Association representatives; Van Dyke and Williams are from the Western College Association and Roehr is from the State Department of Education.

Accreditation begins when school administrators apply to the Western College Association reviewing the school, its administrators, instructors, classes and all important areas of the educational system, including finances.

Visits, Visits, Visits

When the team comes to the campus they go through records, visit classes, talk to administrators, instructors and students and get an overall look at the college.

The last day of their stay at Cerritos, the committee meets with the administrators and discusses what they have found at the school. Whether accreditation has been recommended or not cannot be told because the report of this team has yet to go before 2 other committees—CJCA and WCA. Finally a recommendation will be made for the accreditation to be for anywhere from one to five years. It will take about five months before the college will know if they have been accredited and if so for how long.

Introspection

"The Accreditation team is not here to put anyone on the spot. We welcome them and are looking forward to their visit. The process of accreditation is very fair and objective and their purpose is to make an analysis and help the college to develop. This is a good time for introspection on the part of the college. One of the most valuable parts of the accreditation is the preparation when we look at ourselves and see if we are doing the job we want to be doing," said Dr. Robert Rockwell, vice-president and director of Cerritos.

Cerritos was accredited for two years during the 1958-59 school year when classes were still being held at Artesia and Excelsior High School. At that time, the college was not old enough to be eligible for the full term, the requirement being the school has to have had two graduating classes.

Falcons 8 1/2 Point Favorite Over Fullerton

A PICTURE OF FRUSTRATION—Long Beach's Lonzo Irvin (see arrow) is almost hidden by eight (count 'em) Cerritos College defensive players in an effort to bring the 215-pound fullback to earth. Indentifiable Falcons are End Joe Gibbs (left background), Warren Simmons (52), Guard John Tjaarda (with arm around Irvin's neck), Quarterback Rick Alvarado (17), Tackle Jim Morgan (on ground), Guard Dave Stenson (63). Harrier's Ready For First Meet At Long Beach

Coach Dave Kamanski and his group of Falcon harriers will meet their first test tomorrow as they journey to LBSC for the annual Long Beach State Invitational.

The meet brings together all the top competition of the area in both high school and college divisions. The Falcon runners will cover a 3.2 mile college course around the State campus.

This year's cross country team seems to be as strong as last year's team which ended up third in the Southern California championship meet. They finished second in the Western States Conference after losing a close meet to Pierce by two points.

Returning lettermen from that team are Darryl Taylor, Delare Mannie, Al Aragon and John Kosarich.

Top Prospect

The squad will be bolstered considerably by several top notch newcomers. Gene Grule, a strong miler (4:17.5) from Artesia, leads the parade of new talent. Gene was the cross country champ of the CIF last year in the small school division.

The team well represents the area as other men expected to be around the top of the crop include Jim Miller, Ron Dummer and Art Pittman who hail from Lynwood, Bellflower and Excelsior respectively.

This is only the second year that a cross country team has represented Cerritos and the student body may not be too familiar with the sport.

Old Sport

Cross country is one of the oldest sports there is and there have been almost no changes to it since the days of ancient Greece. It developed from the running messengers who served as the telegraph system in those days. For competition, a scoring system was devised and it became a popular sport.

CROSS COUNTRY SCHEDULE

Sportraits

by Jim Ennis

It is indeed a misfortune that two teams of such high calibre as Cerritos and Long Beach should have to collide head-on in both schools' opening game.

A contest of this magnitude should, by its own right, be played after each contestant has a bit of combat under his belt.

After a few encounters both squads tend to know where they stand and are apt to perhaps perform in a manner more truly representative of their ability.

This is not meant to convey the idea that Long Beach is inferior to Cerritos (the score shows otherwise); but rather that the Falcons didn't quite know what to expect.

In practices leading up to last week's affair, Cerritos, in a sense, wasn't gearing itself to meet a team of 11 equal men, as they should have. They were, rather, prepping for a mythical giant whose press clippings were headed by Andrews, Irvine, etc.

Since, in this matter of scheduling, you're dealing with the unknown, the Cerritos-Long Beach tiff couldn't be helped.

It goes without saying that any aspirations Cerritos may have had concerning a possible bowl bid were somewhat dimmed by the Vikings. As for the latter, perhaps only (?) Bakersfield separates them from the Junior Rose Bowl, if they manage to get by the highly touted Santa Ana Dons tomorrow night. However, the "Index Weekly" picks the Eastern States Conference titan to trim the Vikes by a touchdown.....

Speaking of Andrews and Irvine, can you recall ever seeing such a one-two punch in jaycee ranks?

Irvine made like a Jim Brown in his up-the-middle jaunts while Andrews cavorted inside and out with equal success.

JAYCEE JOTTINGS: Phoenix, of course, returns to the WSC this year, and Coach "Shanty" Hogan's Potato Bowl champs may shock everyone... Glendale and Pasadena have new coaches, Mike Giddings and Bob Batian, respectively, and both should pump new blood into sleeping giants... Tay Brown's coaching genius will keep Compton in contention, talent or no... Ventura has never won the WSC and this isn't the year to start... At Cerritos' fourth annual press luncheon, Falcon mentor Don Hall drew a laugh when he mused he tried to schedule Eastern Arizona four times this season... Cerritos whipped the Monsters, 64-0, last year... During the past five years, every team Hall has coached has won or tied for the conference championship.

Cerritos Seeks First Grid Win In Saturday Home Contest

Cerritos' Falcons attempt to mark the win column for the first time this season as they entertain Fullerton's Hornets at Cerritos Stadium tomorrow night. Kickoff time is 8 p.m.

Both teams in this young season are hungry for that first victory as each took it on the chin in opening losses.

Two New Faces Added To Falcon Coaching Staff

There will be two new faces on the Falcon coaching staff this year. One is William "Lefty" Pendleton, backfield coach. He is replacing Charles Hall who moved to the University of Southern California. The other is Vernon "Dutch" Triebwasser, assistant line coach, formerly a member of the Oakland College staff.

Prep Star

Pendleton was born on January 25, 1923, in Wheeler, Texas. He was a prep standout at Pampa, Texas, where he lettered in football, boxing, and track.

During World War II he served with the Navy, during which time he won a number of boxing honors.

Following the war, Pendleton enrolled at the University of Miami, playing one year of football. He then returned closer to home by transferring to Central State College in Oklahoma. At Central he lettered three years in football, boxing, and track.

First Year

After his college career, Pendleton moved into active coaching. He coached three years at Kermit High School in Texas. He then joined the staff at Border, Texas, where he coached for another five years. He had just completed two years of coaching at Artesia, New Mexico, before being asked to join the Falcon Staff.

During his prep coaching term Pendleton added a masters degree in 1954, from Western State in Colorado.

Pendleton is married and has three children.

The new addition to the Falcon staff is equally at home in coaching either offense or defense.

Native Californian

Triebwasser was born in Lodi, California, April 17, 1924. He attended Lodi High School where he played football, baseball, and basketball. He graduated in 1942.

He entered the U.S. Navy in January 1943, and after six years of duty he was discharged in January of 1949.

His college career began at Stockton College, Stockton, California, which he entered in February of 1949. He played football and baseball there for two years. He entered the College of the Pacific in 1952 where he lettered in baseball.

In 1953 he re-entered the navy serving a two year hitch this time and being discharged in 1955.

COP Graduate

Triebwasser then went back to College of the Pacific and graduated that year.

Since his graduation in 1955 until this year he has been coaching at Oakland City College where he was head baseball coach and assistant football coach.

With the addition of these two new coaches that brings the coaching staff up to four members. The other two include head coach Don Hall and line coach Smokey Cates.

Fullerton, two weeks ago, was shut out by Fresno, 15-0, while Cerritos suffered a 24-10 loss to powerful Long Beach City College.

The Hornets lost most of their lettermen from last year's inept squad which posted a poor, 1-7-1 record.

Hornets Inexperienced

This year, inexperience should most certainly have a telling effect on Fullerton, as the Hornets line up an all-freshman starting team.

The line, anchored by 220-lb. Tackle Don Marsh and 185-lb. End Dave Gibbs, weight-wise strikes a 211 mean across the tackles.

Off of last week's performance, Cerritos Coach Don Hall might possibly make some changes in his starting arrangement.

Bagwell at Full

Bob Bagwell, at times flashing some of his brilliance of old, will probably replace Andy Cuccio at fullback. However, Hall indicated no line changes.

Starters

Below are the tentative starting lineups:

Fullerton: Ends—Errol Wilson, Dave Gibbs; Tackles—Ruben Moreno; Guards—John Godden, Bob Schoner; Center—Fred Hogg; Halfbacks—Leo Ott, Mark Russ; Fullback—Paul Smith; Quarterback—Dalton O'Neal.

Black Saturday

The only kind of thing that happened to Cerritos after last Saturday's 24-10 loss to Long Beach City College, was a friendly fog-bank that moved in following the final gun... and shrouded Falcon misery.

Long Beach's Vikings proved what most had already suspected... they are every bit as good as the championship high school teams that so many of the squad represent. Fabled Dee Andrews did not score, but must have viewed with interest teammate Lonzo Irvin's three t.d.'s.

Falcon Lead

Cerritos scored first, picking up a safety after a wayward center pass went through the Vike end zone on a fourth down punting situation. Irvin scored his first touchdown in the second quarter, a one-yard plunge over center and followed with the two-point conversion run.

The Falcons bounced right back with a 20 yard pass play from Quarterback Grant Owen to End Joe Gibbs, Quarterback Rick Alvarado scoring the two-point conversion. Cerritos led at the half, 10-8.

Irvin Stuns

Irvin split his other two scores into each quarter, going one-yard in the third quarter, 42 yards in the final.

A record crowd of 10,763 attended the opening season game.

'Service Week' ICC Dance, Set Oct. 3-7

An Inter-Club Council dance will climax Cerritos' Service Week, which has been designated to run Oct. 3-7. The dance will be held in the student center, for club members only.

New Members

During Service Week, all campus clubs will begin projects and various activities. At the close of the week, Oct. 7, all clubs will have formal induction of the members. The ceremonies will be held in certain classrooms. Following this event, which is slated to begin at 6:30 p.m., the dance will culminate the week's activities from 8:30-12 midnight.

Attire for the occasion will be dressy dress and no admission will be charged.

Name Clubs

Service clubs participating in the week's activities will be Beta Tau, Delta Phi Omega, Falconettes, Omega Chi, Sigma Phi, Song and Yell, Theta Phi, and Sigma Omicron Delta.

Other organizations invited to attend the dance are Alpha Gamma Sigma, Big "C", Coz Mettes, Inter-Varsity, International Relations, Letterman's Club, Math and Engineering, Newman, Phi Beta Lambda, Phi Ro Pi, Tau Phi, W.A.A., Lambda Delta Sigma, Spanish Club, Der Edelweiss, and Christian Science.

I.R.C. Hosts In Coke-Tail Party

Meeting students from foreign countries attending Cerritos was one of the highlights of the recent party held for the members of the International Relations Club.

The party, an informal get-together, was hosted last Sunday at the home of Pat Burton, president.

Any student interested in foreign countries is sincerely urged by the advisor, Stanley Jennings, to attend the meetings of the club on the third Tuesday of each month in either LA 3 or 5. The next event will be a luncheon on October 10 in the Student Center. This event is open to all students and will feature a top international figure who will discuss the world situation.

Cement Rec. Area

Part of the rapid growth of our campus is the addition of a cement recreational area being constructed at the south end of the P.E. building.

The addition was authorized to be built by the P.E. department and plans are being made to eventually add fire pits, tables and benches.

ONE-AND-A-TWO-AND-A—Set to sing a quartet in front of the fireplace are Bonny Dickinson, Ron Zybach, Bill Blake, and Frances Fernandez. The purpose of the song is to tell the world that the choir's new blue and white robes have finally arrived.

The Falcon's Nest

"Joining Fever"—symptoms include victim running around with a pen in hand, signing up for almost every club on campus. Worst time for catching this disease—at the recent club day.

Surveying the lists of names signed up for club membership, it looks as if this "fever" has hit Falconville with a BANG! It appears that many students have signed their names to practically all the club membership lists. They have promised to do thus and so for this club, paint signs for that club, telephone for this one, plus do their school work.

Need "Doers"

Getting into the swing of things and being a "club joiner" is all well and good—but there is more to it than just signing your name on the membership list. Clubs do not run on just a list of names. They run on service as well as membership. They must be able to plan and count on your help when needed—in other words, they must plan on "doers" as well as joiners.

If, upon looking back, you somehow find that you joined more clubs than you feel that you have time for, simply withdraw from a few. In all probability, the club would rather have you do it now than to wait until your help is needed and have you deliver the sad news.

Coffee Hour For Circle K

One of Cerritos' newest organizations will get a boost soon. Circle K, a men's service group, will hold a coffee hour in the Student Center on Thursday, October 6, at 7:30 p.m.

All men students who are interested in this group are urged to attend.

The organization is sponsored by the Kiwanis clubs of the nation. There are more than 200 such clubs in the U.S.

Joseph Incoruaia and Smokey Cates will be advisors.

Falconettes Announce Fall Try-Outs, Results

The Cerritos Falconettes added six new girls, chosen at tryouts held last week, to bring the total team strength to twenty twirlers.

Being initiated into the unique and exclusive twirling team-drill team-service club are: sophomore Sandy Touralchuk, and freshmen Sandra Pernick, Beverly King, Pat Artale, Celia Robinson, and Connie Pizzo.

Fledgling Falconettes

These fledgling Falconettes attended regular drill team practice sessions to pick up the twirling and marching techniques necessary for membership in the drill organization.

The girls will now be issued uniforms, flags, and capes, and will join the group for tomorrow night's game with Fullerton Junior College in the Cerritos College stadium.

The show for this game will be a medley of tunes from the Broadway show, "The Music Man." The Falconette routine will be done to the music of the march, "Seventy-Six Trombones" and the group will then follow the band into various formations depicting the theme of the show.

In Addition

In addition to half-time activities, the Cerritos Falconettes appear before each game during the ceremony of the presentation of the colors wearing their long, royal blue capes. The girls also make a living arch through which the football team passes prior to every game.

Big activities on the Falconette agenda include the Norwalk Pioneer Days parade on October 8, and the Jr. Rose Bowl Parade in Pasadena during the latter part of November. Other big activities include trips to Phoenix and Ventura for the football games with these schools.

Schutz Finds Europe Interesting, Exciting

Although most people dream of a summer holiday in Europe, few realize this ambition. One of the lucky few is Miss Joan Schutz, popular PE department head here at Cerritos.

Just back from a full three-month tour of Europe, Miss Schutz covered a lot of territory, traveling through England, France, Italy, Spain, Sweden, Denmark, and Czechoslovakia.

Far From Vacation

The European tour was far from a vacation, however, and had an important and definite purpose. The Falconette advisor was a member of a group of 90 individuals touring the continent to bring the sport of synchronized swimming to the people of European countries, and eventually to the Olympic games.

Five different swimming groups presented competitive and exhibition programs throughout the various countries. In all, the group traveled over 9,000 miles. According to Miss Schutz, Olympic representation of synchronized swimming may come into being for the 1968 competitive games.

Liked "Aida"

The highlight of the tour for Miss Schutz was the presentation of the opera "Aida" in an outdoor theater in an ancient Roman ruin. "I liked it so well I saw it twice!" exclaimed the popular instructor.

Another top spot on the trip was given to a three-day trip into Communist-controlled Czechoslovakia. Although the Cerritos globe-trotter found the country to be depressing, she was impressed by her "red carpet" reception and hospitality accorded to her while in the country.

Another experience which was not relished by the "traveler" occurred in Venice when her purse was stolen. Her purse contained vital papers as well as the plane tickets home. It took three days to get the tickets back, and she doubts that the other contents will ever be returned.

TauPhi Takes Members

Tau Phi, advised by Ray Aguirre, has selected its members for the 1960-61 school year. The club is open to students interested in art and is headed by prexy, Clovis Binkly.

New members include Kathy Anderson, John Ahrendes, Art Aguirre, Gary Brewer, John Cheers, Sharon De Long, Ruben Garcia, John Gibbs, Margie Gonzales, Marifce Heyer, Diana Lindenstein, Gary Mann, Jack Marble and Danny Miller.

More "artists" are David Nelson, Margo Rubenstein, Bob Titterington, Bill Walberg, Jr., Bonnie Zerr, El Jay Overholt, Mary Ann Penich, and Carol Ryan.

INITIATION—Falconette captain Nancy Salvage officiates at initiation of newly selected Falconette members who will join team for tomorrow night's game with Fullerton. Nancy hands her flag to Pat Adante, while Sandy Touralchuk, Beverly King, Connie Pizzo, and Sandra Herrick look on. Celia Robinson is camera-shy member of the group.

What kind of people are serving you as ASB officers? Well, take the example of student body secretary, Nola Kessler. Nola, interestingly enough, is one of very few people in the world who have seen and captured a "Potgut."

What's a potgut you ask? Well as best I can interpret her giggles of delight, it seems she thinks these "potguts" are hairy little animals native to Utah. In her own words she describes them as, "Like big fat rats, or little small squirrels." Strange you never see them in zoos, but let's go on. How do you capture potguts? "Sneak up on them and drop boxes over 'em." Uh huh, Nola, that's real interesting. Yessir.

Please don't be too persistent in asking her to translate her adventures because at present this wild-minded little student slave is busy writing her memoirs, "I Encountered the Deadly Potgut and Lived."

Have you gone out on your back porch yet at night and taken a look at Uncle Sam's "Echo"? Boy, I went out there the other night with my telescope and pencil and paper (all the better to take notes with, ya'know) and watched that distant, wonderful lil' speck of light for about twenty minutes. I was sure disappointed when my ma came out and broke the bad news to me. "That's the north star, stupid." I wasn't really so interested anyhow.

Any of you who would care to drop this column a nice derogatory letter or otherwise, it will be very welcome because it would be an excellent means of filling space, and besides I could make you appear foolish with a few cutting remarks of my own in reply. Hurry! Be the first kid on your block to boast, "I was made to appear a fool in the student newspaper!"

This writer can't understand why a presidential ticket of Alfred E. Neuman and Bill Ballance wasn't adopted by either party. Would've been hard to beat.

Confusious say, "Who say all them things they say I say?"

Scramble Leaves Henry Confused

Henry is my friend.
You can't see Henry, Henry is only visible to me.
Well of course Henry can see himself!
Henry sees other things too, you know.

Do you know?
Say, do you know what he saw the other day?
No, of course you don't, how presumptuous of me.
Well, let me tell you what Henry saw.

You want to know what Henry saw, don't you?
Of course you do!

What do you mean I told you already?

I did? How foolish of me to forget.

Well, I like Henry!
Of course you do, Henry is my friend.

But of course he is!
I just told you he was, didn't I? Couldn't you just forget it!

Well, forget it.
Certainly I know what Scramble is.

What do you mean, who told me? Henry, who else.

Will you just forget it now!
Of course I can see Henry.

Well, it's not my fault that you can't see Henry.

Scramble, oh yes, that's an egg.
What do you mean by that crack?

Insults, your complete conversation.

Honestly!

A system? do you feel well?

After all, I only asked a simple, OK!

Oh! Scramble, that's the system, huh.

Well, Henry thought it was an egg.

Why scramble?

Faster?

How?

Oh!

No waiting in line, huh.

Just get what you want and go, huh.

Sounds good, where at?

Oh. There, huh?

Say any connection to the—

So that's what they're for.

Well. We're supposed to scramble huh.

Say, that's not bad, scrambled—

Well for crapes sake!

OK, OK, I'll scramble for my lunch!!

Do you do it too?

HUH!

Henry! Henry!

HELP!

LOADED—Chere Andrews checks out of the bookstore with more than her share of "goodies" while Wilma Maughan rings up the check. The bookstore, just getting over the opening week's rush, is now faced with the problem of re-ordering books that have run out.

(CCASBPhoto by Tyner)

There's More to Bookstore Than Those Empty Shelves

The door to the bookstore opens and you make a dash for the shelf and—they're out of your book again!

More than likely this problem has faced you or is facing you at the present time. How, you wonder, can they be out of books knowing there'll be so many classes in that subject consequently requiring a certain quantity of books.

A simple problem at first glance, but upon a closer and deeper examination of the subject the problem of ordering or re-ordering books for all the classes is quite involved and complicated. In ordering books for each of the semesters, be it fall, spring or summer session, Mr. Beauchamp, manager of the bookstore, must consider not only the element of how many new students will be coming in each semester, fall especially, but the mind-wrecking problem of how many books of each subject will be kept, traded or sold among the students outside of the bookstore.

Whenever Mr. Beauchamp and his staff composed of Mrs. Balzer, assistant manager, Mrs. Maughan, and Mrs. Vod, manage to hit the number of books on the head, so to speak, they feel justly proud.

Backing up a bit we'll delve into just how the number of books to be ordered and needed is ascertained. To begin with, the individual instructors make an estimate of the books they feel the course will need for the students. This estimate is then sent on to their department head, who goes over the list and either okays it or sends it back to the instructor for re-evaluation.

Once past the department head the estimate travels on to the Division Chairman, who also goes over it and either okays it or sends it back down the line. Finally, the estimate reaches the Dean, of say, Liberal Arts, who also goes over the much-gone-over list and after his final okay it is sent to Mr. Beauchamp and his staff.

Upon receiving the final estimate Mr. Beauchamp checks his files to determine just how many books of that title and author he has on hand at the present time. He then subtracts this number from the number estimated and if he feels, from personal experience that the number left won't meet the students' needs or will exceed the need he will adjust the figure before he orders the books from the publishing house to prevent a large amount of assets being tied up in overstocked books.

Even after this is completed the job is still unfinished. Whenever there is a shortage of books, such as has been experienced this semester because of the large increase in enrollment, new orders of books must be sent out, and depending upon how urgently they are needed the appropriate steps are carried out.

In refunding money for misbought books or dropped classes the purchase slip and the book in good condition, no torn pages, ink marks, etc., must be returned within the first two weeks of each semester and the first week of the following semester. Only those in good condition can be bought back.

Editor's apprentice

If your department is anything like ours, you got troubles.

Chances are, if you're working in a specialized area, you're stuck with a bungalow, shack, or some such other dwelling that doesn't exactly resemble the campus that is supposed to be so complete.

Don't get me wrong—I realize that some of the areas will just have to wait until their facilities are completed, but in the meantime we must all suffer hardships beyond the destiny of mortal men.

Take, for example, this building. Obviously too small for a normal sized family to occupy, it was converted to the journalism department of Cerritos College.

That, in itself, is not too bad, but to come in here throughout the first week of classes, one would think they had forgot about us.

Papers strewn here, trash there and everywhere and nothing but a promise that it would ever, somehow miraculously, disappear. Oh, hardship.

Football players who use a cow barn for a locker room may have had their gripes coming, now that I think about it.

The facilities here, however, are not remotely connected to the quality of newspaper that we can produce, and that we will produce, come hell or high water (or perhaps we can't take the high water).

I may be spoiled because of the facilities that I was exposed to at Long Beach State College, but I am also used to being part of a fine newspaper staff which produces a fine newspaper, and this is one which can do just that.

Once we all become familiar with the campus, we will no longer have to write reams of copy about ourselves for lack of anything else worthwhile nor will we have to rewrite excerpts from the college catalogue to satisfy a few people who control the educational destinies of each one of us.

But we will tell you what you want to know, what you won't know, what you should know, and what you know about yourselves, Cerritos College, and the people who work here and organize this place into a functioning machine.

But most of all, we'll tell you what we feel is most important to tell in the way we feel is the most effective to tell it so that you, and the guy that sits next to you, and the one that gives you a ride home will all know what Cerritos College is all about.

Don't look now, but the Talon Marks is going to be a paper of which each and every one of us can well be proud.

'Marks' Stages Prexy Election

With the national presidential election approaching Nov. 8, students at Cerritos will have a chance to see how their opinions would fare as compared to the nation-wide trend.

The Talon Marks will hold its own presidential election Nov. 2 and 3 to determine the presidential preference of the students at Cerritos.

As a further incentive to the "local" election, essays will be accepted concerning the merits of each candidate and why he should be elected.

The best article for each candidate will be published in the Talon Marks and the author given a $5 cash award.

Articles will be due no later than Oct. 13 and must be typed or in legible longhand. They should be no more than 500 words.

Student body cards must be presented at the polls and when articles are submitted in bungalow 40.

Winners of the writing contest will be announced in the Talon Marks issue of Nov. 2 and the winning articles printed at that time.

Results of the Cerritos election will be compared with the national results in the issue of Nov. 10, immediately following the nation-wide election.

Veterans . . .

Veterans are urged to report to the Counseling Office to pick up their verification forms, following their final classes. Veterans should complete this procedure and return all of the forms before October 5, to insure prompt payment.
