Elections begin Tuesday for what is expected to be a controversial Student Senate Spring term.

Petitions of candidacy are now available from the Student Activities Office.

To be eligible, a student must be a full-time student with 10 or more units, must have carried a 2.00 GPA last semester and 20 students must sign their nominating petition.

Over 70 students are expected to run for the 36 seats, and the voter may cast his ballot for any 10 candidates.

Senate election petitions due, blocs form

All ASCC members are eligible to vote and must bring their student body card with them to the polling booth.

The booths will be open both Feb. 21 and 22 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 5 p.m. until 9 p.m. and will be located at the Elbow Room, the Student Center, the Technology building, and in the Athletic area.

Major slates that are expected to run candidates include the Latter-Day Saints Students Association (LDSSA), the Cosmetology and Technology Department, the Athletics Department, and the Filipino Club.

Other clubs and organizations are expected to run their own slates and some individuals will run as independents.

Items that are expected to come before the senate this term include the reinstitution of the tutoring program and other matters dealing with the extra $30,000 that the ASCC is expected to receive from the increased membership fees for part-time students.

Over two-thirds of last fall's senate were members of one of the four major blocs, which have been criticized by some as looking out for their own special interests.

But Brian Willis, president of the LDSSA, felt that the criticism is unfair.

"We feel that we are serving the students as a club on campus, and we feel the things that we support will help the student body," said Willis.

He noted that they opposed the imposition of parking and tution fees, and that after they became inevitable, worked to make the best deal possible for the students.

The high percentage of senators being from the four major blocs could reflect the possibility of apathy among students not connected to one of the clubs running a slate.

In the last election 1267 students voted, with the candidates from the Cosmetology and Technology bloc being named on over one-third of the ballots.

Reasons cited for this include the ability of the departments and clubs to organize large groups of people to campaign for their candidates and in turn have a large built-in vote from their members.

Critics of the blocs say that undue pressure is placed upon the students to vote, including coercion from faculty.

All of the slates have denied this charge, and a Faculty Senate committee last year found no evidence of wrong-doing among any of the groups.

A profile of the candidates submitting statements will appear in next week's Talon Marks.

$1 million for college

Tuition is in — $96 million ok'd

By BARBARA EKNOIAN
and TERRY SPENCER

Cerritos College will probably get a million dollars from the original proposal for state community college funding of $134 million — Governor Deukmejian has agreed to $96.5 million statewide with the rest of the monies to be made up by fees.

The money approved by Deukmejian represents a six percent increase in budget for community colleges. University of California and Cal State programs, on the other hand, received a 30% increase in funding this year by the governor.

According to Cerritos College President Dr. Wilford Michael, community colleges have a poor image in Sacramento. "The aides of the governor and legislature all think we should be a four year transfer program."

"But what we teach gives opportunity to those students not covered by the UC and Cal State programs, such as women who are returning to school, minority students, and low income students."

"The governor has a poor image of us," Dr. Michael said, "he doesn't realize the opportunity we give them in transfer and vocational opportunities and chances for finding better employment."

Dr. Michael added, "There is more prestige for the UC programs in terms of what they do for research rather than what we do training technicians and the like."

As to the usage of the funds at Cerritos College, Michael stated that the Board considers the faculty a high priority.

In addition, the monies will be used toward increasing the number of hours of student services.

Another priority area is maintenance, such as building reroofing, and air conditioner repair.

"They break down more often without (proper) maintenance," said Michael, "However, nothing is certain. We will set priorities."

Programs that will not be reinstated include: the stewardess program, construction aeronautics, prosthetics, and orthotics.

Concerning the inequity in the Average Daily Attendance — the figure used in computing how much the college will receive per student differs widely throughout the state — State Bill SB851 has a provision for equity funding. It is to take effect after all money is paid out to the districts.

"They will go back to the districts that are not getting at least 91 percent of the state average for funding," said Dr. Michael. "We are approximately at 88 percent of the average so we will get money before others."

Master Plan: new philosophy or realignment

By TERRY SPENCER
TM Staff Writer

The State Chancellor's Office has recommended that California Community Colleges reconsider their Master Plans, and that an additional emphasis should be placed upon transfer and vocational programs.

The Chancellor's concern, according to Cerritos College President, Dr. Wilford Michael, is that the community colleges had gotten away from what they were originally established for.

"Our mission at Cerritos College has always been to promote the transfer and vocational programs, and I think we've succeeded in that," Dr. Michael said.

He added that no courses at Cerritos are in danger of being dropped because of the proposal.

The state has been concerned that not enough community college students have transferred to four year schools," he added, "But I don't feel that those figures are very accurate."

ICC kicks off

Club Booth activities today, tomorrow; clubs show wares

By CORRINE FIMBRES
TM Staff Writer

Club booth days, originated to spark student involvement, will be held today and tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the Quad and tonight from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Elbow Room.

Each club wishing to become active on campus constructs a booth for the purpose of club recruitment.

All ASCC students with at least a 2.0 GPA are encouraged to stop by and talk to the many club representatives.

Informational pamphlets and flyers concerning club activities and membership will be distributed to get students acquainted with the clubs.

Free soft drinks will be provided at a refreshment stand, worked by the Big C Club (Pep Squad), for students with an ASCC card.

"It's an exciting time for clubs to strengthen their organizations with new members and new ideas," said ICC Commissioner Gwendolyn Bayes.

The various clubs and organizations offered provide opportunities for students in curricular, panhellenic, service and special interest groups.

Academic interest is the main concern of Curricular clubs. "I'm hoping that clubs and organizations associated in the academic areas will stimulate student interest," said Coordinator of Student Activities Phil Houseman.

'It's an exciting time for clubs.'

The primary goal of Panhellenic clubs is to involve fraternities and sororities in social activities. "By becoming socially active, students can learn responsibilities and leadership skills," Bayes said, "and perhaps make new lasting relationships."

The interest of the total college program and community is the major concern of service clubs.

The possibilities of reactivating a club that may have gone on inactive status or beginning a new club that meets a student's needs can be arranged at the office of Student Activities.

Permit theft: buyer loss

By MICHAEL J. BARNES
TM Staff Writer

Parking permits will not be replaced if stolen, lost, or mangled, according to Security Assistant Joe Knapp.

David Olsen, a second semester student, recently had his hanging permit stolen from his convertible. He reported the incident to Security, and was told that he would have to purchase a new one for the same $12 cost.

Olsen stated that the Public Information Office didn't even ask for his receipt to prove that he had purchased a permit.

Knapp explained, "Some people, not a majority of the people because some people are honest, say that their permit was stolen, and eventually end up with several permits."

"It also could be compared with a radio. You couldn't walk out of a store, have the radio stolen, and expect the store to replace it. It just isn't done."

The College's Spring Schedule Catalog stated the policy for permits that are lost, stolen or damaged: "Replacement of lost, stolen, damaged, or permits sold with the vehicle may be made at the Parking Information Office or Community Services Center in accordance with the fees indicated."

"We do manage to obtain a number of the permits that were lost or stolen," stated Knapp.

The security office takes the numbers of the stolen permits and gives those numbers to the parking control

Purse snatcher plagues campus; caution urged

By JOE GIBBS
TM News Editor

"Carelessness can cost you your purse," states Joe Knapp, head of campus security.

A recent series of thefts has occurred primarily around the Physical Sciences building.

"It appears to be a young female, posing as a student," Knapp said.

The suspect enters classrooms, sits down, picks her victim, and leaves them purseless, or at least money less.

A chemistry teacher who wishes to remain anonymous is one who was robbed.

Apparently, she left her office for a few minutes to run an errand, and returned to find her purse stolen.

The thief only took $20, and left the remaining contents of the wallet in the women's bathroom.

Student Debbie Mora had $40 taken in the same pattern. The wallet was left in the ladies' restroom.

She also left for a few minutes and upon her return noticed her purse missing. The culprit doesn't seem to be very interested in credit cards or anything else of great value, mostly concentrating on the cash.

The purse stealing has been going on for some time now, with the latest reporting no more than two weeks ago.

Mora commented, "The girl is very sly. I don't know if she's a student or not, but whoever it is, she sure is very slick."

Knapp said, "Carelessness is playing a big part in the purse snatchings. The reason there are so many purses stolen is that people are leaving their belongings unattended."

"Whether or not it's carelessness is not the question," Knapp advises students to be aware of their surroundings, and if they sense a bad scene, or something unusual, act accordingly.

"All in all, be careful. Watch all of your possessions and don't forget anything, anywhere, or you could be the next victim," said Knapp.

Grads surveyed in effort to learn future career goals

By JENNIFER KNOX
TM Staff Writer

If you graduated from high school last June, then you may be one of the 15,000 Californians surveyed last week in an effort by the California Postsecondary Education Commission to discover how and why students make educational and career decisions.

Subsequent surveys, designed to determine the basis for post high school career and educational activities, will be mailed once or twice annually for the next six years.

The initial short survey was mailed last week to inform graduates about the study and to obtain correct addresses.

According to Commission Director Patrick M. Callan, the surveys will be mailed to approximately one out of 20 recent high school graduates to enable the state to "improve educational, financial aid, counseling and outreach programs for future graduates."

Callan also noted that a "strong response rate is absolutely essential" and that "the responses will be kept confidential under the terms of state law."

The survey was mandated by the Legislature and Governor Deukmejian in 1982 as a part of the Commission's continuing study of eligibility standards for the University of California and the California State University.

Falcons shoot for 10 straight tonight

Cagers invade Compton (4-6); host Santa Ana Saturday in title quest

By MIKE HEINRICH
TM Sports Editor

With four games to go in conference action, the streaking Falcon basketball team has rolled up nine consecutive victories. Their most recent was the 63-39 pounding of Mt. SAC, putting them atop the SCC with a 9-1 record.

Cerritos, currently rated No. 9 in the state, will play at Compton tonight at 7:30, and will be at home against Santa Ana Saturday. Wins could mean a first-round bye in the state playoffs for the defending champs.

"The team has found their identity as they are responding and listening during this all-important meaty part of the season," stated head coach Jack Bogdanovich. "I'm proud of how hard they are playing. At this point of the season, they are ahead of last year's team," he said.

During the nine-game win streak, Cerritos displayed an overpowering offense led by forward Andre Greer who has averaged 15 points through the streak. He's shooting at a 57 percent clip from the field, with a remarkable 80 percent from the free throw line.

As to the most consistent player, Bogdanovich responded, "The whole group has played solid as a single unit. (Cary) Kutzke is the key to our attack as he has been getting a lot of assists and has been hitting his shots recently."

"Greg Hannan is starting to take command of the ball game out there, and (Joey) Yezbak as well as Greer have been playing consistently and shooting real strong," exclaimed Bogdanovich.

Even though the Birds have had trouble maintaining big leads in the second half, their defense has come through when they've needed it most. Spearheading the defense is center Bruce Hannan who leads the team with 185 rebounds for the season.

Guards Kutzke and Yezbak have done excellent jobs on defense as well as getting timely steals that have turned around a couple of games.

Kutzke leads all Falcons with 110 assists on the year, but is closely followed by Greer's 99 assists.

Bench strength has played a vital role in the streak. Matt Fitzgerald has helped out defensively and offensively as the sixth man, and George Guy and Kyle Spears have also made key contributions.

Here is a run down of the Falcon nine game win streak.

71	Cypress	63
77	Mt. SAC	64
82	Compton	57
82	Santa Ana	66
73	Orange Coast	66
72	Golden West	63
75	Fullerton	61
52	Cypress	44
63	Mt. SAC	39

In the most recent victory over Mt. SAC, the Falcons completely dominated every aspect of the game and every player on the Cerritos roster contributed at least two points.

Shooting at an unbelievable 73 percent from the field, the Falcons did whatever they wanted to whenever they wanted to.

Greer led all scorers with 17 points and Russell Otis contributed 10 points as well as a team leading six rebounds.

"Mt. SAC had a lot of injuries and losing Jarvis Basnight for the remainder of the season was a big blow," commented Bogdanovich.

Cerritos played aggressive and stingy on defense as Mt. SAC scored only 14 points in the first half with a very conservative and ineffective offense.

Earlier in the week, Cerritos played a much more aggressive Cypress team that had a chance to tie Cerritos in the standings with a win.

The Falcons had a rough time in the Charger gym, falling behind at halftime 24-23.

Turnovers were the major reason for the close score as the Falcons committed 16 turnovers in the game.

Cypress shot a dispiriting 27 percent from the field while Cerritos shot a respectable 55 percent.

Leading all scorers with 19 points was Greer who shot 70 percent from the field and Otis also chipped in 13 points with a 71 shooting percentage.

Referees have been accused of a vital role in the outcome of more than one game this year, and in the Cypress game, another controversial job was turned in.

The refereeing has been so inconsistent that it led the Cypress Sports Information Director to include in his box score of the game a comment on the refs: "Two of them."

Fullerton, led by the SCC's leading scorer Sam Veal, came to the Cerritos gym for the big rematch at the midpoint of the season.

Rolling out to a 24-5 lead early in the first half, the Falcons were never seriously threatened en route to their 75-61 victory.

Yezbak had one of the best games of the year as he tallied 19 points and had five big steals that paced the Falcons onslaught.

Cerritos had a decisive edge on the boards at 37-23, with Hannan leading the Falcons with 11 rebounds.

Coach Bogdanovich was apprehensive coming into the game, "Otis and Yezbak had been hurt earlier in the week, Mike Chellsen had a 104 degree temperature and Greer had just arrived at L.A. Airport at 5:30 the day of the game because of a personal trip to Louisiana."

The only other threat during the Falcon win streak were the Pirates of Orange Coast who staged a miraculous comeback from a 20 point deficit to take the lead only to fall short of the Falcons in the end.

Key free throws in the closing minutes iced the game for the Birds.

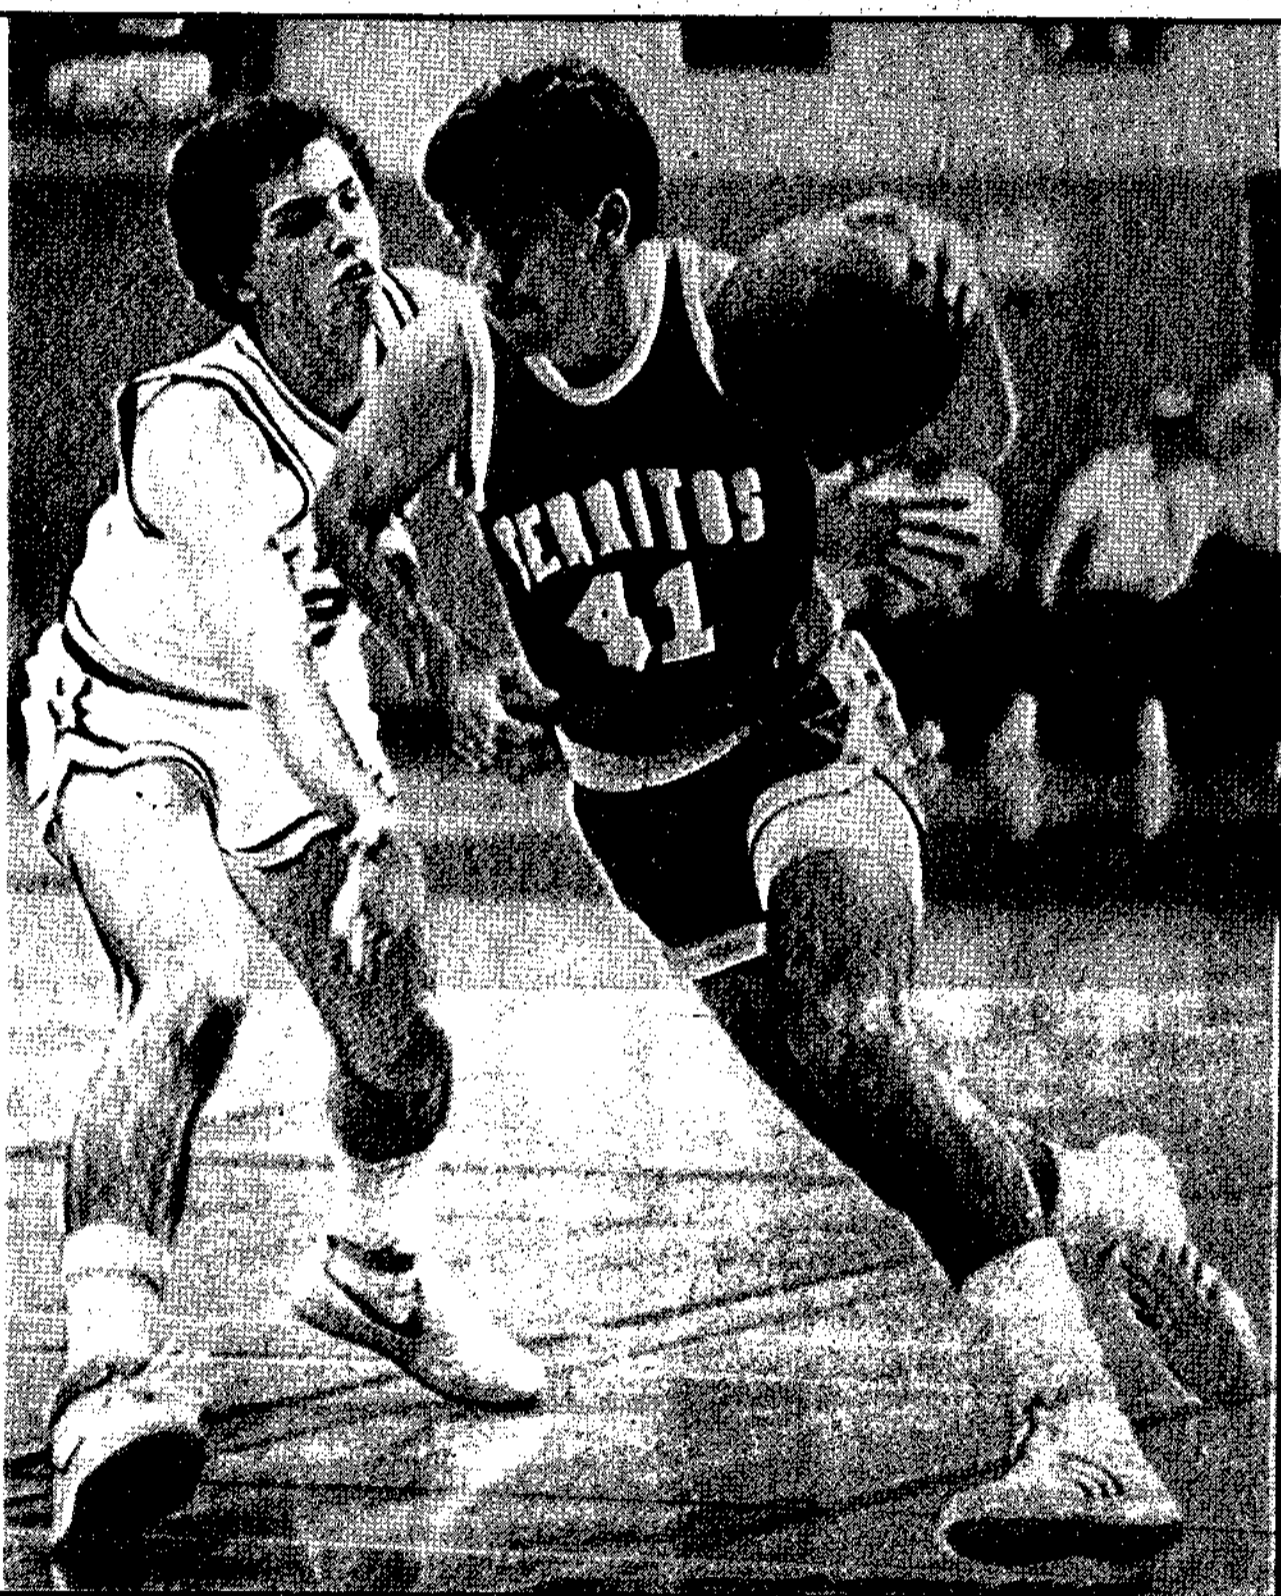

Bogdanovich was frustrated over the officiating. He retorted, "Orange Coast got away with playing physical out there. They know the referees weren't calling the fouls so they took advantage of it. I probably took the momentum away from the team in the second half by changing the offense and they stagnated early in the second half."

A change of heart

Satin hearts and lips straight from Taiwan can be bought for $1.29...

Silver balloons that float high above the hearts and announce the holder as special to the holdee are only $2.50...

Drugstore samplers of chocolates are a bargain at $1.69 to $12.50...

And a card — a simple card — is from 35¢.

There are lots of ways to say "You're special"... if the bucks are there. But for the struggling college student, how about washing a car for someone, doing those dishes on the sink, making that phone call that wasn't expected, or telling someone — be it teacher, friend, relative or adviser — that they're kinda special.

Doesn't have to cost much.

Doesn't even have to be on that one day a year.

Just because yesterday was Valentine's Day...

Why stop when you're on a roses roll?

Red ruler roulette

The choice of Konstantin Chernenko to succeed Yuri Andropov as leader of the Soviet Union is a sign that the "Breshnev" network that has controlled the Kremlin for the last twenty years is alive and well.

The emergence of Chernenko, who was Leonid Breshnev's top aide during his reign as Moscow's strongman, is seen by many as a repudiation of Andropov's reform policies.

Andropov, despite his hardline stand against the West, had made tremendous strides to remove the inefficiency and corruption that had marked the Russian economy during Breshnev's term. Many long-time national and local officials found themselves in Siberia or worse for "crimes against the state."

For the U.S., Chernenko is believed to be a follower of the policy of detente. With U.S.-Soviet relations at the lowest point since the Cold War of the early 1960's, and with the continued escalation of the arms race, the time may be ripe for our administration to approach the Russians, and achieve a mutually beneficial weapons agreement, which would be the real benefit of this change of Kremlin leadership for both of our peoples.

We can only hope...

Word-wise guise

Say what?

Never heard of a "sked"?

Why, that's akin to not knowing the difference in confab, conflag, and conclave.

Or, never having "slated" or "set" anything.

In merry old unowhere, they talk bloody "sheds."

Or is that "scheds"?

In today's dynamic, every-day-changing-what's-next technical jargon that may at any given time thrust itself into the ranks of everyday, acceptable English, you'd think TALON MARKS could get away with a little healthy, old-fashioned headlines once in a while.

Especially if it fits the space where we need it to fit — and, communicates the meaning in that measure....

But no, a former member of the Board of Trustees holds us up to a public downer, and almost — that's almost — embarrasses us into steering clear of such goodies as MC/emcee, JC/jaycee, veep, prexy, and other assorted cop-out count-outs too numerous and too vulgar to even mention or even contemplate.

It may be too big a byte to compute King's English-wise.

We apologize to anyone who didn't know what was meant by "Fall sked" and hereby/herein promise to keep such tricky usage at a minimum in the reasonably near future. Even though it's gonna hurt some not being able to occasionally take a little long-practiced literary license in our "heds"....

Our adviser has come down hard on us, and reprogrammed us — even though he's still trying to cope with the subtle nuances involving cat's pajamas, real cool, laid back, bad, hip, slick, sly, and ....

Hed sked-wise, we're pretty much on schedule.

Most of the time.

Motivational means to leadership

Do you know? Do you know where you're going to, do you like the things that life is showing you, do you know...?

Props such as Diana Ross' theme song from Mahogany, "Do You Know," and referring to greets in history, such as the daring slave runner, Harriet Tubman were just a few of the tactics employed by Dr. Taylor Hartman, Psychologist, University of Southern California that made him the standout speaker at the annual Spring Leadership Conference held at Vacation Village, San Diego during the semester break.

The purpose of the seminar is to help students acquire more effective leadership and management techniques, styles and qualities; as well as to be a fun and enjoyable experience.

Some one hundred student leaders, including ASCC President.

Fitsum Tadesse and VP Ray Vallejo managed to take time from their semester break to attend the three-day conference.

Though all speakers were excellent, Dr. Hartman's workshop entitled, "You Only Live Twice," was more intimate than the others as he touched on key emotions for better motivation.

As he played the tape "Do You Know," Dr. Hartman could be heard in the background, as if trying to imprint a subliminal message, saying, "You can be anything you want, nothing can stop you," and "You can do anything you want — it's not too late."

The student delegates showed their appreciation of Dr. Hartman's presentation by awarding him the only standing ovation.

Says ICC Commissioner, Gwendolyn Bays, "I had a great time. The speakers were terrific, especially Dr.

Hartman, he was outstanding. I commend student government on a great conference."

According to ASCC Supreme Court Justice Kevin Tyne, "The activities really went over well, I liked the early workshops and the free time."

Some of the activities over the three days included tennis, golfing, boating, ice skating and biking.

The highlight of the activities was on the last night as students and speakers had a dinner-dance aboard the schooner Invader.

But for some, the highlight came the night before at the ice skating rink when most of the students played Broomball, a game related to hockey — only played in tennis shoes and not skates, using a broom instead of a stick to hit a round ball that resembles a nerf basketball.

"I had a great time. The scheduled activities were fun, especially broomball," said Commissioner of Athletics, Elaine Cubas.

Andy Craig, ICC Pro-Tem, said, "Leadership was a great experience with outstanding speakers like Dr. Hartman, but my favorite part was playing broomball."

Other speakers included Professor Donna Grossman / Director of Forensics, Cerritos College; Professor Tom Nelson / Chairman Journalism Department, Adviser to Talon Marks; Melvin Brady / Professor of Management, Associate Dean and Chairman of Business Division, Cerritos College; Professor Richard McGrath / Chairman, Administrative of Justice, Department, Cerritos College; Gordon Galewick / Professor of Police Science and Traffic Education and Dr. James Davidson / Director of Research and Development, Hitco Corporation of America.

Deukmejian approves funds

FUNDING / From Page One

$15 million in funding is available statewide to help students with their tuition if needed. Low income students in households receiving welfare, and aid to dependent children are exempt from tuition at the present.

Questioned about studies done on how tuition will affect enrollment,

Michael responded, "In other states, a slight drop occurred, followed by a resurgence."

According to Dr. Michael, the legislature is also considering "differential funding" — in essence, classes that cost more to offer will receive more funding, for instance, in comparing a Nursing class to an English class, the Nursing class would receive more money from the state for its ADA because it costs the college more.

Michael also pointed out the main drawback to differential funding, "two English classes with the same number of units and students may not cost the same."

...Permit

officers, and they search for those permits.

However, the Parking Information Office does not give refunds to the victims when their permits have been returned.

"We don't handle refunds out of this office. All refunds are approved by the Business Services Office. But I will put in a good word to Dr. (Walter) Magnuson (Vice President in charge of Business Services) about the situation."

"One might be taught by a new teacher at the low end of the pay scale, and one might be taught by a teacher who has been here 20 years and is at the upper end of the scale; the costs would be radically different."

It remains to be seen, then, how the newly imposed tuition and equity bills will effect the community colleges' enrollment and class offerings.

LETTERS:

Editor:

Thank you for covering an important meeting of Cerritos College's Board of Trustees the evening of Jan. 23. A review of the college's Community Services and travel program was important to the college and the public.

A recent article in the Southeast News, headlined "Trustee changes mind on travel program", and the subsequent article seemed to imply that I "flipped" positions, almost arbitrarily. This is entirely untrue.

My willingness to give Community Services my general support, and it's travel program "very cautious support" was predicated upon the following arguments which were made at the meeting.

(1) that Community Services will this year overcome the deficit budgets it has experienced steadily for the last five years — cumulative deficits totaling $1,023,330 incurred from 1977-78 to 1982-83, according to Mr. Di Corpo's report to the Board of Trustees;

(2) that the travel program seek expert consultants for planning and additional default insurance to protect the college from future losses similar to the China tour default which may, in the end, cost the college $30,000; ...
3) that Community Services provide assurance to the Board that staff time will not be used in future tours;
4) that Community Services contact travel merchants in the district to give them an opportunity to compete for the college's tour business, and that some semblance of an equitable contract awarding process be developed.

Community Services can, and should, provide educational services to the community in a cost effective manner. But this service must not intentionally, or unintentionally, deflect sales and profits from local small business into college coffers simply to augment Community Services program and budget. If I see this problem growing, I will again bring the matter before the board.
