

Fall ASCC prexy race opens

Moore, Trapp, Estabrook get hot on issues

By SUSAN PHILLIPS
TM Editor-in-Chief

The battle for the ASCC presidency has escalated into the hottest contest in recent memory with three candidates, including this year's ASCC vice-president, vying for the seat on April 22 and 23.

Both sides of the so-called "Mason-Dixon line" (VICA and the rest of the campus), hope to gain control of the executive seat and some seem prepared to do so through such tactics as mud-slinging and name calling.

Before the campaign was even underway, cries of advisor interference were alleged from one campaign headquarters. Allegations that VICA was protecting votes for their own candidate were cited as the reasons for the interference.

PRESS FORUM THURSDAY

Presidential hopefuls will meet the press in an 11 a.m. forum tomorrow in the Board Room. KCEB and TM reps will question them on issues.

Amid all the confusion and the interference, all three candidates managed to file petitions by last Friday's cut-off date.

Don Trapp and David Mittleman have turned last year's winning ticket around in hopes of garnering another term in office.

Paul Moore, also a contender last year, has teamed with John Husek for another shot at the top spot.

Keith Estabrook has chosen Raine Dooner, once considered a potential presidential candidate herself, to fill out his ticket.

Mittleman, when questioned about the reverse order, replied that "No one was representing the students we felt needed to be represented — the students at large."

Mittleman feels it is a fair tactic even though there is a possibility that he will be transferring to a four-year school within the next year.

If his ticket is elected, Mittleman feels his transfer would not affect the administration.

ASCC offers to turn Bookstore blues over to college — for a fee

By VERNON MORROW
TM News Editor

The ASCC will close the bookstore controversy by leasing the enterprise to the District for an annual percentage provided the Board of Trustees approves an agreement for a new contract.

The new option would have the District lease the bookstore from the ASCC with an agreement to provide the students with an annual net commission of eight percent and a guarantee of five percent on gross sales. A committee of students would still work with Bookstore Manager Alan Beaulieu to maintain a working atmosphere at the suggestion of Mr. Beaulieu.

"I cannot picture running that store and keeping the atmosphere and keeping abreast with what this campus needs. Now that's a virtual impossibility for me," said Beaulieu.

Excitement of elections electrifies

By BRENT SIMS

Well, it's that time of the year again, and you can feel the excitement like electricity here on campus. I have to admit that I'm just as excited as the rest of the school is.

You know what I'm talking about. It's the time of year once again when the students rush madly to the polls and cast their ballots for the candidates of their choice.

How vividly I remember last year — the crowds, the balloons, the campaigning, riots in the bookstore, the national guard being called. It was better than Palm Springs.

I still can recall the lines to the polls that stretched from the Elbow Room all the way to Alondra Blvd, as well as the mariachi bands, street vendors and religious fanatics with flowers walking up and down the lines of restless students lining up to make their voices be heard.

Who can forget the sheer pageantry of the event?

Or the crowds at last year's climactic presidential debate? Why the Talon Marks photographer could barely see around the spectator to get any pictures.

And still, in spite of the incredible election turn-outs we have here at Cerritos, there are those who say that student apathy has got a choke hold on the school.

Why, I've even heard it nosed around that Cerritos is the only institution where more people run for president than vote for it.

Hah! We have enough candidates to keep student interest up for days.

Let me give you a run down on the election as I see it.

Paul Moore is one of those vying for that private line over in Student Activities.

Unfortunately I've never met Mr. Moore, nor have any of my friends, so it would be unfair for me to say anything about him in the paper.

Than there is Don Trapp.

I've never really met Trapp either, but I've heard he's a nice guy, but that was his girlfriend who told me that, and I think she might be biased. Besides, I'm in the same club on campus as his running mate Dave Mittleman, so it really wouldn't be right to say anything about those two either.

Finally there is Keith Estabrook, who I do know.

All that I can say is anyone with a nickname like "Dexter" must be some kind of guy.

As for issues, I'm really not sure exactly what the issues are around campus, but hey, who cares? With an election like this on our hands, who needs issues?

EDITORIAL

...And we'll do it again, unless ...

"Libya counted on us sitting back and doing nothing. They counted wrong."

The U.S. decision to bomb terrorist sites in Libya caused Americans to feel a new surge of pride about themselves and their nation that hasn't been felt in a long time.

President Reagan made the right decision. "Today we have done what we had to do," he told the nation in his televised speech.

How could we not agree with him?

If we, as a free nation, are ever to feel safe enough to set foot outside our doors, we have to stop the terrorism now.

The U.S. has long been known as a champion of freedom. We have always walked tall, bowing to no one.

We are not about to start now.

Kadafi has challenged us through his acts of terrorism. He has killed indiscriminately and then denied ever doing so.

Now we have proof.

Kadafi has paid the price for his deeds.

The bombing of Libyan terrorist camps can only begin to weed out terrorism in the world. There are too many nations, including Libya, that support and condone such terrorism.

Americans will no longer tolerate it.

Terrorists are now going to be held accountable for their actions. No longer will bombings and hijackings go unpunished. The world of terrorism has been put on notice and has received the first of many messages in response to its actions.

Kadafi and others like him will no longer sit back smugly, surveying the damage they've inflicted on others.

The U.S. has retaliated and, if necessary, we'll do it again.

CHEATERS NEVER PROSPER

Exam stealing thief makes most not-wanted list

(Editor's note: the following excerpts are from a report on, and a typical reaction to, a recent class incident. Author's name withheld.)

When Philosophy 12 prof Dr. Ed Bloomfield entered the room, students immediately knew something was wrong. He was not his usual happy and vibrant self.

"Class, I have something terrible to tell you."

Everyone sat up, attentively waiting for his next words.

"Someone has stolen the exams, and unfortunately they had not been recorded. And because of that thief, all the classes must be inconvenienced and re-take the exam."

"I am so very sorry," he hesitated, "I don't understand why someone would do such a thing. Obviously they didn't care who was going to be affected by their inconsiderate action of stealing the test. I am disgusted and a little shocked at this situation.

"I am very upset, and I again am sorry that you will have to re-take the exam. It will be Monday morning. Class dismissed!"

...My mouth hung open — I couldn't believe my ears hearing about this unforgivable action that a college student had done. Where's the thief? Where was their head at? This situation is absolutely ludicrous for a college campus. It is also very embarrassing and disrespectful.

As a previous student of Dr. Bloomfield's, I know what a fair and caring professor he is. And it really irritates me knowing that one of his students would have such little respect for him — and for other students — and steal the exams.

I would love to get a hold of the person — or rather "thief" and just lay into them... not with physical force but with some strong words and perhaps a few harsh but true comments.

It will be almost impossible to catch this rotten thief. Unfortunately the only way the thief will be revealed is by going to Dr. Bloomfield and admitting the terrible thing that they did. If they don't have any respect for Dr. Bloomfield and their fellow students, I hope they would at least have an ounce of respect for themselves and admit their wrong-doing.

Whoever this person is, I hope their conscience will torture their mind, if they even have a conscience. The damage is done and the result left the students frustrated, and most sadly, left a very excellent professor disgusted and hurt.

We don't need anyone who pulls these kind of pranks at college. Thief, if you're reading this, get out! We don't need you here!

Stealing is not the answer, but dealing is. You should deal with your problems, not create one for others.

Life in the fast lane: California style

By MARK HEUSTIS

When I graduated from my driver's ed class, my teacher left me with a cryptic warning about the freeway being the danger zone.

He seemed to think that driving was more than just the freedom to cart yourself around without dragging Mom along. But I rolled upon my merry way and survived to this day by sheer luck.

What is it that makes So-Cal drivers different from the rest of the planet Earth? Why is it that if an Arizona driver slows to 50 he thinks it's a traffic jam? Why does a driver from Arkansas, who normally goes at a care-free 90 m.p.h. on dirt roads, develop hives and twitches on a California freeway?

I believe the difference is attitude. California drivers can be divided into several distinct categories. Usually, the majority of drivers are like sheep; even though there may be thousands of miles of freeway, the cars seem to run in closely packed herds, with huge spaces of open road between them.

Another common type is the sleeper, or driving dead. This person will find his own comfortable niche, usually closely following another car, and fall into a trance. He is then oblivious to all that happens outside his car. This condition is especially noticeable during the early morning rush hour.

Racing past these sleepers is a very dangerous person indeed. His nerves are steel as he grips the wheel. Nothing will stop this hell-bent road racer. He drives like there is a trophy waiting at the next off ramp. He will use tricks such as high speed lane changing and driving in the safety lanes to reach his objective.

Wishy-washy, indecisive people abound on the freeway. This is typified by the guy who makes a last second decision at a junction and shoots across four lanes to exit. Usually these drivers will risk their lives to keep from missing a favored off ramp. To back-track is unthinkable. Merging is especially difficult for these drivers as they don't know whether they should speed up or slow down.

Last, but not least, is the just plain, low-down, mean driver. These guys take a turn signal from an adjacent car as a challenge for the possession of their lane. And God forbid that you should actually get in front of one, for they will follow so close you'll think your bumpers are locked. Yes, low-down mean drivers do own the whole road.

But, all is not lost. I have made it through years of freeway travel and you can too.

For instance, an easy cure can be found for pesky tail gaters. Just keep slowing down until, eventually, they get fed up with you and pass. At twenty miles per hour even the most tenacious tail gaters will give up.

When entering the freeway, get to the fast lane as soon as possible. You have the safety lane for escape and you don't have to contend with people entering the freeway.

Armed with these driving tips, anyone can commute happily and safely. But, above all, remember the line between a defensive and an offensive driver is a fine one.

THE RACE IS ON Moore gives it second shot

"The president will appoint someone and it will all be approved by the Senate," said Mittleman.

"One of the things that prompted us to run," added Mittleman, "is that Senator Moore has not proven that he can run. He hasn't done anything all year except complain and ridicule us and not come up with any solutions."

As for his other opponent, Keith Estabrook, Mittleman said, "Dexter is a good candidate, a good guy. We're going to have a close race with him. He's done a lot for the student body and the college. He knows what he's doing. He's better than us."

Don Trapp was not available for comment.

Entering the presidential race for the second consecutive year, Paul Moore finds that he has had "a lot more experience" and is not as "naive" as he was the first time around.

His aim in this campaign is to inform students as to what the ASCC does for them and get them to participate in more of the ASCC sponsored events. "I want them to know what they get for their eight bucks," said Moore.

Moore feels that night students aren't aware of the number of clubs and organizations on campus. "They think all we have are classes," added Moore.

Moore also feels that the current haggling over bookstore issues is overblown. "We're not businessmen," said Moore, "The operation should be left to the professionals. We should have our input."

"My main concern is what can the ASCC do for the students?"

Keith Estabrook, a former Senator and this semester's Commissioner of Public Relations, is running on his record.

"I'm qualified," said Estabrook, "I've got the background and experience."

During his two terms in the Senate, Estabrook introduced legislation aimed at solving the problem of bookstore management. "The bookstore was in the dirt," remarked Estabrook, "until the Senate passed legislation to turn things around. You'll find my name on every one of those bills."

"That's the kind of dedication I'm willing to give to the student body," said Estabrook.

Estabrook almost missed the chance to appear on the ballot due to problems with running mates. His initial choice was Paul Moore, who, according to Estabrook, later backed out after his adviser told him he would get no VICA support on a ticket with Estabrook.

Estabrook then chose Mike Negretti, "a man I could trust."

This coalition ended when Estabrook "tried to call him to make plans and couldn't get through to him for two weeks."

"To cover myself, I had to try to find a new running mate," said Estabrook, who selected Grace Bustos of Cosmetology to replace Negretti.

Again, adviser interference cut short the campaign plans, according to Estabrook. "Grace called me last Wednesday at 11:30 p.m. to tell me she had to back out," said Estabrook. When pressed further, Bustos reportedly told him that her adviser, Joan Walker, told her she wasn't qualified to run.

Estabrook's final choice, and his running mate on the ballot, is Raine Dooner. "She's highly qualified and I never should have overlooked her in the first place," said Estabrook.

If elected, Estabrook plans to "carry on the programs we've already started," as well as seek training for campus police and work towards building a student union.

The candidates will be present at a Forum hosted by campus radio station KCEB and the Talon Marks tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the Board Room.

Speech Prof Hanks scheduled to speak at May commencement

By NANCY BALLARD
TM Staff Writer

Wendall Hanks, professor of speech, will be this year's commencement speaker. Hanks has been associated with Cerritos College since 1966 and has produced, promoted, and directed over 100 Cerritos events on campus and within the community.

Graduation ceremonies for Cerritos College will be on Sunday, May 18 at 5:30 p.m. in the Cerritos College gymnasium. Both mid-year and summer school graduates are encouraged to participate in the ceremony.

The commencement ceremony will begin with the traditional academic procession with all participants dressed in appropriate caps and gowns.

All students who have earned a 3.3 or better grade point average will be wearing the silver tassel.

Caps, gowns, and tassels will go on sale at the bookstore April 23, at a cost of $15.95. Graduation announcements are currently on sale for 50¢ each at the bookstore.

Photographs will be taken of every graduate as they shake hands with President/Superintendent Wilford Michael after receiving their diploma cover.

Commencement ceremony instructions will be explained in detail on May 18 at 4:30 p.m. in the gymnasium.

Diplomas or certificates will be presented in the Office of Admission and Records. Graduates will be notified when the diplomas or certificates are available for pick-up.

Senator Joseph Holley voiced one of the concerns of some of the student government officers. He asked if the District could still be trusted to abide by a new contract if the ASCC went to the trouble of drawing one up.

Senator Paul Moore, a presidential candidate this semester, feels that too much is being made of this issue and that bookstore management should be left to those that know how to do it while still keeping some student control in it.

Some people in administration feel that even though the students own the bookstore it may not be practical for them to have complete managing control over it.

President-Superintendent Dr. Wilford Michael said, "It is very difficult for students to run the bookstore when you have a new group of students every year in student government. To have a consistent program out there you must have some consistent people with the program and not have a new set of students every year."

Dr. Michael, however does support the ASCC's new proposal with only one reservation. "The five percent guarantee I don't have much trouble with. The eight percent, though and the fact that they (the ASCC) could stop it (cancel the lease agreement) at anytime if we didn't make the eight percent. I think with conditions, emergency conditions, we should be able to have a mutual understanding on that. For instance, if the air conditioning system went out it could be a $50,000 expenditure. You don't count on that and that may take the eight percent, but we should have the five," continued Michael.

SMASHING — Falcon star singles player Julie Hammon gets into a practice shot. Hammon, former Warren High standout, leads the Cerritos all-fresh squad which is struggling as a team in a building year. As of press time, Hammon was undefeated.

Basketball star Tolbert headed to PAC-9 champ UofA Wildcats

Cerritos center Tom Tolbert, who lead the Falcons to their fourth straight South Coast Conference Championship, has signed a letter of intent to play for the University of Arizona Wildcats.

Along with leading Cerritos to a 29-3 record and the state's top ranking, Tolbert was also the SCC's Co-Player of the Year.

The 6'9", 229 sophomore from Artesia High averaged 16.2 points per game, while pulling down eight rebounds per contest. Tolbert will probably play the power forward position for coach Lute Olsen's squad. Arizona won the PAC-9 title this past year, earning them the right to participate in the NCAA play-offs.

Olsen has the opportunity to play Tolbert at the forward spot, or he could move him to his familiar center position. Tolbert has the ability to pull up and hit the 18 foot jumper from the corner as well as pounding his body under the boards with the best of them.

In other Falcon basketball news, guard Russ Heicke and forward Kelly Andrews have each signed a letter of intent to play for the United States International University (USIU) based in San Diego.

Heicke was named to the all-conference third team, averaging 11 points per game, while Andrews scored an average of nine points each game.

Torrey Pines, San Diego was the site for a non-conference golf match April 11, where Cerritos, San Diego Mesa, Citrus and Rio Hondo teed off.

S.D. Mesa took the match with a 391 card, with Cerritos coming in second with a 404. Citrus totaled a 423, while Rio Hondo came in last with a score of 425.

Sean Collins led the Falcons with a game of 73.

In a conference match Monday, Golden West College hosted Cerritos, Fullerton, Mt. SAC, Orange Coast, Saddleback, Santa Ana and Cypress at the Huntington Beach Sea Cliff Golf Course.

Conference leader Fullerton took the tournament with a low card of 367 as T.J. Moir of the Hornets shot a 66.

Saddleback came in a distant second with a total of 381. Cerritos finished third as they golfed their way to a 386.

The two low scorers for the Falcons were Kevin Devries with a 73 and Sean Collins carding a 75.

Softballers host Hornets

By CASEY CARNEY
TM Staff Writer

A 5-3 record has Coach Nancy Kelly's women softballers holding third place among the eight teams competing in the South Coast Conference.

Cerritos' season record is a sturdy 20-8.

"It's still anybody's ball game," insists Kelly, who views the team's position as three games behind defending champs and current front-runner Rancho Santiago, and one game behind second-place Golden West.

The Lady Falcons met Rancho Santiago last Wednesday in a close match that ended in a 0-1 loss. Competition is tight this year, with seven of eight conference games to date ending in 1-0 results.

Cerritos rebounded on Friday to landslide Mt. San Antonio 11-4. Second baseman Sheri Velez escalated team scoring as she led off with a double, collected four walks, and scored three runs in a perfect day at the plate.

The locals take on Fullerton today on the Falcon diamond at 3 p.m., and travel to Saddleback on Friday for another conference contest.

David Rivera breaks Cerritos record in 10,000 meters

By RANDI McDONALD
TM Staff Writer

Battling fierce competition and cold and windy weather, the Cerritos men's track team managed to turn in some of their best times of the year.

However, they still could not crack the top five in any events.

Establishing a new school record in the Bakersfield Relays for Cerritos was Falcon David Rivera. Rivera turned in an all time best 31:29.4 in the 10,000 meters (6.2 miles).

His time shattered the previous record by a remarkable 1:17.2, set by John Carrasco in 1981.

Coach Dave Kamanski feels that Rivera has the potential to place high in the Southern California championships and possibly qualify for the State Finals in May.

Setting personal best in the 5,000 meters (3.1 miles) were Melchor Lopez, Refugio Estrada and Abe Verughese.

Lopez's time of 15:23.0 places him in fourth on the all-time Cerritos best, just 19.2 seconds off the top spot with four weeks left to break it.

The 400 relay team placed fourth in their heat with a time of 44.36, which is far off their best time of 42.2.

Closing in on their season best, the 800 relay team ran third in their heat at 1:30.62 with an excellent anchor leg by Errol Payne in 21.5.

Birds record slides to 7-7 with injuries crippling team effort

By JOHN WELSH
TM Staff Writer

Last season the baseball team was 100 percent injury free. Well, almost. Ever Magallenes missed one game with a twisted ankle.

However, this year's squad is having their problems. After 14 games in conference last year, the Falcons were 13-1. This year they are an even 7-7 (17-11 overall).

Shortstop Bret Barbarie is the latest casualty of the team. Barbarie suffered a broken jaw in the third inning of the 11-4 loss to Golden West last week.

Falcons placed fourth in the 1600 relay with a time of 3:19.94 with good legs of 48.8 by Ben Crouch and a 49.2 by Mike Valenzuela.

Although most of the field events were off their top marks, Miguel Loayza had a season best 161'10" toss in the javelin, while Derrin Bruce placed seventh in the hammer throw with 110', which is well off his best of 127'.

Friday, the Falcons will host both Mt. San Antonio and Orange Coast in a double dual meet.

The meet begins with a non-scoring hammer-throw at 1:30 p.m. and the rest of the events beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Mt. San Antonio is considered to be one of the top three schools in the state and is currently in first place in the South Coast Conference.

Barbarie, who is leading the team with a .337 average, the only batting average over .300, is expected to be back on the field this week. This time he will be playing with a protective device.

Coach George Horton does not blame injuries as the problem with his team however. Defense is once again a problem for Cerritos.

In their 6-2 loss to Rancho Santiago Thursday, the Falcons surrendered five unearned runs.

But with all the squad's troubles, the Falcons still managed to beat Compton on Saturday. In the lifetime series against the Tartars, Cerritos has an incredible record of 42 wins and only three losses.

Cerritos blasted Compton for an 11-2 victory. Earlier this season the Birds beat Compton 8-1.

Jeff Piland picked up the win against the Tartars as he struck out six in six innings. Piland lowered his earned run average to 1.78.

As to the team's shaky confidence, which has been a problem of late, Horton commented: "If I had all the answers, we wouldn't be playing like this."

The Birds hosted Mt. SAC yesterday (score not available at press time). This Saturday they travel to Orange Coast for a noon game.

Moses gets top Faculty Senate award

By BRENT SIMS
TM Staff Writer

Senator Sherrill Moses was named outstanding senator this year at yesterday's Faculty Senate meeting.

The award came in the wake of Moses' long hours put in as the head of the Faculty Senate salary committee. The committee had finished negotiations for a new salary contract just two weeks before with the College Board of Trustees.

The meeting also marked the annual elections for next year's Senate officers.

Faculty Senate President John Boyle was elected by acclamation for another year in that position. The position of president is an involved one whose responsibilities include presiding over Faculty Senate meetings, sitting on the Board of Trustees as a non-voting member, as well as being associated with 13 other committees and organizations on campus.

Other Senate officers include Senators William Lewis and Connie Mantz who were both re-elected to their positions as Vice-President and Secretary by acclamation.

In other faculty business the Senate expressed concern over recent security related questions.

It was reported that in at least two recent but separate incidents on campus, college security officers, under the direction of the Sheriff's Department, have interrupted classes to apprehend suspects in class.

The faculty voiced questions over student rights as well as school policy in such situations.
