Senator John Tunney spoke at a McGovern-Shriver Unity Rally at the Cerritos student center Saturday evening.

"I really do not believe that the American people are disconcerted with the Watergate break-in," Tunney said.

"All the evidence points to Nixon and the boys in the White House. You know one thing, McGovern doesn't have secret funds that are in Maurice Stans' secret safe to pay off criminals in his office," Tunney said.

"The most surprising thing of all, is that Nixon went into the White House as a law and order man, and now we are witnessing political espionage in the highest degree," Tunney said.

"The most appalling thing is, I really don't believe that we will ever see any of those people prosecuted. But you can bet one thing for sure. If you or I had broken into the Watergate with electronic surveillance equipment in the middle of the night, we'd be behind bars right now," Tunney said.

Democratic Congressman Chet Holifield from the 19th Congressional District also spoke at the rally.

"As Dean of the California Delegation, I have enjoyed working with John Tunney. He served in the House for six years," Holifield said.

"I noticed the ability this man had, and I used the influence that I have to make sure he got on some important committees," Holifield said.

"John Tunney has done an excellent job. He has supported me and I like to consider him one of my boys," Holifield said.

"Chet is one of the most important men on Capitol Hill. I believe he should be considered for speakership," Tunney said.

"People can depend on Chet. If you want something done, ask Chet. He responds. If you haven't solved your problems, you haven't asked, Chet," Tunney said.

"I'm glad to share the platform with such a popular man as Assemblyman Joe Gonsalves," Tunney said.

"The polls show he will be taking 70 per cent of the vote. In two years, I'll be running on his coattails," Tunney said.

"When I decided to run for senate, Joe was the first, if not the first, the second man to support me. And that was important in those early days of the campaign as we tried to drum up some support," Tunney said.

Actress Susan Saint James was also present with her new born baby, Sunshine. Saint James asked for donations for the McGovern-Shriver campaign.

Donna DeVarona, the two time Olympic gold medal winner acted as mistress of ceremonies.

TUNNEY SPEAKS OUT — U.S. Senator John Tunney was a guest speaker in a McGovern for President rally here last weekend. Tunney spoke out against the war in Viet Nam to a near capacity crowd in the student center. This marked Tunney's first appearance in the Norwalk area in more than two years.

Officials Plan for Next Year's Budget

An increase of $275,000 in the school budget has been recommended by the board of trustees.

This increase is for operation costs so that "we can continue what we are doing this year," said Dr. Wilford Michael, assistant superintendent for business services.

Salary increases and retirement benefits that accompany the pay hikes make up most of the increase, Michael said.

Plans for the 1973-74 budget are now being prepared.

The budget officers of the different divisions are starting to prepare their budget requirements for the next year.

These requirements will be to the business office on a budget request form. These are due in by January 8 according to a budget calendar.

The tentative budget must be filed with the county superintendent of schools by July 1. 40 per cent of the schools comes from local funds. The other 60 per cent comes from the state legislature.

Before August 7 there will be a public meeting to discuss the budget. The board of trustees will consider any recommendations made at the meeting before adopting the final budget.

The budget will then go to the County Superintendent of Schools who will file copies of the board of supervisors, the County Auditor and the Chancellor of California Junior Colleges.

Polls Indicate Voters Ignorant of Big Issues

By FRANK DALY
TM News Editor

"Gross ignorance" of the issues prevented many voters from making good decisions at the polls in yesterday's presidential election, according to Marv Gray, commentator for KABC news.

Gray, in an exclusive interview with TM, said, "People are constantly blaming the government for doing things they don't approve of, yet they are not interested enough in what is going on."

Gray recently commented on two polls taken in Arizona and California saying they show a large number of people are not interested enough to vote competently on major issues on the ballot.

The first poll, taken by students of Arizona State University was designed to show people's knowledge of the Vietnam war.

They found that one fourth of these polled could not pick out South Vietnam on an Indochina map, and didn't know Saigon was the capital of the Republic; less than ten per cent didn't know one North Vietnamese leader; and one third couldn't identify a single ally of the United States.

The second poll included all of California, and was taken to show how many people were familiar with propositions on the California ballot.

The poll showed that 74 per cent were unaware that the Marijuana initiative, Proposition 19, was on the ballot. Of those who knew, 60 per cent said they were against it, and 37 per cent were for passing it.

Those who were not aware of the initiative were informed of the basic provisions. Of the 74 per cent who were unfamiliar with proposition 19, 73 per cent said they were against passage and 27 per cent were for it, according to Gray.

"If the people would have just taken a look at the sample ballot book. They would have learned that each proposition was about. It explains it in simple english—what will happen if it fails, and what will happen if it passes," Gray said.

Gray believes that people will vote for the propositions according to the way it will affect them, not the way it will affect the American people in general.

Many parents voted for the marijuana initiative because passage of the bill would be for their children's welfare, according to Gray.

"I believe many parents voted for the marijuana initiative because they were afraid their sons and daughters would end up in jail eventually; not because they were for passing it. They felt it was for their welfare to pass it," he said.

Prior to election time, McGovern and Nixon stepped up their television campaign to reach the American people. According to Gray, this did not have a large effect on the way in which they voted.

"T.V. commercials have a negative rather than positive effect on the people. They only reinforce what the people believe all ready. I don't think it changes their mind," he said.

The American people want Nixon because he is not out of step with their way of thinking, according to Gray.

"The people want to keep charisma in the United States; I don't think they voted for Nixon because he has charisma, but because his views are more compatible with theirs."

Cabinet Adopts New Movie Policy

"No second showing of a film will be scheduled prior to 10 p.m." is the new policy for presenting films sponsored by the Associated Students of Cerritos College.

The new policy was adopted by the ASCC Cabinet Monday at the weekly cabinet meeting.

This action was taken to allow "an opportunity for all students to see the films," Larry Baker, ASCC president said.

Each film is presented twice on a scheduled evening. Last year the second showing was started during evening classes, which did not allow evening students an opportunity to view the film.

Unless the second showing is at 10 p.m. "some students will never be able to see a film on this campus," Baker said.

Filled to Capacity

"Last spring, the theatre was always filled, no matter when it showed," Richard Robinson, Dean of Student Activities said. "You're never going to please all of the people all of the time," Gray said.

"Only daytime students can see the movie now," Baker said.

A certificated employee is needed to stay in the Burnight Center until the movie is over to close the building.

With the second showing starting no earlier than 10 p.m. the certificated employee would have to stay on campus until midnight or as late as 1 a.m.

Robinson, as dean of student activities, has in the past managed the movies and was the person responsible for closing the building.

In the Morning

"I can't blame him (Robinson) for not wanting to stay to 1:30 in the morning when he has to be back at work at eight in the morning," Baker said.

Asked if he would be willing to stay until the early morning, Robinson said, "I'd have to look at the whole thing and reappraise the situation."

The cabinet then proceeded to discuss what action should be taken if Robinson would decide not to attend the program

Possible Managers

Don McCain, dean of student affairs, was mentioned as a possible manager to be paid for staying in the Burnight Center to close the building.

Asked if he would consider taking pay for staying on campus for such a function, McCain said, "I'll do anything if the price is right. It really depends on what decision the cabinet makes. Along with what Mr. Robinson and Mr. Siriani, my boss, says."

"If it's needed to carry out a program, I'll do it," McCain said.

Asked if he would consider letting an instructor act as manager, Robinson said, "I wouldn't put a teacher in charge of the program. I don't think they should have to put up with the abuse people come up with."

"They smoke in the auditorium, and they get very hostile. The people start pushing and shoving. If I ask to see their brown card, they start calling names," Robinson said.

"I wonder sometimes, if it's worth it," Robinson said.

Scheduled Movies

The movies that are set to be shown are "Ryan's Daughter" on Feb. 21, "Charly" March 14, "They Shoot Horses Don't They?" on March 27, "My Fair Lady" on April 5 and "Cool Hand Luke" on May 3.

"Winning" is tentatively scheduled for showing on May 3 but may be released with a less expensive film, should the cabinet decide to pay a certificated employee.

Foreign Students Face Language Barrier

By BOB HANSEN
TM Staff Writer

The following is the last of a three part series on minority groups at Cerritos College and their relationship to other students on campus.

To be a "Stranger in a Strange Land", and struggling for an education.

To be hustled from class to class, assignment to assignment and not be able to speak the language.

To be a part of a minority with few rights, lack of real assistance and lost in the customs of the environment.

To be a foreign student, filled with problems, frustrations and accomplishments.

Attending Cerritos College this year are 95 persons from 24 foreign countries. Attending are 95 people living and competing on a foreign campus. And through these people lie not only a chance for self improvement but the opportunity for each individual on the campus to share ideas with those whose experiences differ greatly.

Amir Menhadji is one of these students. Amir, whose home is in Iran, is studying Accounting. "In Iran," said Amir, "it is very hard to be accepted." Of the approximately 3000 students who apply for the universities, about 300 are accepted, according to Amir. Having been in California since June of '71, the Persian student has found that there are basically two main problems which face the average foreign student.

The first and most obvious is the difficulties of not with the English language could be fatal. Perhaps one knowing the language. Since so much of school is involved with reading and communicating, to fumble may learn at the Language Center in Los Angeles, as he did, but most take cram courses in the streets day after day.

The second, according to Amir, is that of money. To attend Cerritos, the foreign student must pay $25 per unit. Many of the foreign people must take on jobs to pay for this additional expense as well as that of living costs.

Amir pointed out that while in America he has tried to adapt and somewhat copy the customs. "It's really hard to live with Persian custom" he said. It's almost a "when in Rome do as the Romans" as the foreign students must not only adapt but accept the sometimes strange ways.

But the 24 year old Amir Menhadji, now taking 20 units, has become successful. Like many, he has learned to cope with the problems of living in a foreign country, and has come out on top to earn an education.

Unlike other special groups on campus, the foreign students have no large group or organization to which they can turn. If one of these people can't handle a class due to language, for example, there is really no one that can be called for aid.

This minority on campus is a special resource. For these people, living in the "land of the free," are a pool of thoughts and ideas whereby each of us (majority) can learn some very special lessons. Not a classroom experience by any means, but a living experience with people who have lived in two worlds.

Nixon Signs V.A. Pay Bill

Veterans attending Cerritos College who have received their benefits may have noticed a large increase in payments. This is due to the recent pay hike which went into effect October 25 (retroactive from September 1) when President Nixon signed the bill approved by Congress.

The law increases monthly payments from $175 to $220 for single veterans, an increase of 26 per cent; from $205 to $261 for married veterans attending school full time, a 27 per cent increase, and from $230 to $298 for a married veteran with one dependent. An additional $18 is given for each child thereafter.

Not only will the bill increase veteran payments, but checks will arrive a month in advance. Instead of at the end of each month, Veterans are presently getting checks for September, October and November.

The law also authorizes $25 million a year to be paid over the next seven years for grants to be used for eight medical schools. Most of the coast will be paid by state governments but V.A. land and hospitals sites will be used for the projects.

The new law will also grant $50 million a year for seven years to expand state medical schools and for aid to the health services field in colleges.

Cerritos College recently changed its system of veteran registration to speed up the process of getting checks to those eligible.

The system eliminates attendance verification and allows veterans to receive their checks a month earlier, according to Donna Martin school veteran representative.

Eventually the new computer PDP 10 will be used to aid the administration in handling paperwork.

Stoned Thinking Comes Naturally

Heads and straights. For a long time, people have used these words to describe the way another person's mind works, yet nobody has ever gotten around to defining the words. "Head" is usually associated with an open mind and a sense of freedom, while "straight" is often connected with prejudice and narrow-mindedness.

In the end, however, the difference commonly boils down to the person's attitude about drugs. If he smokes dope, he's a head; if he doesn't, he's straight.

"The fact is that all of us spend time in non-ordinary states of consciousness whether we use drugs or not," according to Andrew Weil in his book The Natural Mind. "The trouble is, simply, that most of us have been discouraged from maintaining continuous awareness of these states. Thus, many of us get locked into ordinary consciousness, but no one lacks the key to freedom."

Weil has studied drugs from the point of view of a journalist, an ethnobotanist, a physician, a laboratory pharmacologist, a drug abuse expert, a federal government employee, and - most significantly - as a user. It is from his studies and his own experience that his important concepts of "straight" and "stoned" thinking emerge.

Straight Thinking

Straight thinking, which Weil defines as "ordinary thinking," has easily identifiable characteristics: a tendency to know things through the intellect rather than some other faculty of the mind, a tendency to be attached to the senses and through them to external reality, and a tendency to pay attention to outward forms rather than to inner contents and thus lapse into materialism.

Also noticeable to Weil is a tendency to perceive differences rather than similarities among phenomena, as well as a tendency toward negative thinking, pessimism, and despair.

Stoned thinking, according to Weil, is a mirror image of straight thinking. "It is not a foreign thing that must be learned; it develops spontaneously as we unlearn habitual ways of using the mind."

One of the vital characteristics of a stoned thinker is a reliance on intuition as well as intellect. Weil calls these intuitive flashes "transient, spontaneous altered states of consciousness consisting of particular sensory experiences coupled with strong emotional reactions."

Everyone has had the experience of suddenly "knowing" that this particular effort would work out, or perhaps that this particular person would be special. Only the stoned thinker, however, can accept these instincts - the intellect cannot explain the association.

Ambivalent Nature

Another quality of the stoned thinker is his acceptance of the ambivalent nature of things. Weil points out that "the idea that reality manifests itself in the guise of pairs of opposites is a very old one." A classic example is the Garden of Eden, where it takes the form of the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

Ordinary consciousness, according to Weil, cannot accept this, while stoned consciousness can. In altered states of consciousness (and Weil emphasizes natural alteration), one can often "experience pairs of opposites simultaneously - heat and cold, love and hate, good and bad - and finds the experience very worthwhile."

Finally, the stoned thinker can experience infinity in its positive state. "Whether we know it or not," according to Weil, "many of us have experienced infinity, but to ordinary consciousness this event is intensely frightening."

Effects of Drugs

Although The Natural Mind explores the effects of drugs in the "stoned thinking" process, Weil points out that people will find their use unnecessary. He says that "When we finally confront the antagonistic force that drugs symbolizes in our lives and our country; when, instead of running away from it, we let it interact with us, balance will be restored and our society will be on the way to wholeness and health."

Weil has probed the depths of our heads and given us hope for the future. The need for drugs will disappear when we learn to consciously and naturally push back the walls of our mind and let all the light come in.

Voter Ignorance Revealed By Poll

In a poll that was released earlier this week, it was revealed that ignorance of the issues may have prevented many people from making a knowledgeable decision at the polls yesterday.

This is shocking news, in light of the fact that this election, more than any other in history, has sparked more controversy over issues that have been presented on both sides of the political fence.

One of the facts that the poll revealed was that one fourth of those sampled could not find South Vietnam on a map of Indochina. This is inexcusable in view of the fact that nearly 50,000 Americans have given their lives on South Vietnamese soil. It seems only reasonable that most people would at least know where the country we're fighting for is.

It also was learned that less than ten per cent of those polled didn't even know the name of one North Vietnamese leader. Anyone who watches the six o'clock news, and has the mentality of high school student should, with no difficulty at all, be able to name one North Vietnamese leader.

One third of the people who were polled were unable to identify one single ally of the United States. This is shocking. Anyone who has been through any kind of a U.S. History class, whether in high school or college should be able to name at least one ally, or their time in school must have been wasted.

Even more shocking is the fact that 74% of those polled were not even aware of Proposition 19, the Marijuana Initiative. With all the publicity that has been generated over the subject of marijuana it's unbelievable that that many people can be so naive or just plain stupid.

With the overwhelming interest that has been generated in this election both on a national level and a local and state level it seems inconceivable that a large percentage of people can remain so ignorant of the issues. It would seem if one thing were true about this election, it was that there was an overabundance of issues that were discussed.

The United States is still engaged in a war in Southeast Asia, and it seems inexcusable that a large majority would be unaware for who our allies are and where the country is that we are fighting for.

'Damn Good Education'

Innovations In Recruiting

By LARRY BAKER
TM Staff Writer

Amidst the generally frantic rush for prospective students for University of California campuses, there now appears to be that proverbial "breath of fresh air," an "oasis," and apparently it is here out of desperation.

The Riverside campus of UC is faced this year with a deep crisis due to a severe enrollment drop, and has instituted some rather daring programs in order to increase its student population.

According to an article in Sunday's Los Angeles Times, the campus has employed a young, brash assistant vice chancellor for undergraduate development named Ken Suid.

Suid, who came to UCR from Immaculate Heart College, has brought about quite a few unorthodox and innovative changes in Riverside's recruitment procedures.

How many schools, for instance, send out hundreds of posters proclaiming, "The most important thing we have to offer is a damn good education." There would have to be a pretty grave crisis at Cerritos to see that kind of public relations material.

Not only did UCR have posters with that slogan, but fortune cookies, which were passed out to high schoolers. Could you see Don Siriani passing out cookies to prospective students?

Boring Riverside catalogues have been replaced with cards, "the UCR deck," with such information as "Riverside summers are hot with too much smog." They believe in laying it on the line, admitting that they are not perfect. Other schools often try to hide such obvious facts in efforts to increase enrollment. Perhaps UCR figures that they will be trusted if they tell the truth right off.

Advantages, of course, are not precluded in their propaganda. Emphasized are the moderate size and freedom of movement, the outstanding teacher-student ratio, (1-15, as compared to 1-19 at other UC schools), and good student-student relations.

Also in their deck of cards are such informal phrases as "Six months ago, I couldn't even spell biokemust and now I am wun!" Corny, but informal.

Some of the more stuffy faculty members, like a certain biochemistry professor, do not particularly care for this new tack. However, even with a few protests against "four-letter words," referring to the posters, the response to the program has been favorable.

You've got to admit, it's more colorful than extending registration a week.

It is indeed refreshing, to me at least, to gain a respite from the high-pressure tactics of our institutions of higher learning. In fact, I may even go to UCR because of it, although I prefer almond cookies to fortune cookies.

Jesus Freaks Ignore Hints

By MIKE NAKULAK
TM Staff Writer

Jesus loves me! How do I know? Well every time I happen to be sitting on a bench by myself between classes some soul-saving Christian approaches me and tells me so.

What a relief! I always feel so much better after I hear this.

My God, I mean my goodness, just because someone is sitting on a bench by himself doesn't mean that he is in need of a Christian, so he can confess his sins.

Why for myself, I'm usually sitting worrying about whether my transmission will hold together. Now if these saviors are good with transmissions let them talk, but otherwise please let me be.

Now don't get me wrong, I don't want to restrict their rights. I believe that they have the right to their beliefs. But how do you tell them you are not interested, and remain polite? It's like having a friend who can't take a hint. Just how do you tell him to go away?

How do you answer to question, "Did you know Jesus loves you?"

I mean this is just another one of those "Do you still beat your wife?" questions. They have you either way.

Then they follow up with their story of how they came to accept Jesus and how it was a sudden moment that made them realize that there is more to living than what we see around us. This is all fine. I have no prejudice against those that aren't, or are religious, or what religion they believe in. What I'm trying to express, is just what our forefathers fought for the freedom of choice in regard to religion.

So now that you have this freedom, please don't try to force it on those who don't want it. If I am to be saved, most likely it will happen the same way it happened to you, not by some well meaning Christian quoting passage after passage from the Bible. Amen!

Great American Whitewash

By DAVE MOFFITT
TM Staff Writer

"Tin soldiers and Nixon coming we're finally on our own, this summer I hear the drumming FOUR DEAD IN OHIO!"
-Neil Young

Lest we forget what happened two and a half years ago, pause a moment. For no matter which view you take, it truly was a tragedy. The death of these four humans was indeed a great loss and the loss would be even greater if we as students forgot our brothers and sisters who were murdered at Kent State.

The whys and the wherefores all are for naught, because in the end four people are dead and the reason for their death could affect you. To say that their death is excusable, should and cannot be tolerated. But as we all have seen the government has given legal license to murder any and all students they see fit to liquidate.

Kent State is set in one of the most beautiful areas of the midwest. It would be the typical college if you were to close your eyes and open your mind. In many ways it is comparable to Cerritos; they have the same amount of students, CC 18,000 KSU 21,000. Kent State draws most of its students from the surrounding area. But most important Kent State used to be called Apathy U. This sounds very familiar to me.

Confrontation between any differing groups is at best a fragile, tense moment. This is especially true when one of the parties involved is the power structure. When one side has the ability to call in an armed force it is indeed a threat to all students. Not only to their lives but to their basic freedoms as students.

In what should be called "The Great American Whitewash" the aftermath at Kent left a bad taste in the mouth of most thinking people. What the government did was give us one of its usual tricks - the old take it or leave it story. What in fact it was saying was, we'll commit genocide on the campuses but when we get caught we don't want you to yell too loud.

What can be done about this? Well the students can start caring about the structure as it exists, now and then the administration can start performing its job and listen to the student so we can enjoy education as it's supposed to be, two way.

Letter

This letter is to complain about the cheap, rude attempt at brainwashing and indoctrination which I witnessed in my political science class. Mr. Moses, my instructor, conducted a three ring circus calculated to embarrass the conservative Republican speaker Del Clawson.

What makes the incident significant was the intrusion of certain well known Young Democrat/McGovern types who are not enrolled in my class. These McGovern types, in the best of mobocratic techniques ranted and raved emotional half truths at Congressman Clawson. Now, is it possible that these Young Democrats ventured into Mr. Moses' class by accident when a conservative speaker chose to visit. Certainly this couldn't have happened because Mr. Moses is a McGovern campaign captain vitally involved in campus politics. At any rate these McGovern campaign stirred some very young, inexperienced students into ridiculous rude attacks upon Congressman Clawson. No attempt at objectivity or even civility was forwarded only SMEAR.

Neo-nihilist anarchism! Gross stupidity! This incident is an embarrassment to reasonable thinkers everywhere! Once again the Young Democrats prove how democratic they really are by preventing an honest, objective examination of Del Clawson's views. Maybe they are afraid of such an evaluation. Mr. Moses' students might find out how full of "hot air" his whole philosophy is and that goes for the Red Guard McGovern types too!

How long will we as students stand for this Brown Shirt rowdism? How long will professionally trained agitators be allowed to embarrass the majority of reasonable, objective students of this college. I feel that Mr. Moses owes Congressman Clawson an explanation for his deliberate actions, and also a full apology. In the name of reason, in the name of humanity, Mr. Moses, you owe this whole school an apology for what you have done.

Recycling Raw Materials

GAP Does 'Bit' for Ecology

"Everybody talks, but nobody does anything about it" is what is usually heard concerning any major problem. But it's not so with the active and enthusiastic clubs of Cerritos.

"They're all currently involved in GAP which stands for glass, aluminum, and paper, respectively. Every day they bring these raw materials to Cerritos to do their 'bit' for ecology. Posters publicly state around the school: 'Bring news paper equal to your height; an aluminum can for every inch of your waist; and glass to equal your weight'."

Keith Adams, coordinator of financial assistance, is head of this money-making event and is very optimistic, not only in bringing money for the school, but to see the students take such an active interest in ecology. He thinks it's worthwhile.

Make a Profit
Profits made by this event, which is called the Sizeable Effort Day, seem to rise monstrously every year from $500 the first time the event was held which was in 1970, to an estimated $2,000 this year.

This wholesome chunk of money goes to the ASCC Breadth Account, which is an Associated Students division of Cerritos. These funds are used for grants, scholarships, and short-term loans, for those ever-so-needy students who could use the money.

Adams visualizes the whole event as something for the kids to "hang on" to. With not much being done nationally about the pollution problem, there's still some hope at Cerritos.

Arduous Club Competition
It also arouses competition between the clubs especially clubs like LDS, the Vets Club, and Circle K. These clubs, Adams feels, seem most enthusiastic. But Adams thinks that even though the Vets Club won in Spring, that the LDS club may triumph over all the other clubs this semester.

"This worthy cause is really for the ecology-minded person, in or outside of the Cerritos district, who will show an active need in cleaning up the waste problem," Adams feels.

Sold to Corporations
The paper, glass and aluminum is sold to big corporations and plants who could use the stuff (kind of like that 1-cent you receive when you turn in an aluminum Coca-Cola can) to recycle. Glass is returned to Owens-Illinois for Over 52 vocational programs are offered to the Cerritos College student this year, ranging from auto shop to computer training.

Richard Whiteman, dean of vocational programs, stated that a great deal of emphasis is placed on each and every vocational program. Whiteman explained every program is intended to lead to employing the student in his chosen field.

Two Programs
Two types of occupational programs are offered here at Cerritos, one being to give to student a well rounded general educational program as well as a vocational one.

The other program offered is for the part time or working student where he or she can take only occupational courses and gain a certificate from the college in one year or 30 units and be employed or placed by the school.

"The vocational student has an advantage over the normal student in that he can be employed in his chosen field and get college credit for the training he receives, whereas the General education student has to work and receives no credit toward his degree," said Whiteman. "We are trying to get new programs however to help the general ed student with the above mentioned problem, the details have not been worked out yet," said Whiteman.

Reports Filed
"Reports have to be filed with the state on how many vocational students are enrolled here at Cerritos and how many are placed in jobs within their field," said Whiteman. "We have an average of 85 per cent placement with our 52 vocational programs here at Cerritos," Whiteman said.

"Cerritos plans to strengthen the vocational program here by first of all working with Madge Coto of the job placement office strengthening her office by giving financial aid and more personnel to help her, and work with Mr. Don Siriani, dean of student personnel, in finding on campus part time jobs for the vocational student," the dean said.

The certificate of achievement is offered to the student whose educational goals differ from those required for an AA degree. California law provides that the certificate may be authorized by the local board of trustees upon satisfactory completion of an organized vocational curriculum. Consistent with one major function of the community college, occupationally oriented curricula are made available. To receive the certificate a student must have a passing grade on an admission test, a 2.0 GPA, and pass all the subjects he or she may take, so says the state.

"The future goals of the program are find new programs not yet offered here at Cerritos; find better jobs for the outgoing student within our community; encourage more students to take part in the vocational programs on campus such as the newly proposed gas station own and operated by Cerritos; and to encourage high school students to take part in the program and come to Cerritos to gain a well rounded education," White said.

Misconceptions Plague Ethnic Literature Course

Ethnic literature at Cerritos has had a hard time getting off the ground.

The course, which started in the fall of 1971, has been plagued with poor enrollments since it began. "Last spring we only had six people enroll in the class and we had to cancel it," said Charles Tilghman, the instructor who initiated and instructs the course.

This semester there are about 14 people enrolled in the course.

One of the problems with getting the course going is that there are many misconceptions about ethnic literature, Tilghman said.

Most people think that when you speak of ethnic literature you are speaking of literature which deals with ethnic problems.

"There is a lot of positive literature too," Tilghman said.

Much of the literature deals with the life styles and backgrounds of the minorities.

"Ethnic literature has been generally avoided by literature classes," Tilghman said. "A good body of ethnic literature, like any other literary form has not been good literature."

"There is also a tendency for people to accept ethnic literature as being of a lower standard," he said.

Ethnic literature also gives a different perspective to historical events and there seems to be "apprehension about reading conflicting accounts" of these events.

"Since this isn't a sociology course the only time we deal with ethnic problems is when they appear in literature," Tilghman said.

Tilghman feels that minority groups are growing on the Cerritos campus.

"There are many ethnic stereotypes and many generalizations made about ethnic groups," Tilghman said.

The literature of five ethnic groups is studied in the course. These include Black, Chicano, American Indian, Asian, and Jewish literature.

One of the main objectives of the course is to "educate people about the misconceptions and groundless fears that they have about minorities by using their literature," Tilghman said.

"The course is designed, not for the ethnic groups, but for the main stream of students that we have here," he said.

The future of the course is doubtful but Tilghman would like to see it continue because "it provides a good introduction to ethnic literature and ethnic studies as a whole."

United Crusade Seeks Success

"The students, staff and community should be treated with respect," said Dr. Wilford Michael, assistant superintendent in Business Services.

At a recent gathering of classified employees for the reason of promoting the United Crusade, Dr. Michael discussed goals, objectives and some of his views concerning Cerritos College.

Being a relatively new employee at the college, Dr. Michael expressed what he felt were the major points he has noticed.

"I'm impressed with the students, they have a good attitude," expressed Michael who also explained that teachers have to expect differences between students and themselves.

About the staff he said that he was impressed with a very "capable" group as he had for a job better than expected.

Dr. Michael then spoke primarily encouraging employees to set goals for the coming year. "Set five goals," he said then leave the list in a desk or somewhere that can be checked periodically. He closed telling employees to "make people aware of your accomplishments."

After Michael a representative from the United Crusade spoke of the program and showed a short slide show. You've got what it takes is the motto for the year as he explained about the 256 different agencies which are represented by the United Crusade.

Contributing $2,300 last year, second only to Whittier College, it was expected a good drive again this year.

'Peace'- Sifting Emotions

Foreign Films Presented Free

For once you do get something for nothing and it is in the offering of a free four day foreign film festival being sponsored by Cerritos College's Office of Community Services.

The festival will begin on Nov. 14 with the showing of the Mexican film "Matcario." Variety called the film "a charming, touching allegory expressed with primitive power and spiritual significance." Matcario has been nominated for an Academy Award as one of this year's best foreign movies.

Matcario will also be shown for a second time on Nov. 15.

On Nov. 16 a French film, "The Rise of Louis XIV," will be shown. The film, directed by Roberto Rossellini, has been described by New York Times critics as "among the best films of 1970... surely a masterpiece."

The film festival will close Nov. 17 with the showing of the 1967 German film "Alle Jahre Wieder."

All films will be shown in Burnight Center at 7:30 p.m. and are free to the public.

motion picture industry. Directed by Larry Peerce, from "Goodbye Columbus" fame, he has used his repore with the young to put not only Knowles ideas on screen but his own. Perhaps the most unusual aspect of the movie is the fact that the people who played in the major roles were not actors at all beforehand but were introduced by Peerce and his cohorts.

The story is an interesting one based primarily around a group of boys attending a prep school in the 40's while the Second World is in full swing. The movie and characters are wrapped around the fact that soon graduation will come and the outside world will become a reality. The pressures become stronger as talk of enlistment comes up and one of the boys deserts from his post. But behind even that Peerce and Knowles have developed a sacred type attitude over what is perhaps the most influential theme in the story. A tree marks much more in the lives of the main characters that can be imagined. Based around the climbing and jumping off of, the people are tested for what could be explained as bravery.

As Peerce explained, the movie is about the "sameness of man from generation to generation." His ability was really tested as he was called upon to bring emotion from the stars of the film John Heyl and Parker Stevenson, both students. It's like "sifting your emotions through the screen of the character," said Peerce in comment to the problems of acting.

Being shown currently at the Plaza theatre Westwood, "A Separate Peace" is an insight on the lives of those few boys tossed between their sheltered world and reality.

Soccer Team "Stunned"

By PAUL RUBALCABA
Editor-in-Chief

"You had to see it to believe it," said soccer coach Jim West following the Falcons stunning 2-1 loss to L.A. Pierce College Saturday morning.

"Pierce is not good at all. Most of their guys couldn't even make it on our team," said West who found it hard to believe the Falcon kickers had lost their second game in the league.

The loss puts the Falcons in a do-or-die situation having to win their next two games in order to compete in the state playoffs.

"Our players were running into each other and we just have to take more shots at the goal," said West. "We pass around too much in front of the goal and don't shoot the ball."

It rained just prior to the game, and immediately following, but West didn't attribute his teams sloppy play to a slick field since both teams were blessed with the disadvantage.

Pass Too Much

"Our guys just didn't really care. We're the type of team that could beat any team on a given day," said West.

The Falcons and Pierce fought through a scoreless first half after taking only 12 shots at the Pierce goal. Realizing the possibility of a loss, the Falcons started shooting in the second half but failed to score. "We must have taken at least 50 shots in the second half," said West.

Lopez Scores

Diego Lopez scored the Falcons solo goal on a penalty shot in the first half as Pierce played inspired ball and out-hustled Cerritos to go ahead 2-1 to stay.

The Falcons will tune up for an 11 a.m. game with Chaffey Saturday morning by meeting the Mt. SAC Mounties on the Falcon soccer field tomorrow at 3:30 p.m.

The Chaffey game is a must win for the Falcons if they want to see any playoff action after league play. The game will be held on the Falcons soccer field followed by a matchup between the Cerritos reserve team and Whittier College's reserve squad.

The loss put Cerritos into a two-way tie for fifth-place in the league as in other league play E.M. Evans beat East L.A., 3-1 and Santa Monica beat Chaffey, 8-2.

Cross Country Beat by Dons

By LARRY BAKER
TM Staff Writer

Cerritos' cross country squad wrapped up their 1972 dual meet season last Friday as they were routed by the Santa Ana Dons, 15-48.

The Dons swept the first five spots, with Bob Guerin sixth for the Falcons with a time of 23:17. Todd English was ninth for Cerritos in 23:06.

Ron Spann finished tenth in 23:18 and David Avila came in eleventh with a time of 23:34. Twelfth for Cerritos was Bennie Escobar 25:31. Robert Jordan ran a 25:58 for the four-mile course.

Mt. San Antonio College won the dual meet championship for the South Coast Conference this year with an unblemished 5-0 record, with Santa Ana second, their only loss coming at the hands of the Mounties.

The Falcons were 0-3 for the season as they were outclassed by each team in the conference.

Nov. 10 will bring competition for the SCC Championships to be held at MSAC. This meet will determine the team championship to go along with the dual meet championship. Falcon Coach Dave Kamanski looks for MSAC to capture this crown, but does not overlook Fullerton or Santa Ana.

College of the Canyons will be the site of the Southern California and state championship meets on Nov. 18 and 25. Cross Country Standings

Question of Policy

Is Long Hair Sports Barrier?

By DAVID BARNES
TM Sports Editor

Robert Evans, a Cerritos student, has claimed he wasn't allowed to go out for the cross country team because he had long hair and a beard. "There are other distance runners in the same situation," said Evans in a letter to TM.

The issue is that there are no rules or orders handed down by the administration governing an athlete's hair style.

"The coaches have all met and decided to leave the grooming standards up to each individual coach," said Don Hall, director of athletics. "There has never been a policy handed down," he added.

No Excuse

Evans stated Cerritos has no excuse for having the whole team run dead last when willing runners are denied the chance to compete. "I don't even know the kid," said cross country coach Dave Kamanski.

Kamanski checked his scouting roster and could find no evidence of ever being in contact with Evans. He has a complete file of every potential Cerritos runner in his office.

After an investigation of Kamanski's enrollment sheets he pointed out that Evans was enrolled in his conditioning class but only showed up for the first day of class. "I haven't seen him since," said Kamanski.

Evans was never enrolled in the cross country class according to Kamanski's enrollment records.

"I haven't discriminated against a student with long hair," said Kamanski. "However, I do ask a runner to cut his hair like one of our guys. He had a pony tail and I asked him to cut it, he did and I don't know what I'd have done if he hadn't."

Miler

Evans' qualifications showed him as a 4:30 miler when he was a junior at Bellflower High School. "If he runs a 4:30 mile that would make him the number two man behind Bob Guerin," said Kamanski. "We had five 4:30 milers last year."

"But he didn't come out for the team, he's not on the roster and I welcome you to come out to my conditioning class and you'll find a lot of guys with long hair," said Kamanski.

Evans, while attending Bellflower High, took a similar situation to the Board of Education. According to the athletic director from Bellflower, Evans refused to abide by the standards set down by the school. The Board of Education stood behind the decision of the coach.

"There's no hair discrimination, not really," said Bob Guerin, cross country team member. "I think the letter was quite unfair."

Water Poloists Face Santa Ana In Finale

Cerritos College water polo team finished a fairly successful week by winning one non-conference match and dropping a conference match.

On Tuesday the Falcons traveled to El Camino for a non-conference match with the Warrior poloists and came away with a 15 to 10 victory.

The Falcons came on strong in the second half and scored 8 goals to pull away from the Warriors. Greg Martens and Pat Brady led the second half surge scoring four and three goals respectively.

Pat Brady led the Falcon scoring with 6 goals while Greg Martens put in 5 for the Falcons. Paul Olsen chipped in with 2 goals, while Ron Parks and Brian Harvey threw in 1 goal apiece.

The Falcons then had a conference match against Mount San Antonio Junior College and were soundly defeated by the Mounties 10 to 6.

The Falcons were ahead at half time 3 to 2 but couldn't contain the Mountie poloists as they scored 8 goals in the second half.

The loss could be attributed to the fact that the Falcons got into foul trouble in the second half as they had Pat Brady and Paul Robinson foul out in the third quarter and lost Ron Parks and Greg Martens in the fourth quarter of play.

Greg Martens and Pat Brady led the Falcons in scoring with 2 goal apiece while Paul Olsen and Brian Harvey contributed 1 apiece in a losing cause.

The Falcon poloists are now 2 and 4 in conference play and have 5 wins and 8 losses on the season.

Cerritos will finish off conference play when they travel to Santa Ana on Nov. 10 and then will travel to Orange Coast on Nov. 14.

Young Wrestlers Looking Ahead

"We have a young team," said Falcon wrestling coach Hal Simonek. "but by the time Conference rolls around we should be ok. We have nine freshmen and one sophomore."

Returners

Cerritos' wrestling team will begin competition on Nov. 22 at El Camino and Simonek says "We shouldn't be too bad by then."

Three returnees for the Falcons are Jon Sawyer, who last year won the South Coast Conference Heavyweight Championship, 153-pound Wayne Mason and 142-pound Richard Zarp. Zarp's brother Mike was lost to the Falcons for at least six weeks with a broken right arm.

At 190 pounds is Joe Botello from Norwalk, who last year was runner-up in CIF competition. Also at 190 are Ken

"There isn't any discrimination—but—if the coach asks you to cut your hair and you don't he would never kick you off the team," added Ron Spann, another member of the team.

When the cross country team record was 0-4, Evans claimed, "I've read all the baseless excuses about smog and unfamiliar courses."

"We've never made any excuses about anything, we're trying very hard," said Kamanski. "because he was enrolled in only three units last semester," said Kamanski. "He's carrying 12's now."

Evans maintains that the Cerritos College Athletic department is run on "junior high" standards. "So now I run seven miles to and from my volleyball class for workouts," said Evans.

"He never came out for the team nor enroll in the cross country team class," said Kamanski.

South Coast Clips

Football Action

Santa Ana was the surprise victim this week of Fullerton College as the Hornets beat the Dons 24-12. It was the first conference win for the Hornets who now stand at 1-2 in league play. The Dons are now in the middle of a three way tie for first place with Cerritos and San Diego Mesa.

Mesa edged the tough San Antonio Mounties 14-6. The next opponent of Mesa will be Cerritos and the game, as all will be, for a rough battle with neither team affording a loss.

MT. SAC takes its place with Fullerton at the bottom with a 1-2 record. Orange Coast College is also 1-2 making the conference split with three teams having records of 2-1 and three teams having records of 1-2.

Cerritos Runs Over Coast

By DAVID BARNES
TM Sports Editor

Cerritos will approach the next South Coast Conference game tied with San Diego Mesa for first place as the Falcons ran over Orange Coast College 31-17. Cerritos meets Mesa Sat. Nov. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in Falcon Stadium.

The conference race is really in an interesting situation now with Cerritos, Santa Ana and San Diego Mesa all tied for first place with 2-1 records. The remaining three teams, Fullerton, Mt. SAC and Orange Coast are tied for second place with 1-2 records. This week will be a decider for the conference race.

Visiting Orange Coast, the Falcons netted 350 yards on the ground due to the running of Mike Balentine who accounted for 191 yards in 11 carries. Balentine carried the ball over 30 yards on four different occasions. In the last two weeks Cerritos has boosted their ground game running average to 7.3 yards per carry. Prior to the last two conference games Cerritos was averaging 2.9 per carry.

Records Broke

To the amazement of many, Orange Coast broke two Cerritos records. They ground out more first downs (31) than any other team has done against Cerritos and they passed for more first downs also. The old school record of 12 first thru the air was set by the Pirates last year and was broken by the same quarterback who passed for 16 last week.

Rich Bethke, Cerritos left-handed quarterback, threw seven passes, completed three and had none intercepted for 84 yards. Two of Bethke's passes were for touchdowns. Tom Voth and Steve Maranon were the recipients of the touchdowns.

Alvin White, Pirate quarterback, was intercepted three times but passes for 287 yards as Orange Coast totaled 503 yards on the night. Cerritos totaled 350 on the ground to give them a total of 434 yards for the game.

Jack Galeener, Bill Dober and Neal Ziemann took in the three interceptions making Cerritos the leading interceptors in the conference with 18 steals. The Pirates also fumbled twice to give the Falcons a total of 12 recovered fumbles giving them a conference leading 30 capitalized turnovers.

Cerritos had no turnovers. Their ball handling was exquisite as Balentine held on tight as he ran 72 yards from scrimmage on one play. Steve Maranon never let go as he carried 12 times for 124 yards. Balentine is the third leading rusher in the history of Cerritos with 1,072 yards.

"We've been blocking people the last couple of weeks" said head coach Ernie Johnson. "Of course their two starting tackles were out for the night" he added.

"Mesa is a balanced team, rushing and passing" said Johnson. "They'll be tough, their big."

For the first time this year Cerritos committed more penalties than their opponent. The Falcons were penalized 70 yards and the Pirates were penalized 59 yards. Cerritos was called twice for face masking and once for a disputed clipping call.

To the benefit of Cerritos, Orange Coast fumbled the ball twice during the first half when they were in excellent field position.

The punting average for the Falcons went down this week to 27 yards in five punts. Usually Bob Torrance averages over 40 yards but there wasn't anything wrong with Torrance as he did exactly what he had to do—keep the ball away from Steve Monahan. Monahan is notorious for punt returns as he returned one for 42 yards two weeks ago against MT. SAC. This previous week against Cerritos there were no punt returns.

Belted

Monahan was pretty well contained as Falcon defender John Nanoski belted the Pirate receiver a couple of times making him lose his grip on the ball.

"God, that guy hits hard" said the athletic director from Orange Coast who watched from the side lines. His companion said "really." When the offense was clicking, the same men said "Here they go again with those backs, same thing every time."

They were right. Cerritos went up and down the field like it was the last game of the season. Two weeks in a row they rushed over the opponent. "The blocking made a big difference" said Johnson.

The game coming up this week with San Diego Mesa will be a big one since someone has to fall from the first place tie. Orange Coast will be meeting Santa Ana who hopes to have their two defensive tackles ready. There won't be a three way tie next week.

Balentine Moves Up

Records in Jeopardy

By LARRY BAKER
TM Staff Writer

Mike Balentine has moved into the third spot on the Falcon all-time rushing list following his 191 yard output in the Orange Coast game.

Against the Pirates, he passed Craig Scoggins' 928 yards, Bob Mauriello's 981 and Ray Aderman's 1043 on his way to 1072 career yards.

Bob Bagwell is the leader with 1505 yards gained in 1958 and 1960. Mario Mendez is second with 1222 in 1959-1960. Balentine has a good chance to catch Mendez if he continues his performances of late, but probably will not top Bagwell.

In the Mt. San Antonio game, Balentine passed Greg Perez's 852 yards for sixth place.

Other individual Falcon records in jeopardy this year are Most Field Goals in a Season; Most Yards on Receptions; Most Interceptions in a Season; and Most Yards on Interceptions in a Season.

Ron Ploger has tied the record for field goals with 7, shared by Randy Wershing and Rod Garcia. Ploger most probably will top that this year.

Jerry Maddox has gained 968 yards on receptions, following Bain Brick's 1062 yards.

John Nanoski has returned 7 interceptions for 95 yards. Gary Smuts holds the record for yardage with 98, while sharing the record for number with Wayne Burd with 9.

A lot of these marks will depend upon the Falcon's performance for the remainder of the season.

THIS WAY FOR SIX POINTS—Running Back Mike Balentine is on his way for 72 yards and a touchdown. Greg Westbrook (40) lays a block on two Orange Coast defenders. Balentine totaled 91 yards as Cerritos routed the Pirates 31-17.
