Michael to make Sacramento appeal for additional Auto Tech funding

By PAT GRIFFITH TM Staff Writer

A Chancelors Office decision not to provide total funding of a proposed "Auto Tech center to be built on the Cerritos College campus, he will be appealed by Dr. Wilford Michael, president of Cerritos College.

Dr. Michael will make the trip to Sacramento "some time this month" to show a "sufficient need" in the Auto Tech facilities which he said are in "desperate" need of

Limited facilities have necessitated limited enrollment because there is no room to expand the facilities to accomadate students wishing to take these courses, according to Dr. Michael

Still, Cerritos College does not qualify for total funding of the Auto Tech proposal based on a state "enrollment formula" establishing available space per student figures, college enrollment projections, a list of priorities, and available funds.

The enrollment formula envolves the amount of available lecture and lab space on a campus and the number of students using the space. Dr. Michael said Cerritos College labs are "under built" while the lecture space is over built. The over built lecture facilities and the underbuilt labs "balance" each other showing a lesser need in the formula calculations. The extra lecture space does not offer any relief to the auto facilities. It is not practical to convert a lecture room into an autobody shop, Dr. Michael said.

As total enrollment of the college increases the automotive needs are dwarfed, he explained.

Three years ago the automotive courses constituted three per cent of the total enrollment. Continued on page 2

Annual Renaissance Faire proposed; students could show, sell handicrafts

By AL BENTON TM Associate Editor

A proposal sounding out the feasibility of a Renaissance Faire was put before the ASCC senate last week.

The faire, which would be held in the campus quad, would be a separate activity from the Spring Carnival, according to Jess Reese, ASCC senator.

"This faire would be an annual event that would be held somewhat like club booth day. It would give individual students a chance to show their crafts and make some money,"

Each semester the Career Center sponsors the annual Career Day. The idea of Career Day is to let students know what companies have job openings and are looking for prospective employees.

This semester more than fifty companies throughout the area will participate in Career Day, which will take place March 31 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Quad. If the weather is not desirable the event will take place in the Student Center.

Top personnel from the companies will be on campus to talk and answer anyone's questions. concerning jobs available.

Not only will the personnel have a list of jobs available now, but they will also have a list of jobs that will be available in the future.

The faire, if held, would be on May 25-27. "Volunteers are needed to serve on an open student committee to iron out the bumps and finalize plans for the faire," Reese said.

Students interested should contact Reese through the Activities office. Linda Hickman, ASCC president, announced that she had received a request asking for volunteers to serve as campus coordinator and voter registrars in an effort to get out the student vote for the 1976 elections.

Those students who would like to volunteer or who would like more information should contact Hickman in the Office of Student Ac-

The positions are: Commissioner of Con-

Any student who may be interested in any of these jobs should contact Hickman.

There will be a student rap day next Thursday (tomorrow) night where night students can air their kudos and gripes.

New building much more than misleading 'Paramedic'

By PAULA BLAMEY. TM Staff Writer

Paramedic is a misleading title for a building offering programs ranging from arts and crafts to cosmetology, according to Walter Magnuson, Assistant Superintendent-Business Services.

Magnuson was referring to the latest campus construction which he has been involved with since it began on July 1, 1974.

It's going on two years and the building is not yet complete. Magnuson feels Jan. 1 could have been opening day; however, a 39-day carpenter strike last October delayed con-

The rain has slowed things down for painting and equipment moving also. "We had to repaint a green wall because of so many complaints," said Magnuson.

Color schemes throughout the building were decided by Doris Sanson, Chairman of Health Occupations and Dearesteen Langdon, Chairman of Home Economics.

Sanson is very happy to finally be in the building. "It's been a lot of hard work for everyone involved," she said. "There were a few inconveniences for instructors when their classes were here and their offices in the old buildings," Sanson said.

Faculty questions power of students

Senators object to grievance policy on who calls meetings

TM Managing Editor

The Faculty Senate decided it wanted to change the fourth draft of the student grievance policy to give the Vice-President of Instruction the power to call meetings and to preside over both the informal and formal meetings of proceedings in it's March 9

Referring to the present wording of the draft which gives the ASCC Chief Justice the power to call hearings, Oscar Littleton stated that the 'peck rights are all screwed up."

Littleton felt that there was something wrong with giving the students the power summon administrators to a meeting.

"It's like me calling Henry Kissinger to a meeting," said Elwyn Saferite, another faculty Saferite also wondered if there might not be some state code prohibiting students from calling a meeting of administrators.

Other changes sought by the senate were to change Step II, A, 4, to read: The five voting members of the Hearing Committee shall select one member to record the proceedings of the hearing.

The word "proceedings" was to replace "findings." This would give a transcript of the meetings for use as records and in case of an appeal, as provided for in part six of the

The senate also noted that there was no provision made for clerical help with the transcripts. In other business the senate is preparing to begin the evaluation of three areas of administrative service; the Presidents office, the Office of Instruction and the divisional offices, There will be separate review teams for each area consisting of from three to five instructors.

A motion was passed to send instructors on sabatical leave evaluation forms so they can also participate in the action.

So you have a grievance, so what do you do now?

By AL BENTON TM Associate Editor

What will the student grievance policy mean to students once it is approved by the Board of Much ado has been made of this procedure as a means of implementing the Statement of Student Rights, passed by the Board last year. The student grievance policy can be divided into four parts. The first part defines what will actually constitute a grievance.

The fourth draft of the statement states that: A grievance shall herein be defined as any act depriving a student of any of the rights set forth in the statement of Student Rights and Responsibilities or any act conflicting with California Educational Code, such as Section 10753, which states, "When grades are given for any course of instruction taught in the public schools, the grade given to each pupil shall be the grade determined by the teacher of the course and the determination of the pupil's grade by the teacher, in the absence of mistake, fraud, bad faith, or incompetency, shall be final."

If a student, or students, feel that they have been treated unfairly by an instructor, or administrator, they would then start step one of the grievance procedure which outlines an informal, non-hearing, means of attempting to resolve the students complaints.

If the complaint cannot be resolved through normal administrative channels; i.e., consultation with the instructor or administrator and then their direct superior; then a written complaint should be submitted to the Dean of Student Activities.

After the filing of this complaint an informal meeting of the parties involved is convened to attempt to mediate and resolve the dispute. If this informal meeting fails, a formal hearing will then take place. The formal hearing will take place before a hearing committee composed of one ASCC senate member; one ASCC cabinet member; Vice President of Instruction or administrative designee; Faculty Senate Vice Chairman or designee; and one Faculty Senate member.

The committee will meet within 10 school

A measure that would approve the construction of permanent benches that would also serve as barriers around the student center fountain pool, SB 1347, failed to gain a two-thirds vote for urgency and action was postponed until next week.

"The benches will be constructed from funds through community services at a cost of $2,435—the low bid," according to Tim Devine, ASCC senator.

The benches which will conform to the outline of the pool, will be accompanied by similarly-designed trash cans.

Attendance is becoming a problem already, according to Roy Okimoto, ASCC senator. "Senators shouldn't be 10-15 minutes late.

After four absences the senate standing committee on attendance will look into the matter," Okimoto said. A query was made by Reese as to what happened to the directory, which was approved and purchased last semester via a senate bill. "All I can say is ask Mr. Loeffler why the company hasn't delivered and installed it yet.

It seems that companies used to be more responsible," said Richard Robinson, Dean of Student Activities.

The issue of parking surfaced once again when Robinson said that all parking permits had been issued. "Temporary two-week at a time parking permits are available through this (activities) office so that senators can park in Lot C-10," according to Robinson.

"We must wait for administrative and board decision to solve the problem; the senate has done all that it can," said Robinson.

The parking problem is campus-wide and this type of problem is not limited to Cerritos, according to Robinson. Cerritos doesn't levy any kind of parking fee

Last year total enrollment figures were up, causing the three per cent to drop to 1.9 per cent. Because the facilities are limited the auto department growth is limited in relation to the rest of the campus.

The fate of the Auto Tech project also depends on its position on a list of "priorities." Total funding of project ranks 80 on a list of 300, while 60% funding has been approved and is listed 40. Dr. Michael said some priorities below ours have had approved funding, and that this may be an issue when he makes the appeal in Sacramento.

The Pit stores goods for GAP fund drives

By CHERYLE BOLDEN TM Campus Editor

Many students have passed by the tightly fenced southwest corner of Reserved Lot C-9 and wondered what it was.

It is not part of the Cerritos Maintenance Department Yard. It is the GAP Reclamation Center, also known as "The Pit."

GAP (glass, aluminum, paper) is a student body project which is part of the Financial Aids program at Cerritos College.

"Although it is mainly for club competition, we have a regular clientele for GAP. Several people of the community just leave their materials outside the fence without a name on it," said Keith Adams, coordinator of financial aids.

The different clubs on campus compete throughout the semester in the GAP project. Each club's donations are tabbed and recorded by Adams for special recognition at the semester Awards Banquet.

This semester GAP days are set aside on the last Saturday in each month.

The idea of these specific days are so that the clubs can bring in all their collections. The days are March 27, April 24, with the competition ending on May 2.

Clubs are recognized on the basis of service (the most volunteer person hours) and the donations brought in.

During the past few years the general project has brought in $2-3,000 during the nine month period, depending upon the market for the material.

The two biggest money-makers are paper and aluminum. According to Adams, the pit is continually processing more and more.

As of the Spring 1976, Phi Kappa Zeta had brought in the most glass with 2179 pounds; Lambda Phi Sigma 731 pounds; H.S.C.C. and Theta Sigma brought in 678 and 646, respectively; Circle K, 518 pounds; Alpha Phi Beta 420 pounds; Theta Epsilon Zeta 47, and the Spanish Club 93 pounds.

In the contribution of aluminum cans, Phi Kappa Zeta was again the leader with 1648 cans. Lambda Phi Sigma produced 1515 cans; Circle K 782 cans, followed by Alpha Phi Beta with 235 cans; Theta Sigma, H.S.C.C. and Theta Epsilon Zeta brought in 137 cans, 128 cans and 124 cans, respectively. Spanish Club contributed 19 cans.

H.S.C.C. supplied 1562 inches of paper, beating out Phi Kappa Zeta who contributed 1008 inches. Lambda Phi Sigma was third with 951 inches of paper. Alpha Phi Beta had 313 inches; Theta Epsilon Zeta 264 inches; V.I.C.S. brought in 207 inches and Theta Sigma 171 inches. The Spanish Club produced 167 inches, Philla 80 inches, and Circle K, 47 inches. Phi Kappa Zeta holds the record for glass Circle K holds the record for the most paper contributions of 5,029 inches set in 1974.

The reclamation center breaks down the glass and hauls it along with the paper to processing locations.

The Coors Co. picks up the aluminum and processes it at their plant.

The funds from the GAP project are used for Breadhunt scholarships with the proceeds deposited in the Breadhunt account. The remainder goes into the Foundation Trust Account which was established a few years ago. The goal with GAP is to draw interest annually on this money and build it up to the point that it is an income producing project which can be put back in the form of more scholarships for students. Pitch in.

HS exam allows early graduation

If the faces look younger on campus these days it's because they are. As a result of the new High School Proficiency Exam, students are now able to get their diploma simply by passing a comprehension test.

Many of the students in high school are bored and uninterested, thus, the chance to get out and go to work or college is very inviting.

The new exam stresses the general education requirements such as English, Math, History, and other fundamentals. This enables a student to finish his high school education without attending the complete four years. Upon passing the exam the student may enter a community college or other institution of higher learning.

To enter Cerritos the student needs verification of passing the examination, a parental release (if under 18) and a visit with a counselor. However, the passing of this exam does not insure that the student will go on to college or work, the option is theirs.

In December 300 students in the district passed the exam and several are now attending Cerritos. Although the program may not have much impact at Cerritos now, "the faces are getting younger and younger everyday."

The newly formed Raquetball Club is taking membership applications. Students interested in participating should contact Smokey Cates at P.E. office "O" or student Senator Liz Polo at ext. 471. The first tournament is tentatively scheduled for late spring.

"The latest equipment and facilities that instructors will have can help them plan and drive to incorporate interest," he said.

Some of the most interesting equipment is found on the second floor in the home economics department where students can now work with modern household appliances. In one of three kitchens there is a microwave oven and a trash compactor. The other two kitchens lean toward a simpler design.

Swaying from simple equipment is the third floor where all modern medical facilities are

These facilities are being used by students involved with programs such as: nursing, dental assisting and hygiene, prosthesis/orthotics

Ian strikes chord in comeback concert

By CRAIG MOZLEY TM Staff Writer

Silence awaited her. Thunderous applause echoed. Then she sang. Quietly we listened. "Society's Child" of 1966 fame stopped at Cerritos Tuesday night, March 2, as part of her first west coast tour.

Janis Ian started her musical career as a 15year-old sophomore at a music and arts high school in New York.

Then family problems, falling in love and quitting school all at the same time quickly took the edge off her fame and left her to work on herself and her music. A three-year stay in Philadelphia convinced her that only she could help herself.

In 1971, she moved to California and began to pick up the pieces personally and musically. The songs started to come, and, two years later, she had taught herself how to score music and had also written a phenomenal number of songs.

Now in 1976 at the age of 24, she is trying to make a comback. Her recent million selling album, "Between the Lines," has helped to make her way a little easier.

In her songs, one finds joy or depression, warmth or iciness, total involvement or complete isolation. To make her points, she relies on a penetrating analysis of love lost and found, the nature of performing, the emptiness of dreams and the transactional nature of human relationship.

Ian's voice powerfully projected from her small, physical stature, and kept a capacity crowd focused attentively to her deep, touching lyrics. Accompanied by a guitarist, bass player, drummer, and richly enhanced by a female second vocal (harmony), the musical background seemingly only highlighted the solo moments of Ian.

As a singer-songwriter, she has developed each song in her way and her style.

Ian's understanding of the interplay between singer and listener, is defined by her as the singer's responsibility to be her audience's fantasy. "They think you're more real than they are. That's why they hunger for knowledge of you."

"Society's Child," "At Seventeen" and the album "Between the Lines."

Also on the program, Loudon Wainwright III probably best known for his humorous song 'Dead Skunk,'' played as a prelude to Ian.

Wainwright's contrasting form primed the audience with down to earth folk songs, similar to the style of John Prine.

When Ian and her group took the stage, the crowd soon adapted to the mood and read between the lines and lyrics to quietly enjoy Imagine arriving at your Senior Prom 40 years late!

That's not exactly what happened at Sunday's Senior Citizens Prom in the Student Center, but most of those in attendance left high school in the 1920's and 30's.

The event, which is part of Cerritos College's 20/200 Bicentennial celebration, was cosponsored by the college and the L.A. County Parks and Recreation Department. The Prom has been going on the past nine years, according to Barbara Keenoi of Community Services, chairperson of the prom.

"Admission was free and the Golden Key Club (Cerritos College's senior citizens club) provided the refreshments. Everything was free," she said.

An estimated 900 Senior Citizens were in attendance, swinging and swaying to the sounds of the Tony Ferraro Band-a six-piece group which played hits such as "Hello Dolly" and assorted dance tunes.

Guest celebrities included entertainer and ex-Los Angeles Ram defensive lineman Rosie Grier and Courtney Kennedy, daughter of the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy. Grier entertained the audience with songs like "Kansas City" and also presented a gift to the oldest woman in the house, 86-year-old Gwendalyn Donaldson. The Golden Key Club was "overjoyed with the prom," said Keenoi, "they want to do it again next year."

Upcoming Senior Citizen events include a Health Fair, April 3, at which a variety of free health services will be available.

The Golden Key Club has also scheduled a dance for April 23, with the music being provided by the "Rhythm Makers."

Is there a men's volleyball team? According to Jim Hamilton, a team member, there is definitely a men's volleyball team here at Cerritos. With a record of 3-4, the team puts all its effort into the game—to them it's fun and challenging.

Both Hamilton and Gene Martin, coach of the men's team, agree that there is not one individual star or member, but it's the team effort as a whole that counts.

The team's conference starts March 15 with L.A. Harbor as contenders, followed by Mt. SAC on March 18. They are trying for the league title, but have to overcome powerful Santa Monica and Santa Barbara.

The game against L.A. Valley was the turning point of the year and seemed to have boosted the team's moral and effort. One strategy used is that there is no set captain, but each game a different player gets his chance. This unites the team and gives everyone a chance to show their leadership.

Also mentioned by Hamilton was the closeness between the men's and women's team, both as team members and spectators. "They are always supporting and cheering one another on during the games," Hamilton

The players feel that it would help to have more spectators involved. He asked students to try it and see if they themselves don't find it interesting. All games will be at 7:30 p.m.

Hamilton said the teams are happy with the new equipment and the rescheduling which enables practice five days a week.

The roster of the men's team includes: Kevin Bergquist, Rick Port, Mike Diaz, Dana Hiler, Paul Draper, Barry Martin, Jim Hamilton, Charles Moore, and Coleman

Single tallies in the initial three innings saw Wally Kincaid's squad take the early lead. Chalking up a solo run in the sixth, Cerritos recorded its second straight shutout.

Dave Patterson's unbeaten total ran to five games as the righthander from Mission Viejo High struck out nine and gave up seven hits. Of the four runs, two scored as a result of Fullerton errors. Catcher Jesse Baez's single, double and two RBIs, and Jim Wilson's two singles and RBI paced the Falcons hitting attack that collected a total of seven hits.

On Saturday Cerritos visited Mountie territory to tangle with the highly ranked Mt.

The game saw the Falcons involved in their first extra inning affair, handing a 8-5 defeat to Mt. SAC.

Three unearned runs in the top of the tenth inning gave Cerritos their 14th straight win and a share of the top spot. Gahr graduate Jim Wilson continued his fine hitting as he collected two hits and knocked in four Falcon runners. First Baseman Mike Carpenter's three hits and two RBIs led the 10-hit Cerritos offense.

Tim Olivarez pitched four and a third innings of no-hit ball, to raise his mark to 5-0. Starter Pat McGehee gave up three early tallies as the Falcons trailed 3-0 after three in-

However, timely hitting and Mounty miscuses saw Cerritos emerge the winner and kept their victory streak alive.

Jesse Baez threw out three Mt. SAC baserunners attempting to steal, allowing the Mounties only one theft in five attempts.

After the two games, Cerritos continues tough SCC competition against Orange Coast College tomorrow at Falcon field at 2:30 p.m. The defending state champs find themselves in one of the best balanced SCC title races Statistics - numbers necessary; or jumbled computerized jargon?

By CRAIG MOZLEY

TM Sports Editor What's in a number, valid statistics or a maze of worthless calculations?

By high school, students begin to realize the important usage of figures. Monetary values, job needs, in school, the sixteen-year-old person benefits if they truly understand the total number spectrum. "My grade point average is 3.12, that's a "B" average. 2x + 6 = 12, totals three," is one of many possible (simplified) statements on how statistics can play into a student's knowledge towards numbers. With college mathematics, medical classes, and business courses the student starts to specialize with data, graphs, etc. They delve into the realities of facts, how they effect people, places, and economy. From the classroom to the athletic field, stats play an important role to the various related subjects. In sports from all levels these figures allow people to keep current tabs on an individual person or team.

Seventy-five per cent from the floor, 271 batting average with 62 RBIs, thirteen under par, 3.7 yards a carry, are all basic stats from the broad field of athletics.

A coach or manager keep these figures. Many get into the realm of why and how these facts play a part of a person's performance. Others, on how a player may compete against one team and sit on the bench opposing another squad. The list goes on.

Yearbooks, records, and pamphlets are kept just on the facts and figures. Thousands of high school, college, university and professional people are now employed because of the almost critical craving for the need of statistical information.

However, so are hundreds of technical engineers and specialists who don't even deal with sports.

Since the advancement of technology in all aspects of life, athletics have run the same

Can you recall the slow paced basketball era of Bill Sharman, baseball's Pee Wee Reese, or Sammy Baugh tossing the spiral down the

And now it's 1976! Pressboxes today are filled. Figures and stats flood the broadcast and print media. Scouting is done. Strategies are planned. More hours are spent preparing teams than the actual action of the game itself. Results have given birth to more polished players, fundamentally sound teams and well groomed organizations.

Are sports becoming too specialized? For example, the left hander comes into pitch against the southpaw hitter mainly because the percentage is in favor of the hurler.

Many viewpoints can be taken. The braintrusts will say that stats are for the overall understanding of players, teams, situations and basically the challenge that each sport provides. However, fans may have a different angle. After all, one of the primary functions of sports is to entertain the viewer. . . Only the fanatics can be emotionally wrapped up in all the stats and stratagies involved in sports. I'm not saying let's bring athletics back to the early 1900's where an athlete was an athlete not an individual computerized figure for stratagies to plot and plan against! One has to take the game and love it from the aspect of the competition. Stadiums not stats, action not accounting. Let's hope that the mere physical enjoyment of sporting events doesn't get into the computerized field of calculations.

SWIM TEAM FLOUNDERS

Cerritos ran its record to 0-2 by losing to San Diego College 64-31. Mark Montgomery paced the Falcons with wins in the butterfly (2:15.2) and the indivudual medley (2:10.1).

Tim Hooper was victorious in the 100 yard freestyle (52.4), while Bill Stone took first in the 200 yard breaststroke (2:35.5).

0-8 SERVICE

The tennis team continued to have its troubles this year as it lost its seventh and eighth contests in a row. The Falcons lost to San Diego Mesa 8-1, and were shut-out by Orange Coast 9-0. The lone Cerritos victory was provided by the doubles team of Mike Gamboa/Larry Gray in the last match of the contest.

TRACK RECORDS FALL

Mt. SAC discus thrower Marcus Gordien established a new National JC record in the discus with a toss of 189-10 in a meet against Cerritos last March 5.

Jeff Clingan also broke his Cerritos triple jump record of 47-2, with a leap of 47-101/2. His lifetime best is 49-2.

Jim Powell from Mayfair High won the mile (4:20.8) and the three mile (15:12.6) in a meet against Fullerton. The track team's record this year is 0-2.

WRESTLERS END SEASON

The Cerritos wrestling team finished the year second in the SCC with a dual meet record

In State competition Cerritos was represented by 167 pound Tony Fuersch, who won second place as the squad ended up number 17 in the state.

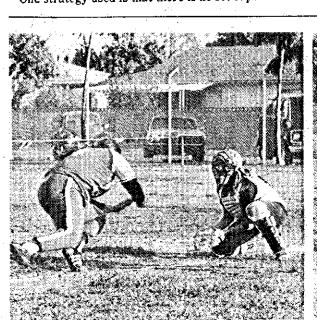

This is the first time in seven years that coach Hal Simonek's wrestlers have not taken or shared the conference championship.

BADMINTON TEAM WINS

Coach Rhea Gram's badminton squad opened Coast League play with a 23-1 rout over Orange Coast College.

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL WINS FIRST

The women's volleyball team stopped Cypress College 10-15, 15-12, 15-1, to snap a twogame losing streak. The Falcons are 1-2 on the year, losing earlier to LA Harbor College and

Student 'grievance'

After six months of concentrated committee work by students, faculty and administrators, and through outside input, the Ad Hoc Committee on student rights has formulated a fourth draft of a student grievance policy.

This draft will be submitted to the Board of Trustees at their meeting, March 23.

The statement was originally drafted by the student members of the committee using the policy established for faculty grievances as a

Using this as a basis for discussion, the committee then revised and molded the statement to conform to students' needs and sooth any objections that were raised. Suggestions were submitted by the Senate, faculty senate, administrative council and the Talon Marks editorial board.

The result of this combined effort is the fourth draft which will now be scrutinized by the board.

There is a distinct need for this procedure. Inquiries have already been made by students as to when the grievance policy will go into effect. This policy is the final step in the implementation of the Statement of Student Rights and Responsibilities that was passed by the board last year.

Some members of the faculty senate have suddenly realized that the ASCC Supreme Court "... Chief Justice (a student) shall call a meeting of the Student Grievance Hearing Committee ' Issue has been made that, "the pecking order is 'screwed up'" or that the students "summoning the faculty is like me (a faculty member) calling a meeting with Kissinger.

The ASCC Chief Justice only notifies the other members of the committee that there is to be a meeting, a part of his or her duties as chairperson. Summon; command; compel? Not hardly.

This is a student committee, run by a student, for students to formally air their grievances. Any unfavorable decision may be appealed by either party to the complaint, to the president or board.

The faculty senate complaints are the result of senators not doing their homework. The questionable statement was included in the first formal draft of the proposal.

Any complaint registered now is trivial and after-the-fact. The faculty senate had their chance to examine all four drafts and to make comments and recommendations through their representatives on the committee. All comments were reviewed fully by the complete committee.

Talon Marks concurs fully with the opinion of the student senate, and we join them in urging the Board of Trustees to ignore the crying and foot-dragging in the faculty senate. We hope the board will act promptly to approve the Student Grievance Policy.

St. Patrick-Englishman

Saint Patrick (Patricius Magonus Sucatus), the patron saint of the Irish, in reality was not Irish at all.

Born on the western coast of England around the year 385, St. Patrick was kidnaped by Irish raiders at the age of 16.

He was taken to Ireland, unlike England still independent of the Holy Roman Empire, and sold as a slave.

Six years later, he escaped and made his way to the European mainland where he studied the ways of God for over thirty years.

It was here he had a vision which told him to go to Ireland and spread Christianity.

quest because a trusted friend revealed that Patrick had admitted to committing sin at the age of 15.

The nature of that sin is not historically

A short time later he was made a Bishop and sent to Ireland.

St. Patrick's knowledge of the land and language aided him greatly as he traveled throughout the island preaching, and building churches, schools and monasteries,

It was high on Reek mountain, while enduring a 40 day fast, that St. Patrick's ultimate fate became official.

While on the storm swept peak, it is said that he was plagued by demons in the form of hideous birds. In anger, he flung his bell at the dense flock and they were transformed into beautiful white birds led by an angel.

As reward for his suffering, the angel promised that on Judgement Day he, alone, would judge the Irish.

So put shamrock in your pipe and smoke it to celebrate St. Patrick's traditional birthday.

"Buy them! How much are they?" 'Oh, I'm not sure. You can get either a new or a used one, but check out the used one closely, some of them are pretty marked up."

"You mean people write in 'em?" "Yeah, all over 'em.'

years ago this month. His father was a Mexican immigrant from the lower economical class of his country who married a woman of the upper echelons and moved to Favans, Texas; where the second of seven children, Rueben was born.

A move to El Paso, when he was 2-years-old, was only the first of several re-locations for his family.

Nine years later they moved to Woodland California, back to El Paso and then to Santa Maria, California, before Carillo was sixteen. In Santa Maria, he attended Austin High School until the accident which left him lifting, he has many other interests as well; such as swimming in his apartment's pool, archery, "partying" ("I'm human, I have my vices . . . good beer and parties . . . "), horseback riding, wheelchair basketball, acrylics ("I'm doing some nudes by the way . . ."), oil painting and bowling.

"I'm not too great a bowler — I average around 130," he smiled, and then laughed, "no, that's not too great . . . ''

Accademically, Carillo plans to obtain a B.A. degree in psychology from U.C.L.A. and become a Psychologist/counseler. Currently unemployed, he has held various clericalresearch jobs for Los Ranchos Amigos hospital and LA county.

"I was tired of being a cog-in-a-wheel. I'm always looking for novelty . . . so I quit my job and enrolled at Cerritos."

Carillo also rejects the "cog-in-a-wheel" lifestyle at Cerritos. "When you see a herd of cattle, you don't say 'wow, look at that cow.' Because no cow is significantly different they're all the same."

Steve was married one year after his accident, but three years later he divorced his wife who didn't appreciate his fast pace and varied interests.

"She was kind of possessive . . . she felt I was too friendly and that I weightlifted to show off. She wanted me for an object, not as an individual . . . but I am friendly; I like to meet new people and I like to keep active . . . Too many people fall into a pattern and allow limitations to settle around them. They become senile while still young ... It's the same with every subject ... People put limitations on one another and most are not real limits — they're fabricated.

"Take children, for example, talk about novel! They're not aware of limitations, and it's amazing what they can achieve . . . unfortunately, most people are brain-washed into doing what's expected of them rather than trying new experiences . . . "

In reference to Saturday's competition Carillo pondered, "What if I don't break the record, because of some unknown circumstance?" ... staring back innocently, he answered "like what . . ."
