Books hiked to 5 per cent per semester

By LUCREZIA LARUSSA
TM Staff Writer

The five percent increase in text book prices now comes every semester instead of once a year. Alan Beaulieu, new director of the student bookstore recently told the Faculty Senate.

Beaulieu said the price changes come from the publishers. "Textbooks are getting horrendously expensive" said Beaulieu. He stated that the textbook department in the college store has been losing money, and that his goal is to "just break even."

The bookstore is owned by student body (ASCC) with any profits being returned to it either indirectly through offering extra services on campus, or directly by giving a "possible" six per cent rebate to the students.

On the subject of "short ordering" which causes some students to be without books, Beaulieu said he must make adjustments to compensate for departmental miscalculations.

These adjustments are based on prior ordering records. He claims his adjustments are 94 percent correct. One Faculty Senator suggested that since this doesn't help the six percent left without books during the first weeks of school, a copy of all texts should be put on reserve in the library as is the policy at other colleges.

The Senate requested that the bookstore hours be extended to 10 p.m. during the first week of school to benefit the night students. After some debate, a compromise was met at 9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Briefly discussed were possible changes in the graduation ceremonies and the campus-wide problem of air-conditioning.

The Faculty Senate is made up of representatives from each department whose purpose is to make suggestions to improve campus life for faculty and students.

Board votes to approve bilingual funds

By WANDA EDWARDS
TM Staff Writer

A standing room only crowd jammed the Board Room Oct. 21 to hear

Cerritos Trustees vote 6-0 approval of student stipends for the college's Bilingual Teacher Corps program.

A month-long controversy over the program's questionable status started when Trustee Merl Doty commented at last month's meeting that he was "turned off by the entire thing." Doty was absent at the Oct. 21 meeting.

Doty's comments sparked an onrush of communications by the capacity crowd.

Representatives of several campus EOPS groups were on hand to respond to the tabled student stipend proposal because they saw Doty's remarks as a threat to the whole extended opportunity program.

At the Sept. 16 meeting, Doty had gone on record as being in full opposition.

"You can tell them I'll be voting against it from now on," the trustee had stated.

As the matter was brought to the floor, Board President Katie Nordbak held up a stack of letters and noted that the Board was fully informed of the community's reaction to Doty's remarks.

However, she added, "Since Mr. Doty is not here to respond to your comments I doubt it would be necessary."

Hector Carreon, chairman of the Cerritos College Citizens Advisory Committee, stated he would nonetheless like an opportunity to speak

Trustees prolong residency issue after uproar

By JANE BROCK
TM Production Editor

College Trustee Merl T. Doty produced a voter registration and an explanation which the Board accepted as valid evidence of his district residency which has been under fire following his strong stand against increased student job funding in the EOPS program.

Board president Katie Nordbak had requested trustees to bring proof of residency to a special meeting last Monday.

The issue was made an agenda item for the next regular meeting scheduled on Nov. 18.

Doty had previously signed a tax exemption form stating that his residence was in Mission Viejo which is in Orange County.

According to the state education code, a member of a community college board of trustees must live within the district and may only claim one residence.

Jose Gonzales, who identified himself as a "spokesman for the community," — who said his three daughters had attended Cerritos — insisted that "the only way Mr. Doty can satisfy us is to resign."

Doty defended himself, asserting that it was a "flippant signature."

"I should have read it. I should have been thinking," he said. Doty also cited pressures such as the illness of his now deceased father as an explanation for what he termed "slight oversight" on that tax form.

"It was not my intention to declare that (Mission Viejo) as my residency. If I had, I would have resigned from the Board."

Doty explained that he purchased the house with his brother with the intention of selling it, and claimed that he never kept it a secret from anyone.

"In July I thought that house was sold," Doty said, indicating that the

Whip post up for grabs

ASCC President Stuart Hayden announced at last week's senate meeting that applications were still being sought for the position of Party Whip.

Senator Stephanie Lopez had previously come before the senate for approval twice, and was voted down both times. Due to a technicality stated in the Student Government Manual, Lopez is barred from further attempts at the post.

Also at last week's meeting, it was alleged that senators co-authoring certain bills did not know what these bills were about and in some cases were not even aware that they had been put down as co-authors.

Jacob Silley was approved as senator by a vote of 22-3 with six abstentions. Silley is filling the position vacated by Pat Rojas who left to become Commissioner of Extended Day on President Hayden's cabinet.

Hayden seemed subdued at last week's meeting after appearing the week before to defend statements he made to the TALON MARKS concerning the senate's rejection of Senator Lopez as Party Whip.

In a heated discussion with Senate President Pro Tem Craig Georgianna, Hayden stated "Somebody got together and manipulated people. I'm not here to play political games."

Senator Zakia Feres contended that Hayden's "accusation that we voted as a bloc is a direct insult. It implies that the Senate has no mind."

Fuentes questions literature policy

By WANDA EDWARDS
TM Staff Writer

Is Cerritos College "overstepping our authority, Constitutionally" in its policy on the distribution of literature on campus?

The question was raised briefly during last Tuesday's meeting of Trustees by Vice President Chuck Fuentes as the Board considered a draft revising the school's current policy.

Calling for a clarification of terminology in the draft, Fuentes said he felt it odd that we have such rigorous controls.

"I'm just saying outside of the building we should have free access to any piece of information since we are an institution of higher learning," he explained.

Concurring, secretary Rich Goul added, "If I was a student on campus and walked up to a student with one Reagan pamphlet, it's breaking the rule."

Goul referred to pamphlets not bearing the required code number issued by student government.

The current student body policy is "archaic, outmoded and absurd,"

Time capsule sealed for college's 50th

A time capsule, designed and donated by Rockwell International, was presented to Cerritos College at a kick-off luncheon honoring the college's 25-year anniversary. Memorabilia, including video tapes, will be gathered throughout the year and stored in the stainless steel capsule.

In May the capsule will be pressurized and sealed to protect its contents and hung by cables in the main vestibule of the Learning Materials Center. It will be opened on the 50 year anniversary of the college.

Another event planned in conjunction with the silver anniversary will be the Dec. 7 dedication of a victory bell from the U.S.S. Pellas.

Some 50 former crew members who served aboard the submarine tender during WW II are expected to attend the ceremony. The men will travel here from various U.S. cities, with one man coming from Australia.

Community artists to hold show

An art show entitled "Artists in the Community" will be held in the new Cerritos College gallery in the Arts and Crafts Building from Oct. 29 through Nov. 7.

This is the second show to be held in the new facility. Artists contributing to this show are members of art associations from the six cities which make up the college district.

Represented are the Bellflower Art Association, the Cerritos Art Association, the Downey Art League, La Mirada Art Colony, the Lakewood Artists Guild and the Norwalk Art Association.

A wide variety of art and craft work is expected to be entered and judged in what is expected to be an annual show.

The gallery is open Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Troupe to perform, offer classes

By DONNA YORK
TM Campus Editor

Followed by great reviews from New York, Los Angeles and their home town of San Francisco, the Oberlin Dance Collective will come to Cerritos for a three day-dance residency beginning Nov. 4.

The Collective was founded by graduates and faculty members of Oberlin College in Ohio in 1971. In 1976, the 10-member group moved to San Francisco. The company consists of 8 dancers, one visual artist and a technical designer.

Many of the works performed by the group are from the talents of Brenda Way, ODC co-director and choreographer. One of her very different pieces is the "Designated Player," which was inspired by Giants' retired player Willie McCovey.

Bringing the ODC to the Cerritos area is a co-sponsored program of the CC Community Services, the National Endowment for the Arts and the California Arts Council.

"We have been trying to do this type of program for a long time," stated Ilean Raben, assistant director of the Community Service office. "We want to promote dance, not only in our students, but throughout the 8 communities serviced by the college."

Two days of classes will be conducted while ODC is in this area. The first class is scheduled for Nov. 3 at several of the area high schools.

On Nov. 4, two classes held on the Cerritos campus. The first class will be held in the Gymnasium from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. This class will be broken down into three divisions, Novice-novice, Nov-intermediate, and Nov-advance.

The two hour class will be divided into time for warm-ups and techniques, floor exercises and simple principles of choreography.

The second class will be held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. The first hour will concentrate on technique and warm-ups, while the second hour will work on movement, patterns and principles.

Following the 3-5 class will be a reception in the Student Center where students can mingle and talk with the dance group. The reception is sponsored by the newly developed Dance Club with a donation in memory of Mrs. Priscilla Winslow from the Cerritos College Fine Arts Association. Mrs. Winslow was a prominent Downey resident and former professional dancer.

Advance registration is welcomed but not necessary. The master class from 11 to 1 is $2 and entitles the student to the 3-5 class also.

The ODC will hold one performance at the Downey Civic Theatre on Nov. 5. Tickets are $3.00 for students. This is the only performance to be held in this area.

Minority, bi-lingual, EOPS reps face Board in funding dispute

pression of "racism and negativism... and worst in the history of Cerritos College."

The EOPS "is not just an ethnic program," stated Gloria Villanueva, the next to come forward. Villanueva is a member of the Committee for Responsive Education for the Norwalk-La Mirada School District.

"Mr. Doty expressed his dissatisfaction with one Chicano activist," she told the group. "I do not feel he should interpret one comment as representing us all."

Villanueva referred to the many facts of the school's Extended Opportunity Program and Services which includes assistance to the financially and physically disadvantaged as well as those needing cultural and language assistance.

In a dramatic gesture, the next speaker, Arlene Vallejo, walked forward to place a copy of the Board of Trustees' 1977 Statement of Philosophy for Bilingual/Bicultural Education before the members.

The Bilingual Teachers Corps is an organization that came about as a direct result of that philosophy, Vallejo told the trustees and educators, and is actually made up of "diverse students," 95 percent of which go on to four year colleges.

When asked by Board member Harold Tredway if this would not be true of anyone who was paid to do so, the bilingual teacher replied she believed they did so because they wanted to become bilingual teachers.

Jesse Luera, a member of the Board of Trustees for Norwalk-La Mirada and Norwalk's Assistant Administrator of Social Services, rose to compliment the board on its dedication to the concept of extended opportunity.

"I've seen Cerritos College become one of the brightest jewels in the community college crown and everyone on the board can take credit for that. I believe Mr. Doty heard a speech by a young Chicano activist and interpreted it the wrong way."

Students who came forward to lend support to the bilingual teachers were Terry Wilson, vice president of the Black Student Union, and Arlene Frankberger, a 32-year-old mother of two who said she came "to explain the position of the white students in EOPS."

After a formal vote approving the stipend, Trustee Richard Goul thanked the speakers and all who came.

"We hear a lot about apathy these days," he noted, "so rarely do we have people showing concern for what they truly believe in."

"This is what participatory democracy is all about," Goul added.

Board President Nordak also commented on the attendance, but explained, "As board members we respect each other. If someone requests something to be tabled to get more information, we respect their request."

This is how the board acquires the necessary information to make decisions on the various programs, she said, stressing, "Cerritos has a history of being aggressive in developing EOPS."

In further action, a report on the change of requirements for an Associate of Arts Degree from Cerritos College was held over for consideration next month. The report was prompted by a request from both Doty and Tredway for a re-examination of the college's policies to avert any trend toward a "watering down of education."

However, Dr. Wilford Michael, president and superintendent of the college, commented to last Tuesday evening's assembly, "Most programs have not changed that much."

The board also considered a draft on new policies for the distribution of literature on campus. Board Member Chuck Fuentes was especially vocal in calling for a review of the current policy.

Informational reports to the board noted that there has been a decrease in enrollment of Business students this fall, and an increase in student participation in the Summer Theatre program.

Currently 226 students are enrolled in the photography program, according to coordinator Mike Coppenger.

... Board residency

house had fallen through escrow. "It was a sloppy oversight on my part."

Gonzales told the Board, "We have a right and an obligation to see that this is investigated properly."

Hector Carreon, identifying himself as chairman of the college advisory committee, asked the Board what action could be taken against Doty if his residency was not upheld.

Member Rich Goul stated, "Any member of the community can challenge our credentials."

Goul continued that they should contact the state attorney general's office with proof of the accusation.

Carreon requested that the Board take it to the attorney general's office.

Board Member Chuck Fuentes replied, "There's no way in heck they're going to prosecute this. We have a responsibility to each other. We're taking man hours away from something serious."

President Nordback concluded that, "We cannot take any action on this because we don't have any other information."

Gonzales declared, "If you cannot do it, or won't do it, somebody in the community will do it."

T.V. SCRIPTERS TO ROLL

A course designed to teach novices how to write television and movie scripts will be held beginning Monday, Nov. 3 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Cerritos College BookStore Building, Room 112.

The fee for the six-week course is $40.00. The course will be held every Monday evening and will end Dec. 8.

Richard Perkins, long-time professional scriptwriter and college teacher, is the instructor. He will supplement lectures with filmed interviews of producers, directors, writers, script editors and agents.

Development of plot and characters are stressed in addition to teaching format requirements for television scripts.

... Publicity

said Fuentes, questioning its Constitutionality.

Walter Magnuson, assistant superintendent of business, who brought the draft to the Board for consideration, explained that the school's current policy was simply a restatement of the Education Code.

Students have a separate policy, however.

"Then students shouldn't have the right to a separate publicity policy," interjected Fuentes.

Asking how students would operate without a code, Student Board Member Stuart Hayden stated his intention was not to argue but to inquire.

"Student government should be the enforcing agency," Board President Katie Nordbak stated, but suggested getting more student input before the new policy is again presented for the Board's consideration next month.

PRICE PURSUES VILLAINS

Vincent Price will be the guest lecturer at the La Mirada Civic Theatre's presentation of "The Villains Still Pursue Me."

The lecture will cover the history of villainy. It will be presented on Friday, Oct. 31, 1980 at 8 p.m. as a Halloween treat for the entire family.

Freddie, Frieda Review Dress

Wondering what proper dress is for campus wear? Take a tip from Freddie and Frieda Falcon.

Freddie always dresses casually for classes, his favorites being slacks, sport shirts, sweaters or sport jackets. But if anyone sees his feathers or sweatshirts wearing shorts or sweatshirts or such, Bermudas are okay for fellows.

Frieda gets all flustered when women students show up in sundresses, and bermudas, jamaicas, slacks, and shorts make her see red. It's pity she has for the girls wearing heels when flats are much more comfortable. Her favorites are blouse or sweater and skirt combinations or tailored dresses.

Both Freddie and Frieda agree that dressing for extracurricular activities is up to the individual as long as it is appropriate to the occasion. Watch for Freddie and Frieda around campus. They'll be the one with not a feather out of place.

Times change — or do they?

By DONNA YORK
TM Campus Editor

The elementary school districts of Bellflower, Norwalk, Artesia, Carmona and Bloomfield cast their mock vote of four to one in favor of forming a junior college district on June 10, 1955.

This was followed by an election on Sept. 17, 1955, which called for a six-million dollar bond to build the college. This real election passed by a four to one margin.

Cerritos College was on its way to being a reality.

The first classes were held Sept. 22, 1956, with 10 teachers, 15 subjects and 197 students working out of rented rooms at Excelsior High School.

With the 1957-58 school year the college operated out of Artesia High School while awaiting the completion of the new campus. For all intents and purposes, this was the year that made Cerritos.

The football season opened with 60 prospective players, all eager to don their uniforms and play. The first game was an incredible 800 miles away, held on Sept. 20, 1957 at Ogden Utah. Cerritos won 33-7.

This was the beginning of an outstanding season for the team, leading them to the Junior Rose Bowl in Pasadena.

On Dec. 1, 1957 they faced Arlington State J.C. from Texas. The Cerritos team was nicknamed the "Cinderella Team," their dressing rooms were an old dairy barn transformed into a locker room complete with showers.

At half time, Cerritos trailed 7-3. They had nine fumbles, seven which had gone to enemy hands. The crowd of 38,000 watched as Cerritos lost 21-12, but the team had made history with possibly the most important event in Cerritos College's history.

With the spirit exhibited by the football team, it was no wonder the first buildings to be constructed on campus were the field house and Stadium, a facility envied by visiting teams.

Actually, the facilities were started the same time as others, but were less complicated to build.

The coach of that famous game was Earl Klapstein, who had also been an assistant coach for the Green Bay Packers. Klapstein will be here to watch the 25th Anniversary

Homecoming game. So will John F. Bower, Joe Mehrbrodt, Paul Burton, Charles M. Smith, Ray Andermann along with Ken Gregory and Pete Nicklos, six of the players from that 1957 team.

In the 1958-59 school year there were eight buildings constructed on campus. The field house, Business Education and Lecture Hall, Science, Shower and Lockers, the Liberal Arts, Technology and Electronics.

The year 1958 was also a great year in sports for Cerritos. That was the year that Dr. Ralph Burnight donned his Falcon baseball cap and threw out the first ball in a game that launched an incredible baseball tradition that became the winningest in the country. Dr. Burnight was an avid sports enthusiast and could often be seen on the sidelines of the football field or yelling from the stands. He calendared the college's athletic events around his busy and hectic schedule.

By 1961, the completion of four buildings took place. The Library, Gymnasium, Metal Trades-Shop Building and Student Center. Enrollment was up to 4,000 students.

The campus grew to 18 buildings by the 1968-69 school year and enrollment had grown to more than 11,000 students. The addition of the Weight Lifting Room took place in 1971 with the new Student Activities/Bookstore complex being finished in 1974.

Cerritos has grown and matured over the last 25 years, with enrollment running around 22,000 students each semester, but what is in the future for Cerritos?

According to Dr. Wilford Michael, president, "Cerritos is here to stay. We are a viable organization serving the needs of the community. Cerritos is staffed with faculty interested in teaching, rather than in just research and writing like many of the four year college instructors."

With the completion of the Community Services Building, the final construction plans will be done. More attention is being given to the educational programs offered, vocational and transfer classes.

One of the biggest successes of Cerritos Dr. Michael said, is the "continued support by the community."

It's all in timing

By DONNA YORK
TM Campus Editor

Movement, timing, and control are all part of a good athlete's abilities. His refinement is in his stock and trade of sports. Without proper movement, there are injuries. Without timing and control, there is sloppy handling and lack of coordination.

The same is true for a dancer, too. I've discovered in my class. The movements have to revolve around timing, and control of the motion is everything.

Many of the stretching and warming up exercises used in sports are the very same ones used in dance.

The same principle is applied, to limber up and warm up the muscles to lessen the chance of injuries and relax the body so it can respond to the commands and demands made on it.

I can remember, seeing some slow motion plays from several football games with the background music from a ballet. It seemed odd at first, but as I watched, it all began to make sense.

These weren't just odd looking costumes and bulky men running haphazardly around a 100 yard stretch of green. These were well-conditioned men using the movements and timing taught them by some well-meaning coach back in junior high school.

The same goes for a real ballet. These too are well conditioned men and women using the movements and timing taught to them by a well-meaning dance instructor back in fourth grade.

They, too, enjoyed it — and continued it and stretched it into a profession.

The only difference is in the figures. Football and basketball heroes make a considerable amount of money — and they're usually heavier and bigger. Dancers make a lesser amount of money — and are usually lighter and smaller.

And dancers don't usually have a 400 piece marching band entertain during half-time.

Matter of fact, dancers don't usually have a half-time — unless it's in the beat.

Irish perform at La Mirada

The Irish Light Orchestra of Dublin will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, November 1, at the La Mirada Civic Theatre.

A company of 45 singers, dancers and musicians, the Irish Orchestra was founded in 1948 as the official concert orchestra of Irish radio and television. The group specializes in popular and Irish folk music with selections such as "Finnegan's Wake," "Irish Dances," "Strutlerin' Lovers," and "Danny Boy."

The Orchestra recently appeared on the Eurovision Song Contest, Europe's most popular television event, attracting 900 million viewers in 30 nations.

Tickets are available at the La Mirada Civic Theatre box office, or may be charged by phone (213) 944-9801 or (714) 994-6310.

Money Offered

Students interested in a scholarship should complete and submit the application available at the Financial Aid Office.

The Cerritos College Scholarship Committee holds a meeting once a month to select winners. The next one will be Nov. 16.

Applicants will be notified by mail of their award or denial.

A student may receive only one scholarship per semester and have to be currently enrolled.

To receive clearance slip and check for scholarship, winners should have a driver's license or California ID and a current student body card.

Applications must be turned into the Financial Aid Office by Oct. 31, 1980.

Tests given to place students

Placement tests are recommended to all entering students and any continuing students who plan to earn an A.A. degree.

The results of these tests do not exclude students from admission to Cerritos College but are used by counselors to aid students with selection of classes.

Counselor Wally Frost said, "So many people avoid (placement) tests" and this causes "drastic limitations" as students can't take classes that require clearance.

Speakers take 2nd at Biola

The Cerritos College Speech team pulled off a second place at the Biola Invitational Individual Speech Tournament.

The Falcon speakers compiled a total of 28 points. This was enough to earn them the second place Sweepstakes Trophy. Cerritos finished behind Occidental College who had 39 points.

Out of 22 colleges and universities, Cerritos was the only community college to finish in the top five, with CSU Fullerton placing third.

Craig Philbrook of Downey paced the Falcon Squad by placing second in both Experienced Persuasive Speaking and Impromptu Speaking.

Pamela McKown took a first place in Experienced Children's Literature and David Henriquez scored a first place in Expository Speaking about his homeland of El Salvador.

Cerritos orators who made the finals, but failed to place were Janis Gillespie and Russell Baker both in Experienced Children's Literature, Pamela McKown in Experienced Persuasive Speaking, Jim Lamproe in Novice Expository, and Maureen Klapperich in Novice Persuasive.

Thirty students have participated so far in this year's tournaments, and another dozen are preparing for their first opportunity to express their ideas.

The library offers different services to the students. There are three photocopyers, two near the Reference Room, and the other in the Periodical Room.

The library provides typewriters behind the Circulation Desk, in the Reference Room, and in the Periodical Room. There is no charge for the use of these typewriters.

Services for the handicapped include elevated carrels for wheelchairs, an elevator which permits easy access to all levels of the library and reading machines.

Hours are Monday through Thursday 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., and from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Friday.

To obtain a library card, just present your current student ID at the Circulation Desk. Once you have one, it may be renewed every semester. A fee charged in the case it is lost or stolen.

The Cerritos Learning Materials Center Library card may also be used at the Cerritos Public Library.

The library just this summer put in a record player for those students wishing to either enjoy the albums the library provides, or to evaluate them.

Soccer team rolling toward big finish

By FRED GOFF
TM Executive Editor

After dropping their first two South Coast Conference decisions, the Cerritos College Soccer team has won eight out of their last nine contests and have made a move on the leagues top two teams.

The Falcons continue conference play next Tuesday in Grossmont at 3. Cerritos is presently 6-3 in SCC action and due to a new conference ruling is still in the running for post-season action. Last year only the first place team went to the Southern California Finals, but this season the top two will qualify. The Falcons are presently in third, trailing undefeated Orange Coast (2 of Cerritos 3 losses) and San Diego Mesa, who is 5-2. Mesa still has one remaining contest with the Pirates of Orange Coast.

The climb to the top started with victories over Santa Ana (3-0), Grossmont (1-0), Fullerton (4-2) and Mt. Sac (2-0). Adding two non-conference scrimmage wins over Long Beach City College (6-1) and Westmont College (5-0), the Falcons had outscored their previous six opponents by an impressive 23-3 margin.

The next SCC outing may have proved to be the Birds best total game to date, as the kickers downed San Diego Mesa by an overwhelming 4-0 score. Mesa had beaten Cerritos 4-1 in the season opener.

Cerritos opened the scoring early in the first half on a rare left-footed assist from Sergio Lohora with the goal going to Cesar Robledo. The Falcons stayed with the unusual when the second goal was caromed in off the head of forward Ezzat Elsayed. Elsayed is from Lebanon where heading the ball is seldom done.

A foul in the Mesa penalty box accounted for the third CC score with team captain Louis Van Smaalen getting the goal on a penalty kick. Van Smaalen is four for four in penalties this year. Robledo capped the scoring in the one-sided Falcon victory with his second goal of the game.

Defensively for Cerritos, Robbie Blackmore, Gary Grow and Art Torres played flawlessly.

The win over SD Mesa was the Falcons fifth conference victory in a row and the stage was set for the second and last game between Cerritos and Orange Coast.

Failure to capitalize on early scoring opportunities and a defensive mistake lead to a 1-0 Pirate lead at the end of the first 45 minute stanza.

Frustration and over anxiousness attributed to a sloppy second half for Cerritos and a close game never came within the grips of the CC kickers. After the final 90 minutes, OC came away with a slim 2-0 victory, keeping their SCC record unblemished. The second Pirate tally came when Cerritos was caught with only two men back on defense.

Proving that good teams don't roll over and play dead, Cerritos took to their home field yesterday and got back on the winning track with a 5-0 victory over the Dons of Santa Ana. The victory margin was identical to the one the Falcons notched in the first half of conference play.

With a more determined look, Cerritos took the field in a somewhat mechanical state and never let the opposition throw a wrench into their works.

Sergio Lohora started the onslaught with a head goal after only eight minutes of action. The assist went to midfielder Rick Villavicencio. Just 13 minutes later, Z Barbic scored on a left-footed shot from eight yards to put the Falcons ahead 2-0. Left wing Steve Winton added the last goal before the half time intermission on Villavicencio's second assist.

The second half opened with Villavicencio getting a goal of his own and later in the half Ezzat Elsayed put the lid on the Cerritos scoring with the final goal.

Adding the last three games to the previous goals for and against average, the Falcons have outscored their last nine foes by an outstanding 32-5 margin, winning eight out of the nine contests.

South Coast Conference scoring for the falcons shows the team concept that third year head coach Dave McLeish has been trying to attain. Leading Cerritos in goals is Villavicencio with five, Elsayed with four, Lohora, Winton and Barbic with three, Ben Perez and Robledo with two and Van Smaalen with one.

With only three games left in the 12 game campaign, McLeish is still very optimistic saying, "We didn't win it (conference championship) until after the last game last season. Anything can still happen."

Getting it in the end

By RICHARD HUDSON JR.
TM Assoc. Editor

The world of sports and sports reporting is different than any other facet of the precise and often fast paced service provided by what has come to be known as the "media."

It has taken on an air of an inexact art form, a surrealist painter with a can of spray paint in a tornado or a sculpturist with a sledge hammer.

Sportswriter conjures up an image of Oscar Madison hammering out a football story with one finger on the typewriter and the other nine wrapped around a can of beer.

News and political writers tend to poo-poo the idea of sportswriter being one word. "He wanted to be a journalist but took up writing sports instead."

But flexibility is the key to turning out a sports story, for above all the purpose of sports and sportswriting is to entertain.

Game winning plays are described a thousand different ways on at least as many papers throughout the full course of a year with an ever increasing menu of televised events.

A "hit," for instance, can mean a number of things. It could be a frozen rope, a hard liner, a chinker, a blooper, a drive, a screamer, a smash, a nubber or a squibber in baseball.

But in football, you could call a "hit" other things. It could be a pop, a stick, a sack, a blast or in some cases a punch in the mouth (Hi, Woody).

But when the 1980 World Series rolled around even the large herd of sportswriters (sportswriters travel in herds, while political writers travel in packs) came across a situation with no room to move.

Oh, they tried and tried to come across as pros. They attempted to describe it in a hundred ways, but even Howard Cosell was stumped.

Let's face it, put it all behind us. There is only one word that accurately describes the malady — hemorrhoids.

Heaven knows they tried. A pain in the posterior, miles of piles, a tool of the stool... it was a pain in the rear.

It was the first time in history that hemorrhoids caused ulcers. Those who had been afflicted in the past grimaced in pain, those who haven't laughed. Preparation H officials smiled and sportswriters acquiesced.

George Brett of the Kansas City Royals — a man who has made many a sportswriter happy in his pursuit of the elusive .400 batting average — had gotten revenge.

Maybe it was all those hours sitting on the stool in front of his locker giving countless interviews, or the hard wooden bench between innings, or those hard slides into second base (now we know why Pete Rose slides headfirst).

But whatever the reasons, in the end it was the sportswriters, not Brett, who became the butt of the joke.

Strawberry farmer finds South 40 'easy pickins'

By MICHELE WALTON
TM Staff Writer

For the past several weeks, there has been considerable activity in the vacant lot next to the C-10 parking lot.

The so-called "South 40" land has been leveled and graded, the soil turned and conditioned, and pipelines laid out and installed.

The 15.18 acre site in the south portion of the campus has been leased to farmer Michael Kohatsu who will grow strawberries.

In August, the Board of Trustees authorized the Cerritos College District to lease the vacant property. Agricultural or plant nursery businesses were considered.

Bids were accepted in September and the $825 per acre lease was awarded to Kohatsu.

Tom Berry, Grounds Director, explained the decision to lease the land. "The field was becoming difficult to maintain. We were spending a lot of man-hours clearing out the weeds and removing debris which was being dumped there."

The grounds maintenance people were having to spend so much time on the lot, he added, that other areas of the campus were being neglected.

According to Kohatsu, work is progressing on schedule and planting will begin the first week in November.

All expenses for maintenance of the farm are the responsibility of Kohatsu. According to the lease, no structures will be built on the site and no machinery or vehicles will be stored there.

The lease will extend for one year, with an option to renew yearly for the next four years. In succeeding years, the acreage may be increased or decreased due to district construction.

A temporary wooden fence will surround the strawberry field to discourage would-be trespassers who may be tempted to sample the forbidden fruit.

2-0 Falcons host 2-0 Santa Ana at 25th Homecoming

Gridders ranked sixth in state

By GEORGE LAURIN
Co-Sports Editor

Saturday night the Falcons will take on Santa Ana College for the Cerritos Homecoming game at 7:30. "This could decide the conference championship," said Coach Frank Mazzotta.

It was the return of the injuries as the Cerritos College football team won their fourth straight in a come from behind 24-10 victory over Orange Coast.

Returning for action were sophomores Jeff Tedford (quarterback), Arlo Gates (fullback), and Ricky Valenzuela (halfback).

The Falcons rolled into Orange Coast last Saturday night, coming off an impressive win over San Diego Mesa, last year's conference champs.

But the Pirates weren't going to roll over for the Falcons. Early in the second quarter, they drove 80 yards in 9 plays, and scored with a Boss to Sholin 35 yard pass. The kick was good and the Coast led by seven.

The Pirates quickly got the ball back and scored on a 32 yard field goal from Rouse with 8:54 on the clock.

In the first half, the Falcons drove inside the Orange Coast 20 yard line five times and came away empty handed until the closing moments of the half when Tedford hit Massie on a 27 yard touchdown pass.

Rocky Costello had a night he probably would like to forget, as he missed three straight field goal attempts; from 43, 41, and 38 yards out in the first half.

"I'm not worried about Rocky," states Mazzotta. "He is one of the best placekickers around."

Falcon team invades South

On Nov. 4 cross country coach Dave Kamanski will lead his charges to San Diego for the Conference Championship Meet.

"It is within us," said Kamanski, "we have the capabilities of having a good day and finishing in the top four."

The reason the top four spots are so important is that only those schools will represent the conference at the Southern California Championships.

In addition, the top ten individual marks will be eligible for the championship meet.

Tedford, coming off an ankle injury, also had a good game. He threw 17 times for 11 completions and two touchdown passes to wide receiver Ron Massie.

Massie caught a total four Tedford passes for 97 yards to keep him tops in the conference receiving department with 26 catches for 410 yards and five touchdowns.

The Falcons returned early in the third quarter to score with another Tedford to Massie 23 yard touchdown pass with 10:45 on the clock.

The kick by Rocky was good and the Falcons had come from behind to take a 14-10 lead.

Costello returned in the fourth quarter with 5:39 left in the game to boot a 36-yarder and make it 24-10 for the final score.

Cerritos is currently rated sixth in So. Cal. and will be meeting the Santa Ana Dons Saturday night who are rated fourth. Cerritos is currently in a three way tie for first with Santa Ana, and Fullerton.

The game will begin at 7:30 at Falcon stadium, with the homecoming festivities to begin at 6:30.

The Cerritos College Falcons went into the season opener with the best pre-season record in eleven years, but with Jeff Tedford their number one quarterback sidelined with an injury.

The Falcons hosted last year's conference champs, San Diego Mesa, who were looking for their first victory in Falcon stadium. The Olympians are still looking as Cerritos played probably their best game this year and walked away with a 27-17 victory.

However, while Rocky had a night to forget, Valenzuela returned to play with a night to remember. He ran the ball 20 times for 126 yards and one touchdown. He was the Falcons' leading rusher, and regained his starting position at halfback.

Poloists still hope

By WAYNE WURZER
TM Sports Writer

"The door is open and hasn't even started to close for the Southern California Championships," were the words of freshman water poloist Jeff Berry when asked about the team's chances of advancing into post season play.

The squad strengthened its chances last Friday when it defeated Mt. San Antonio by a score of 13-7.

Berry scored four goals to lead the Falcon victory that placed them in third place with a 3-2 record in the tough South Coast Conference.

The Falcons battled San Diego Mesa yesterday in a big game (the result was unavailable at press time), and travels to Orange Coast College Friday to play a very crucial game in their drive for the playoffs.

Freshman Louis Martinet seemed optimistic about the team's chances. "Hopefully we've worked out all our difficulties on defense and now our offense is starting to come around."

In the victory against Mt. San Antonio, the offense came around. Besides Berry's good showing, the Falcons got three goals from Jim Lowe and two apiece from Doug Kimberly and Paul Bopp. Freshman goalie Paul Pevehouse supplied much of the defense with nine saves.

The previous game saw the tankmen lose to Fullerton by a score of 11-5. The squad was coming off an impressive 9-1 thrashing of Grossmont when it lost to the unbeaten SCC leaders.

Of the team's losses, Berry said, "The only reason we've lost is because of foolish mistakes. If we stop making them we should pull everything together."

Friday's game at OCC against the second place Pirates begins the second round of loop play.

"We should start playing better the second half of league now that all the freshmen are coming around," said sophomore Paul Bopp.

Asked what the difference is between this year's team and last year's undefeated team, Bopp said, "We've had good teams both years, but the league is tougher this year."

The Falcons must have a good second half to make it to the Southern California Championships. The top two finishers in league go with the possibility of a third being chosen as a wild card.

Women's Volleyball continue title climb

By JEFF MARIFIAN
TM Sports Writer

Cerritos College women's volleyball team continued its climb to the top with two key victories over conference rivals Mt. SAC and Santa Ana, putting them in position for a shot at the league title.

The Falcons now boast a 5-1 record in loop play, including four straight conference wins, while their overall mark jumped to 8-3.

In the win over Mt. Sac, the Falcons struggled a little, but finally got going to win with relative ease. After a slow start in the first two games, Cerritos led by Mandy MacMahon and Lori Robarg started clicking to win the next two games and put away the match.

"We had problems in the first two games with our defense," said Coach Jeanine Prindle.

"We finally started to pick up the pace in the third game," she added. The fourth game was no contest as the Falcons rattled off nine straight points to take a 14-0 lead and coast to victory.

Friday night the Falcons traveled to Santa Ana to take on the Dons in quest of their fourth straight league win.

Coach Prindle called it, "our best team effort of the season." The Birds swept past Santa Ana three straight games, 15-10, 15-8, and 15-11.

"Everyone contributed to the win," stated Prindle. Debbie Wooldridge and Mandy MacMahon played good defense, while Cindi Selph, Laura Verner, and Gigi Alpenia did a good job of setting.

MacMahon was the top hitter for the Birds, putting down 15 of 25 sets.

"Everything clicked for us. We played tough defense, blocked, and hit very well," said Prindle.

That's four conference wins in a row.

Co-Rec adds games; Students pack gym

By WAYNE WURZER
TM Staff Writer

An estimated 550 people packed the Cerritos College gym and adjacent areas to compete in the second Co-Rec night of the year Sunday.

The next Co-Rec, which happens on the last Sunday of every month between 6:30 and 9:30, will be on Nov. 30.

The Associated Student body sponsored activity has received excellent reviews from both organizers and participants alike.

Doug Kimberly, commissioner of athletics and chief organizer of the activity, has been pleased with the turnout for the first two meetings.

Sunday's crowd was bigger than the first one. So far we're getting more people than last year," he said. The early leaders are SAM in men's volleyball, Lambda Phi Sigma in women's volleyball, Harambee in basketball, Rick V in racquetball, and Jeff Towns in table tennis. Sunday saw four video games introduced as a new activity.

Coordinator of Activities Norm Price seemed especially excited about the new event, calling it "heavy duty."

"We're going to have them again next time, but we're not sure if we're going to make them permanent," added Kimberly.

Asked about any other new events or changes, he said, "A lot of the good teams get discouraged because they can't get enough games, so we're going to see about getting separate volleyball and basketball tournaments."

Co-Rec invites all clubs, fraternities and sororities to get teams together and participate once a month in a variety of events.

At the end of the semester, points will be tallied, and awards will be presented at the fall semester Awards Banquet.

Trophies will go to the team with the most points and the team that shows the most participation.

Winging home

Runningback Todd Anderson (23) and quarterback Jeff Tedford (12), will be going for the "Silver" during the Nov. 1 Homecoming game when the Falcons, undefeated in league action, hosts 2-0 Santa Ana at 7:30 Saturday night.

Women volley up 5-1 record

By JEFF MARIFIAN
TM Staff Writer

Cerritos College women's volleyball team keeps rolling along, playing the type of volleyball that may very well bring them a conference title.

The Birds handled league opponents Fullerton and Grossmont as well as placing in the prestigious Saddleback tournament. The wins upped their conference record to 3-1 while making their overall mark 8-3.

The Falcons travel to San Diego Mesa to take on the Olympians Wednesday night at 7.

In defeating Fullerton, the Falcons had a tough time as the Hornets took them to the limit before bowing out in the fifth and final game of the match.

After splitting the first two games, Cerritos fell behind in the third game 14-7 only to reel off nine unanswered points behind the serving of Gigi Alpenia who tossed up 12 of the 16 points.

In what coach Jeanine Prindle termed the "turning point" of the match, Cerritos could not keep up their momentum however, and dropped the fourth game 7-14 setting the stage for final game showdown.

"We started strong, going ahead 8-0," noted Prindle only to watch Fullerton get right back in it. Then leading 14-13, Lori Robarge put away two set shots by Gigi Alpenia to get the serve and win the game 15-13.

"Debbie Wooldridge played an excellent match making several key blocks and hits," said Prindle who also got a stellar defensive performance out of Mandy MacMahon.

The Falcons had a bit easier of a time beating Grossmont in four games. They started off well winning the first two games by a combined score of 30-12.

"We played very well in the first two games, especially serving," stated Prindle.

The third game belonged to Grossmont who "played well and made few mistakes."

The fourth game was a real dogfight with both teams holding leads. Trailing 10-5, the Birds battled back to tie at 10-10 and reached game point (14) first, but Grossmont scored their 13th point and had the serve.

On the next play, Debbie Wooldridge put the ball down and then served for the winner. Prindle lauded Mandy MacMahon for "outstanding defense and passing in the backcourt."

Lori Robarge led Cerritos in hitting, putting down 50% of her sets.

Cerritos participated in the Saddleback tourney, compiling an 8-3 record while finishing second in their pool. In doing so, they advanced to the quarter-finals before losing to the eventual runner-up Santa Monica City College.

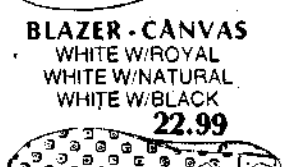

The Falcons finished fifth overall, but that didn't seem to bother Prindle.

"We are a young team in comparison to other top teams and we are getting a lot of experience," concluded the coach.

Address redress

Just when it looked like the Board of Trustees had quickly contained the flames over the residency of member Merl Doty at its special meeting Monday night, a group of citizens who apparently have it in for Doty kicked up a gusty wind and forced the Board to place the controversy into a regular discussion item at its next regular meeting.

What the Board — and especially Doty — has on its hands now could easily turn into a raging fire complete with plenty of first degree burns. Last week, the Los Angeles Times reported that Doty had received a homeowners exemption for a legal residence in Mission Viejo, and that he had appeared on the May, 1980 tax rolls for Orange County.

Board President Katie Nordbak instructed all members to bring to Monday's meeting proof that they lived within the college district, a requirement for elected Trustees.

Doty produced a voters registration packet addressed to his home in Lakewood, and said that he didn't realize that he had obtained a homeowners exemption for what he termed was income property in Orange County.

Because the law stipulates that intent must be proved, the Board generally agreed that there was no need to pursue the matter further.

This did not satisfy the group in the audience, who later admitted that they are upset at Doty's recent criticism of the bilingual teaching and EOPS programs at Cerritos College.

Because of this apparent vested interest, the group who say that they are most concerned about where Doty lives appear to lack credibility at this point, for it is clear they have additional motives.

It is unlikely that anything more than another ugly episode complete with possibly slanderous statements directed at Doty will come about as a result of next month's discussion of the matter.

If Doty did knowingly attempt to illegally reside in Orange County, it is virtually impossible to prove at this point, since he apparently has never left Lakewood.

Several members of Monday's group which included some past or present employees of the campus indicated they would bring proof to the next meeting that there is enough evidence to warrant further action by the Attorney General.

We urge those with such actual evidence to appear at the meeting and address the Board as they attempt to decide on appropriate action.

But by the same token, we feel that those who wish to use the incident as a vehicle for venting displeasure over unrelated issues, and those who are equipped with innuendo rather than facts, should stay home.

It's in the 'can'

Day 361, and our fellow Americans are still in bondage.

The Iranian Parliament is still as unpredictable as day one.

President Carter is still smiling.

Anderson is still campaigning.

Life goes on!

Iranians living in the United States have been accusing the western press of spreading propaganda.

Since the western press is still not allowed in Iran, most stories from the Iran and Iraq war begin with, "According to Iranian sources," or "According to Iraqi sources, . . ."

It's about time the American public realized the American way of life is not well liked in a lot of other countries. Sure they have heard many speeches from our leaders on freedom and faith, but in recent times have seen little action.

The United States was built on the "can do" spirit, but we have changed to the "what do we now" spirit.

And only the American public "can" change that.

Wait until next year

With only 1,512 hours or so left of the year 1980, it's time to start saying "Wait until next year."

It's too late to make 1980 New Year's resolutions good. Too late to get in shape for summer. Too late to make this birthday special. Too late to start running marathons, transferring to higher education or to really crack the books.

The only thing there's time for it to say, "Wait until after the first of the year — and then I'm going to . . ."

This year has already pretty well taken care of itself — except what to do with the hours that are left.

"Put your coat on."

"B-but Mom."

"If you don't put your coat on, you will get sick like your sister. She never wears her coat. You will get cough all de time."

I put on my coat.

When my sister coughs she sounds like a seal.

Well, anyway, here I am walking down the street inhaling carbon dioxide dressed like Yogi Bear wearing a little girl's coat with my sister five feet behind barking away.

And you wonder why I only went out once. When I got home I opened my sack to pore over the contents.

Mom poured them over the trash can.

"But Mom. . ."

"You don't know what is in de can."

dy. We will buy you some at de store."

"It's not the same thing."

"You can wear your mask and say 'treck or treats' to de man at de counter."

Passing out the candy is not so bad. At least you don't have to wear a coat.

Here's to the 'Pumpkin'

By ROBIN NELSON
Editor-in-Chief

I believe in the Great Pumpkin. Linus and I watch for him every year.

Most people don't realize it, but he's got a better thing going than Santa Clause.

He gets us to do his work for him. I guess he likes to supervise . . . like my dad. But you gotta admit his system is a lot better.

He gets people to give presents to total strangers . . . dressed in weird get-ups no less.

And even if it's only once a year, it still accomplishes a lot.

Halloween gives folks a chance to have some fun, help others to have fun, and act off-the-wall without having to explain.

"It's part of my costume."

And think of the business generated.

Candy, pumpkins, vampire blood, masks, make-up . . .

And haunted houses and carnivals. Everybody gets caught up in the Great Pumpkin's spirit.

I remember one time this vampire chased us half way up the street.

Of course, we got the candy before we took off.

With Halloween there is involvement for every age.

Of course, there are some people who leave their bowl of candy outside the front door — with a sign saying "Take One."

Cheapskates. The Great Pumpkin evokes a happy giving, sharing, caring, scary spirit.

We need more of that.

Join Linus and me youknowwhere.

The truck stops here

By MARK CHILD

Did ya ever get your car stolen?

All that was left was a little oil spot . . . I mean my truck was gone as if it vanished into thin air.

My first instinct was to search the school parking lot in hopes that I simply misplaced my truck. But then how do you misplace a two-ton brown and gold Chevy?

The first question the campus police asked was, "Are you sure it was stolen?"

After explaining to the desk officer that I had been roaming around the parking lot for the past half hour looking for it, I finally arrived at a conclusion my truck had definitely been ripped off.

The Sheriff's deputy arrived and guess what the first question was?

"Are you sure it was stolen?"

Once again I explained that I had searched for my truck for quite some time, turning up nothing.

To make a long story short, the report was put on the air and I went home without my truck.

Two days later I received a call at work from the Compton Police notifying me that they had found my truck. Oh well . . . so much for that '69 Camaro I wanted.

Winter discontent

Sweating out the season

By LUCREZIA LARUSSA

Winter, where art thou?

How cruel of Mother Nature to tease us with chilly mornings which turn into hot afternoons. I was happily pulling out my turtle-necked sweaters, winter coats, and snug boots only to find myself suffocating by noon.

For a person from the cold northwest, this California weather is down-right frustrating. I miss having four distinct seasons. In my hometown, it's brown in the winter and green in the summer — not the other way around.

I'm tired of going to the carwash, tired of sandals and cutoffs. I want to sit in front of a roaring fire and sip hot chocolate.

Have you checked out the clothes in the department stores recently? They've got to be kidding! If we're lucky, we might have a few weeks in January to wear them.

Have you seen any birds flying south? Of course not! They stopped in Malibu thinking they were in Panama.

What fun is it to go to a football game if you can't wear mittens and a muffler and spill steaming coffee on every touchdown?

How I long for the days when on the first snow a big city would slow to a country pace and at every intersection full of stuck cars a great snowball fight was in progress.

Wouldn't it be wonderful to sing "White Christmas" with even the smallest measure of hope?

Oh winter — which carries such warm memories in its cold embrace — come hither!

Letters . . .

EDITOR:

On behalf of the Associated Students of Cerritos College, I would like to thank all those people who gave blood to the Cerritos College Blood Drive.

This year we collected a record 91 pints of blood for one day's endeavor.

As you perhaps know, all the people who donated blood, as well as their families are now members of the Cerritos College Blood Bank, and may if necessary draw as much blood as needed.

I hope the need will never arise, but if it ever does, the blood will be there.

Our next Blood Drive will be held on May 19, 1981. It is hoped that people will set that day aside and join us in this worthwhile endeavor.

Furthermore, I'd like to thank all students and staff for their cooperation in helping the Homecoming Committee and myself with our efforts to put on the best Homecoming Cerritos has ever had.

Cerritos College is certainly a great place to be and I trust that we will all work together to make it even better!
