Woodworth Loses

ASCC Court Finds for Senate As 'Mickey Mouse Affair' Ends

By BOB HARDIN
News Editor

"I think there was no reason why this 'Mickey Mouse affair' came to this court," stated Associate Justice Ed Kish about the Woodworth vs. Senate case, in which the ASCC Supreme Court last July found in Senate's favor.

The court's reasons for its verdict were as follows:

"1. No legal action shows that George Woodworth was expelled from the Senate; no legal document or testimony shows that he was expelled; therefore, there was no denial of due process. If there had been a question regarding his eligibility to hold a seat in the Senate, he should not have left.

"2. It is incumbent upon the candidate and officeholder to determine his eligibility for seeking and holding office as established in the ASCC Constitution and its By-Laws. Inherent in that, the court finds that his is due process.

"3. This court upholds the decision of the Senate to move up the 33rd senator, Harold Jordan, when Mr. Woodworth relinquished any claim to his seat at the Senate meeting Feb. 25.

"4. The Plaintiff's attorney in his opening statement declared that he would prove all five charges against the defendant; this court finds that this was not accomplished.

"This decision in favor of the defense was reached by a roll call vote of 4-1-0 on the petition of complaint."

Dissenting Opinion

However, one justice, Tom Cosgrove, seemed to hear the case in the light which Woodworth's attorney, Russ Jobin, apparently meant it, stating in his report, "According to the law, everyone is entitled the right of due process, and I feel the Senate could have taken more time and used better judgement on the dismissal of Woodworth.

Jobin asked for a mistrial on the grounds that inadmissible evidence was used.

"The letter that was supposedly sent to Mr. Woodworth telling him of the charges was accepted by the Court as evidence, and there was no proof that this letter was sent except for hearsay from (Dean of Men Richard) Robinson."

Jobin also pointed out that the Court was basing its decision on Woodworth's eligibility and not the real case, which was lack of legal due process.

Woodworth said in his own behalf that the job of the Court was to render a fair verdict, free of bias, but the decision was not free of prejudice and some of the justices had come into this trial with their minds already made up. "I think the entire Court proceeding was a farce," he commented.

After retiring to Dean Robinson's office, because of protesting students refusing to leave the room over the Court's decision, the justices denied Jobin's plea for a mistrial.

Woodworth's next step was going to the Board of Trustees meeting Tuesday night. He was there not to ask for a reversal of the Court's decision, for it had already said the Board had no power to reverse such a decision, but to form

TM Publication Cut; Two-Page Editions Set

Because of a lack of funds, Talon Marks will go on schedule alternating two-and four-page papers from now until the end of the semester.

The paper has been authorized to print only the following editions: today, May 1, two pages; next week, May 8, four pages; May 15, two pages; May 22, four pages; June 1, two pages.

TM adviser William T. Lucas attributed the cutback to unexpectedly high printing costs. "I wasn't able to get an offset printer, at considerable reduction in cost, as I had expected," he said.

"This fact," said Lucas, "together with the fact that we used far fewer ads, produced more pages and ran more issues in the past two semesters than was anticipated made the situation inevitable."

The newspaper budget for 1968-70, submitted to the ASCC Budget Committee in March of 1969, allocated $10,800 to TM for printing costs. When the budget went to the Senate that figure was amended, with the approval of the TM adviser, to $10,355.

However, because the bid from the firm which prints the newspaper was higher than expected those funds ran out with the April 24 issue.

A bill recommended by the Senate Budget Committee and passed by the Senate April 22 allocated a further $985, which will pay only for the editions detailed above.

Sen. Darryl Jackman, member of the committee and a former executive editor of Talon Marks, had the following comment to make when questioned on the action:

"I feel that last year's budget was not handled correctly. If possible complications at the end of the year had been foreseen, this situation could have been eliminated before it arose."

When asked what effect he felt the cutback would have on the quality of TM Sen. Jackman replied that it should not have any effect.

"A good staff can put out a two-page paper as well as a four-page one. Besides, it will give an overworked staff a rest."

"This situation," according to current TM executive editor Suzanne Nicassio, "should never arise. The entire staff feels very strongly that the school is being hurt by this cutback."

"It is the job of a newspaper to get information to its audience, to entertain them and most important, to make them aware that they are an integral part of a larger community. The staff of TM will continue to do this job to the best of its ability, no matter how personally unhappy we may be with the situation."

Speaker Controversy Continues

Board Rejects Appeal: Omnibus To Sue College

By SUZANNE NICASSIO

Omnibus President Karl Leggett announced plans to file suit against the college after a stormy Board of Trustees meeting Tuesday night during which the Board upheld the administration's rejection of Communist speaker Dorothy Healey.

Board President Harold Tredway, in indicating the trustees' unanimous support of the administration's action, stated, "I personally do not believe that we should permit a person to speak who would advocate the overthrow of the government by force or violence."

"We're not stopping here," announced Leggett. "The Board was our third level of appeal—next level is County Superior Court."

"The American Civil Liberties Union has advised us," said Leggett, "that if we go to court we will not only sue to overturn the decision but will also sue for punitive damages to cover court and lawyer's fees."

In a telephone interview on Monday Mrs. Healey, a former chairman of the California Communist Party, referred to what she called "an obvious contempt on the part of the administration for the intellectual level of the students."

Mrs. Healey said that she has spoken at dozens and dozens of schools in Southern California and had never been considered "injurious to the general welfare" of a campus before. (In a published statement, Dr. Stuart Bundy, vice president of instruction, had used this phrase in referring to her rejection as a speaker.)

Mrs. Healey quoted John Stuart Mill: "One who knows only his own side of a question knows little even of that. Nor is it enough that he should hear the arguments of adversaries from his own teachers, presented as they state them and accompanied by what they offer as refutation. . . . He must be able to hear them from persons who actually believe; who defend them in earnest and do their very utmost for them."

Mrs. Healey has a call-in radio program on station KPFF-FM on Monday night from 11 until 12 midnight. She plans to discuss the Cerritos question on her program Monday night.

Several students and faculty members presented the Board with arguments in favor of Mrs. Healey's application.

Leggett while asking the Board for either a reversal of the administration ruling or some explanation for the refusal, stressed the fact that the students were willing and indeed anxious to pursue their aims through proper channels.

Leggett admitted their right to rule by decree but stated that "it is verging on despotism not to submit reason to the light of argument."

Howard Tashitz, faculty adviser to the Society, then read aloud a paragraph from a letter presented to Tredway. The letter stressed the necessity of a free exchange of ideas on a wide spectrum of knowledge in an academic environment if students are to make any positive contribution to our society.

Tashitz expressed apprehension at the "limitless nature of the rejection" and pointed out a need for more specific grounds. He stated that, in his opinion,

Capacity Crowd Hears Chicago Eight Lawyer

By BEN DICKSON
Associate Editor

"We were trained, you and I, in the years beginning in 1954 that the federal courts were places where one could go to obtain an authoritative decision of justice."

Mike Tigar, former Chicago Eight defense lawyer, went on Tuesday to explain why he felt that this justice was unobtainable for members of minority groups.

Tigar addressed a capacity crowd in I.H.I on the topic of "The Conspiracy Trial of the Chicago Eight and Its Impact on America." He briefly described the trial and pointed out many of what he called the "injustices" of that trial.

These "injustices" included the refusal to dismiss the case on the grounds of the unconstitutionality of the conspiracy laws, the denial of Bobby Seale's request to represent himself and cross-examine witnesses, and the binding and gagging of Seale.

Conspiracy Laws

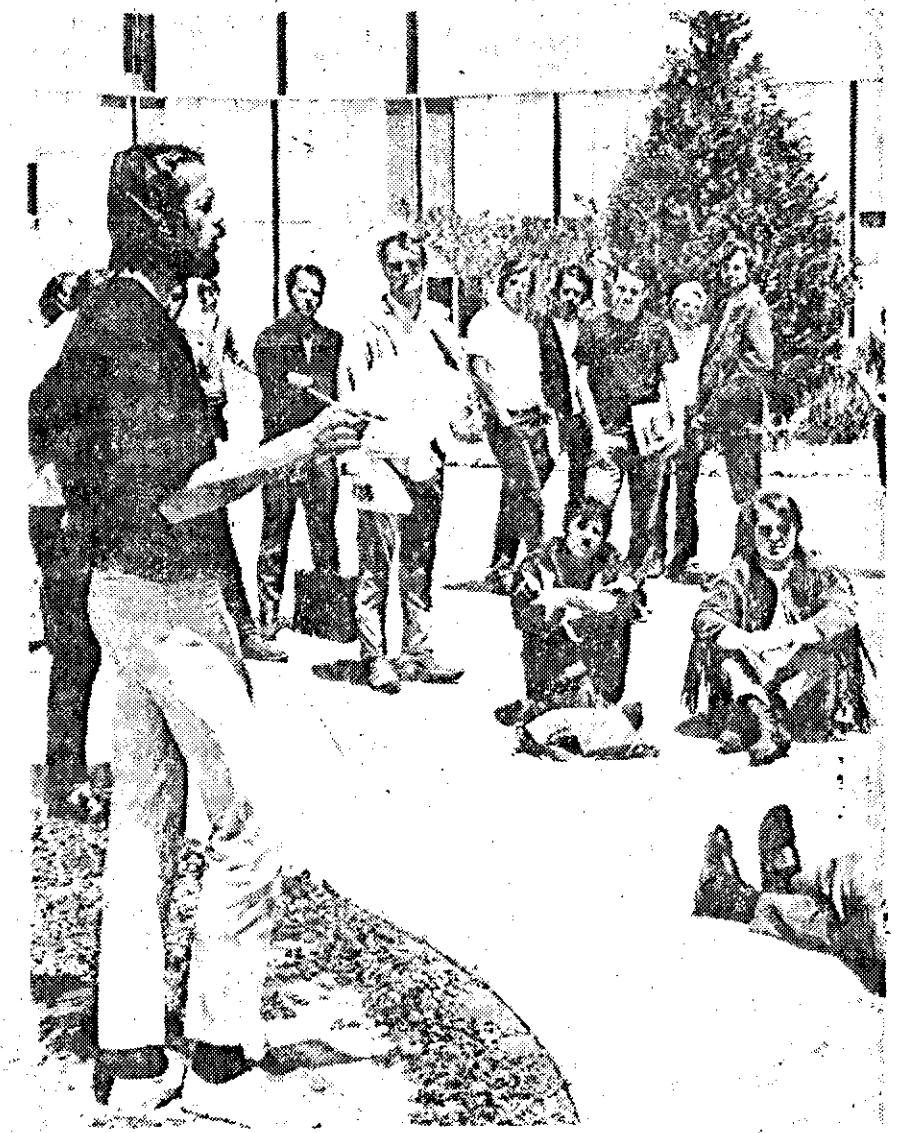

The laws concerning conspiracy, Tigar said, are so broad and so vague that almost any act can be defined as conspiracy and almost anyone can be subject to prosecution.

For this reason, Tigar explained, the Chicago Eight defense committee felt that the laws were unconstitutional and that there were no grounds on which to prosecute the defendants.

Tigar complained that the defense was not furnished with all the evidence legally available to the Chicago Eight. This brought him to the topic of electronic surveillance. He claimed that the prosecution had "three little envelopes" which the defense acquired which contained evidence gained from "illegal electronic surveillance."

"However," Tigar said, "there were five big envelopes which we couldn't get." He explained that wire-tap information illegally gathered must legally be made available to the defense and that court rulings had found wire-tapping illegal. The information, he said, that was contained in the "five big envelopes" was wire-tap information and should have been made available to the defense.

According to Tigar, the fight that he is involved in, that of "changing society," requires dedicated people. "It's not a lawn party we're engaged in," he said. "We're engaged in serious business."

Students Talk in Quad At 'Noon Rap Session'

Tuesday a "Noon Rap Session" was held under the Falcon statue in the Quad. Speakers included President of Omnibus Society Karl Leggett, Omnibus Vice-President Stephen Goff, ex-Senator George Woodworth and Sen. Russ Jobin.

Goff spoke first. He talked of Omnibus' fight to get Mrs. Dorothy Healey approved to speak on campus, explaining that "we're through compromising."

Following Goff, Woodworth spoke on the decision and appeal of his recent hearing claiming that he was tried by "kangaroo court."

Jobin, as Woodworth's attorney in that ASCC Supreme Court case, spoke next of "all the repressive acts that have been happening here for a long time." He traced battles that Omnibus Society has had with the administration in the past, talked of the arrest of the "Norwalk Four" last spring and of the Woodworth case.

Leggett spoke again on the Mrs. Healey appeal which would go to the Board of Trustees that night and answered a few questions from the crowd.

Among others who spoke briefly clarifying points, interjecting opinions and asking questions were Sen. Larry Wright, Mike Darrah and Jill Furillo.

The listeners were greatest in number at 1:30 p.m. during Leggett's speech. Over 120 persons had gathered around the base of the Falcon and the Alma Mater Plaque by that time.

The "rap session" broke off a little before 2 p.m. as concerned students wished to be on time for the convening of the ASCC Court to hear Woodworth's appeal.

Birds Hold On To Whip FJC

The Fullerton Hornets did everything but win last Wednesday as the Falcons held on for an 8-5 win on Falcon Field.

The Hornets pounded freshman right-hander Dave Brunell and sophomore Gary Addeo for 14 hits but failed to get a couple when they had the runners on board. They stranded 14 base runners during the first eight innings before Don Highstreet shut the door on the upset-minded Hornets in the ninth.

The Birds attack was led by Carlos Hernandez who banged out three singles including one in the second inning when the Falcons scored five times.

With the score 1-0 in the second the Falcons made their move. Jack Tedesco ripped a double down the leftfield line and moved to third on a bunt single by leftfielder Steve Herter. Following Jim Musick's ground out, pitcher Brunell boomed a 400-ft. plus double off the base of the centerfield wall to make the score 3-0. Steve Staggs walked to put runners on first and second and send Ron Diggle to the plate. The Falcon centerfielder promptly doubled to score Brunell. Hernandez then singled to load the bases for clean-up hitter Tim Steele. Steele hammered a single to score two more runs and the Falcons had a 6-0 bulge.

The Falcons scored again in the fourth on Diggle's and Hernandez's back to back singles and Dave Snow's sacrifice fly.

Staggs tripled over the centerfielder's head to start the sixth inning and scored on Hernandez's single to finish off the Falcons scoring.

This was the final league contest for the champion Falcons who ended up their regular season record with a 34-1 won-lost record. The Falcons now must await word on their possible playoff opponents as the state tournament begins in earnest next week.

Three Entered in State Swim Meet

Swimming coach Pat Tyne took three Cerritos College swimmers to the state championships yesterday at Orange Coast following an 11th place finish at the Southern California meet last week. The meet lasts through Saturday.

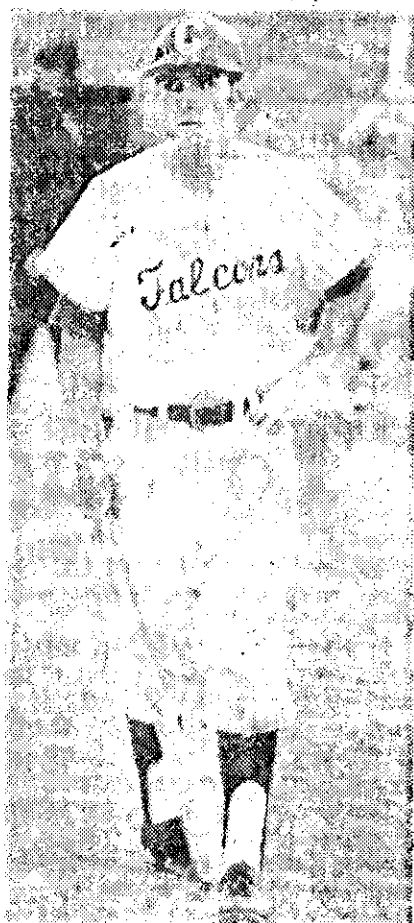

Swimmers competing for Cerritos will be Mike Morales, Steve Oliver and Reed Taylor.

Last week Cerritos finished 11th in Southern California behind champion Long Beach. Morales, swimming his fastest time of the year, was the top performer, finishing second in the 1,600-yard freestyle in 17:50.

The other two Cerritos qualifiers were Oliver in the 200 backstroke (seventh, 2:10) also his fastest time) and Reed in the breaststroke.

"I think all of them can score points for us," said Tyne, adding that the Southern California meet was one of the strongest "in the last few years."

Spikers 'Conk Out' in Relays; SCC Finals Begin in San Diego

Last weekend the Cerritos track team traveled to Mt. SAC for the Mt. SAC Relay but found the going pretty rough. A series of sub-par performances killed the Falcons, as they didn't produce a single winner all weekend.

The Cerritos two-mile and distance medley relay teams both suffered fourth place finishes for the meet as half-miler Curt Hain had a below-average night.

The Falcons were also hurt as Kevin Johnson, the 1969 Metropolitan Conference champ in the discus throw, also had an off night.

Bright Spots

There were a couple of bright spots for the Cerritos sprinters, however, as Dennis Ruby, a 155-pound sophomore, turned in his best lifetime effort, running the intermediate hurdles in 54.9. The 880-yard relay team also turned in its best effort of the year with a time of 1:29.4. Unfortunately, the performances came against some of the best competition around.

Kenneth Engle, a freshman from Oklahoma where he was the state discus champ, also turned in a lifetime best with a throw of 152 feet.

With the Mt. SAC Relays out of the way, the Falcons prepared to do battle in the South Coast Conference track and field prelims at San Diego's Balboa Stadium. The SCC finals will be held Saturday starting at 1:30.

The top five qualifiers in each event will progress to the Southern California meet on May 13 and 16 at Bakersfield.

Mount San Antonio College is expected to dominate the meet, as many of the coaches in the conference consider the Mounties the strongest team in the state.

Falcon coach Dave Kamanski said of the Mounties, "They'll probably score more points than the rest of the teams combined."

Last year's top performer, Bob Ballard, is still being bothered by muscle cramps. Last year Ballard won the 100 in the Southern California Championships with a 9.8 mark, with the second through fourth place finishes coming in at 9.7.

Coach Kamanski has appealed to the conference committee to let Ballard pass the conference meet and qualify automatically for the Southern California meet. But even if he is allowed to qualify, he might not be able to run then.

Road to the Top Has Been Quite A Rocky One for Carlos Hernandez

By GARY ADDEO

With a batting average and a glove like Maury Wills, he steps into the batting cage. He promptly rips the first two pitches to the wall. On the next pitch he takes a shot to right and sprints to first base.

He has helped the Falcons baseball team get where they are today. His name is Carlos Hernandez.

After having eligibility problems last year and not being able to play, he has overcome the disappointment by being one of the mainstays of the Falcon team this year. Hernandez has indeed improved in many ways.

So far this year Hernandez has been terrifying all the pitchers he has faced. He is hitting close to .300 with 40 hits in 134 at bats.

He has a short and stocky build, but he hits with extreme power. He has hit nine doubles, three triples and has a homerun. In the RBI department he is fourth on the club with 28.

Hernandez has many fine qualities—a good arm, a quick bat, smooth fielding ability and two swift legs. For the year he has 10 stolen bases, third highest on the club.

In the fielding department Hernandez can't be matched. He has only made seven errors although handling countless opportunities. He also is an expert on turning the double play.

Hernandez started the year at third base with a freshman named Rick Burleson at shortstop. But a major league contract took Burleson from the Falcons, and Hernandez immediately moved to shortstop. The move paid off as Hernandez filled the hole perfectly and found no problems in adjusting to the new position.

According to Hernandez, this has been a most satisfying year for him. "It really irked me and not being able to play on last year's team, but this year has made up for it."

After last year's disappointment, Hernandez played ball during the summer. He says today that this kept him going and helped him regain his confidence. "It was awful hard to watch the games last year knowing that I couldn't participate," he said.

With the state playoffs coming up, Hernandez feels strongly of the Falcon chances to capture the state championship. "I feel that we can win them all if we play our type of baseball."

Bomb Dons 12-2, 4-0 To Wrap Up League

By BILL HECHT

Wally Kincaid and his amazing Falcons wrapped up the first South Coast Conference baseball title Saturday afternoon by sweeping a double-header from the hapless Santa Ana Dons 12-2 and 4-0.

The first game saw veteran southpaw Cliff Vaudreuil gain his ninth win without a loss with an 11 strikeout-five hit job against the Dons. In the second game freshman Don Highstreet got an unusual starting assignment and rewarded Kincaid with a nifty four-hit shutout.

Vaudreuil got plenty of support in the first game as the Falcons banged out 14 hits in the lopsided contest that saw Kincaid substitute at will.

Diggle Scores

Don Diggle started the Falcon scoring parade in the first inning with one out when he laced a single, stole second and came home on Tim Steele's line drive base hit.

Don pitcher Dan Duereene then put down the Falcons with ease until the fourth inning when the Birds scored again thanks to an error by Don rightfielder Cesar Perez. Perez misplayed Dave Snow's fly ball, which allowed Carlos Hernandez to scamper to third, where he eventually came round to score on Jack Tedesco's single.

The Falcons scored another unearned run off Duereene in the fifth on some fine baserunning by Steve Staggs. Staggs walked and then played Murph the Surf by stealing second and third off the startled Duereene and scored when shortstop Ken Emery booted Steele's ground ball.

The Falcons iced the game in the seventh inning by blasting Duereene from the box with a three-run output. Vaudreuil and Staggs put together back-to-back doubles and Diggle a run-scoring single for two runs, with Diggle eventually scoring on Hernandez's flyball to leftfield.

Insurance Runs

As if Vaudreuil needed any more help his teammates gave him some more insurance runs in the eighth mainly on Hernandez's triple which produced his fourth RBI of the game. Preceding Hernandez's triple were singles by Frank Davies and Vaudreuil which sandwiched in a walk by stocky catcher Jim Schroeder. Diggle had previously rapped a single to set the stage for Hernandez.

The only blemish on the pitching performance of Vaudreuil was a seventh inning two-run homerun by Don catcher Gary Henson. Other than that it was all Vaudreuil as the Dons failed to muster any kind of a threat.

Highstreet came on strong in the second game in one of his rare starts. The lanky freshman from Gahr, who had previously pitched a no-hitter in the beginning of the year but since has had to settle for bullpen duty, limited the Dons to just four hits in posting his fourth win of the season. Highstreet had two streaks of 10 outs in a row to thwart any kind of uprising the Dons have figured on.

The only run that Highstreet needed came in the second inning when after a Steele double, Tedesco responded with a line single to put the Birds on top 1-0.

They scored again in the third when with one out Staggs reached first on an error by third baseman Ron Barnett. Diggle then lashed a double to score Staggs and then scored himself on a single by Steele.

Final Run

The Falcons scored their final run in the fifth on a booming homerun by Staggs. It marked his fifth moon shot of the year, well ahead of any other Falcon.

Meanwhile Highstreet was setting the Dons down with ease by striking out six and walking two.

The Falcons now must await word on who they play in the state playoffs. At press time it looked as if their probable opponent will be LACC, winners of the Southern California Conference whom the Birds have beaten three times already this year. Also in the playoffs from Southern California are either Long Beach City College or Bakersfield, both involved in a torrid finish in the Metro Conference.

Court Finds For Senate ...

was defense attorney Steve Berardino's comments on the case, as given to the Liberator, a Norwalk newspaper. Berardino rescinded his action as defense attorney because he felt that Woodworth was not given a fair and impartial hearing and that the hearing merely reflected a victory for him as a debater, not as being fair. "The Court cannot be expected to know everything," stated Berardino. "But it was obvious that certain people and certain prejudices." The George Woodworth vs. ASCC Senate case is over, but the controversy still grows.

Speaker Rejected ...

Mrs. Healey's presentation would have great educational value to the students. Although there was no formal vote on the question, several Board members expressed their feelings on the issue.

A. E. Sommer upheld the rejection, pointing out the "balance of power" between students and administrators. "You have the power to request speakers, and we have the power to deny them."

John A. Nordbak stated that he supported the administration on this issue since it is "a question of the judgment of educators on a question of educational merit. I have confidence in the judgment of our administrators."

To Leggett's repeated request for a statement of reasons for the rejection, Tredway stated, "We don't have to give any reasons since we are not overruling the decision of the administration."

Tredway said that he was amazed that the Board should be accused of intolerance in this manner when the person invited to speak was "an advocate of the most repressive and intolerant system of government the world has ever known."

Speech instructor Ron Tabor granted the repressive nature of communism but proposed that the problem in the issue was the basis on which the decision to refuse Mrs. Healey's right to speak was to be made.

The students, Tabor stated, were arguing their case from a classic liberation tradition and were on the side of freedom of the individual. He questioned the Board's moral right to refuse an explanation.

"I teach and preach free inquiry and a respect for such inquiry. I will have a difficult time doing so if this request is refused," he said.
