NON-MAJORITY 3-3 VOTE CHALLENGEDTrustee Epple to sue Board over Lottery sales cut

By KEITH ESTABROOK
TM Staff Writer

Hell hath no fury like a student body scorned...
...Or a Board of Trustees member.

Board member Bob Epple is planning to file a lawsuit this week in Norwalk Superior Court against the Cerritos College Board of Trustees.

He is seeking a Writ of Mandate ordering Dr. Wilford Michael, President/Superintendent of Cerritos College, to rescind the unlawful order he made based on a less than majority opinion of the Board of Trustees to stop campus lottery ticket sales.

"He made his decision based on the results of a vote of less than a majority, and the orders that he made therefore are unlawful," Epple told the Talon Marks.

The ASCC Senate has also taken action, drafting a strongly worded letter to the Board in which they express their anger with the Board's action.

The letter states, in part "...It is our understanding that an action item which would effect a change in the status quo requires a majority vote. There was no majority, and we (the Senate) believe that what you (the Board) have done is immoral and possibly illegal."

The letter goes on to state..."We also question the wisdom of Board members Harold Tredway, Dale Hardeman, and Ada Steenhoek offering to waive the receipt of lottery generated funds for this institution." (In exchange for the elimination of campus ticket sales).

Cerritos College is due to collect a check for an estimated $578,000 in January from lottery income for the period of October to December, 1985. A minimum of 34 per cent of lottery ticket income is mandated to go to California educational institutions.

The ASCC Senate is also expected to consider the hiring of a private attorney to represent the Associated Students in the matter.

When questioned by a Talon Marks reporter on the impact of the Board's action on income to the student body, bookstore manager Allan Beaulieu stated, "The loss of future income could be phenomenal." He went on to say, "We could lose our lottery license. There is a waiting list of 50-70,000 retailers."

Interest in the lottery has been higher than state officials had originally expected, with well over 100 million tickets sold since the first game started Oct. 6, and it is expected to increase with the introduction of subsequent games. Game two will see a doubling of the amount one can win instantly from $5,000 to 10,000. The top prize on the lottery wheel will increase from $2 million to $3 million.

Spokesmen can only hazard a guess at what ticket sales will be like once the Lotto game is introduced in 1986. Lotto players pick a combination of six numbers, usually from 1 to 44. The Jackpot is won by picking the correct combination of numbers.

New Yorkers stood in block long lines this past summer when the Lotto jackpot there exceeded $40 million. A Lotto type game in California is expected to produce jackpots that would dwarf the booty that caused so much hysteria among residents of the Empire State.

Prior to the Board's action to stop the sale of the tickets, the book store sold about 700 ducats per day.

Prof Dowden calls Tredway 'verbal bully'

Asks other Board members to censure behavior displayed; Faculty Senate drafts resolution to Trustees

By SUSAN PHILLIPS
TM News Editor

Charging that he was "characterized by a member of the Board as someone who has made some sort of career of opposing the administration of Cerritos College," John Dowden asked the Faculty Senate to request each member of the Board of Trustees to "censure the type of behavior displayed by Board member Harold Tredway" at last week's Board meeting.

Dowden termed Tredway a "verbal bully" and said "This type of attack has characterized his service as a trustee."

Faculty Senate members discussed the issue at length, citing poor channels of communication and "browbeating" as obstacles in addressing the Board.

Senate member Marcelino Saucedo noted that "This has been going on for far too long," and that the faculty "should take a stand on the issue."

Senate President John Boyle acknowledged that Tredway was not the only Board member who has been guilty of such behavior and said that the type of behavior displayed at last week's Board meeting was "an argumentative technique that got out of hand."

The Senate bandied about several ideas for motions or resolutions to best resolve the issue before Senator Tom Jackson interjected his thoughts.

"Why do we have to beat around the bush?" asked Jackson.

"Who the hell are they? Everyone knows Tredway said it. If we want to say something, say it! I agree with Dowden that Tredway should be censured."

Dowden expressed his belief that some sort of action should come from the Faculty Senate because "My career is in the classroom. Tredway suggested that I have made a career of opposition."

When asked if he was seeking an apology from Tredway, Dowden implied that his legal counsel would be consulted on that matter.

A resolution citing the incident and requesting "dignified and professional" treatment of faculty, students and the public who choose to address the Board was drawn up by the Senate and will be presented at Monday's Board of Trustees meeting.

MEChA's Castaneda Homecoming Queen

By LESLIE BERESTEIN
TM Campus Editor

Marina Castaneda is now the 1985-86 Cerritos College Homecoming Queen, after being crowned amid fireworks and fanfare during the halftime activities at last Saturday's football game against Taft.

The 19 year old sophomore was chosen by the ASCC from a court of seven princesses which included Lena Herrera, LDSSA; Lisa Garza, Upsilon Omicron; Dolores Hulshof, Sigma Phi; Jill Dayen, Cosmetology; Tammy Parra, Alpha Phi Beta; and Cherilynne Bailey, Black Student Union.

Proud MEChA advisor Art Perez beamed, "Marina is first Latino Homecoming Queen in the history of Cerritos College. This shows that Latinos are alive and well on campus."

MEChA, a club designed especially for Latino students, has recently made a strong comeback onto the campus scene. Now 250 members strong, MEChA made a major effort in campaigning for their candidate.

"The whole bunch is so proud of themselves," quipped Perez, "they deserve a pat on the back."

In addition to the coronation of the new Queen, halftime activities included a fireworks display, a performance by the Gahr High School Marching Band, and a parade of the 20 floats built by various campus organizations.

The game was immediately followed by a dance in the student center.

REMEMBER TO FILE INTENT TO REGISTER

Students who expect to take classes this spring semester can now file Intents to Register for preferred appointments, according to the Admissions Office.

Deadline is Nov. 22, but students are encouraged to file as soon as possible so permits can be mailed out by beginning registration on Dec. 16.

Spring classes start Jan. 13.

Applications for scholarships due in Financial Aid Office

By GABRIELA MARTINEZ
TM Staff Writer

Scholarship applications are now available in the Financial Aid Office for the period of Oct. 1985 and Jan./Feb. 1986.

Applications should be submitted before Nov. 1.

Students may apply for one scholarship, and receive only one per semester.

To receive a scholarship, one must be currently enrolled in at least six units. Some scholarships require one or more semesters of work with a 2.0 GPA before applying for a scholarship.

Scholarships range from $50-$100

Eligibility requirements and names of scholarships are listed in front of the Financial Aid Office.

The scholarship committee will meet after each deadline, with applicants being notified of their award or denial.

All recipients must bring a driver's license or California I.D., current student body card and a thank you letter to the Financial Aid Office to receive check clearance.

SPIRITED EVENTThe story of a Homecoming

By RAELENE KING
TM Managing Editor
 Homecoming 1985.

It began more than a month ago with the selection of this year's theme — Disneyland - 30th Anniversary — a pleasant, cheerful theme that could inspire much creativity in the way of poster making and float building. A promising start.

Friday, Sept. 20, the last day for Queen applications and only three candidates are in the running — panic hits the newsroom.

Will there be a Homecoming Queen?
 What is everyone waiting for?

But by the 4:00 deadline, 15 representative coeds have entered the race and the activities are officially underway.

Campaigning plans frantically begin in an effort to promote each club's candidate with the most enthusiasm.

Banners and posters color the otherwise bleak campus walls urging the choice of their candidate over the next.

Flyers are handed out, and as usual, some violations by various clubs are committed, but for the most part campaigning goes smoothly.

Preliminary voting takes place Oct 1 and 2, narrowing the field to seven finalists, and intensifying the campaigning for the final elections.

Float applications receive more initial response than the queen applications as 25 entries are turned in by the Oct. 4 deadline.

But there are only 20 float beds and so five must go on a waiting list.

Oct. 8 begins the first of the scheduled Homecoming events with an introduction of the seven finalists in the race for Queen.

Nervously, the girls parade down the runway as the announcer gives the audience some background on the candidates.

The audience, shows their support and appreciation through applause as they talk quietly among themselves about the various choices.

A Homecoming Coffee Night is scheduled in the Health Sciences Building on Oct. 9 giving the night students a chance to become involved.

Relief and fatigue must be on the minds of the girls as they depart the campus and ready themselves for the event scheduled the next day.

The Mock Rally, the highlight of the preliminary events, opens to a packed house in the Student Center on Thursday, Oct. 10.

The cheerleaders warm up the audience as they file in with an original dance routine to "Rock Lobster". One of them is wearing a lobster on his head.

A nice touch.

One by one, the candidates and their impersonators are introduced, as the girls take their seats on stage and their male counterparts waltz (or is that wiggle?), down the runway.

Before taking their seats, emcee Dick McGrath asks each one personal and at times profound questions.

Some try to be sexy, others funny and still others witty, but it seems the ones that don't exert as much effort are the best received.

Most of them have trouble adjusting to the last minute protrusions on their chest and McGrath points out that "a lady shouldn't touch herself there" — the audience is ecstatic.

After the introductions, comes the ever popular talent show where the contestants have the ability to show where their real talents lie.

The answer clearly isn't in rehearsal, as most of the contestants don't know the lyrics to their songs. It seems that some are even surprised by the music that blasts out at them.

...Homecoming story

They couldn't be that unprepared?

The dancers didn't fair much better as they stumbled around on stage, shaking their posteriors in a feeble attempt to spark approval from the crowd.

It works.

Jill Dayen, as portrayed by twin-like Aaron Murdon, prances around a head with a wig singing Madonna.

Lisa Garza, as portrayed by Marlon Waddlington, receives much applause for her pop dance and is called back for an encore.

She obliges but her hair is a little more shy and it tries to make its way back to the seat before she does.

The crowd goes wild.

Providing and enlightening song/dance routine is Dolores Hulshoff, alias Alex Macksoud, who magically manages to keep all her cups on the tray as she does her thing to Donna Summer's "She Works Hard for the Money."

The talent competition ends and the crowd settles down to show some serious support for their favorite.

ASCC President Dave Mittleman stands behind each contestant raising his hand over their heads and the audience responds appropriately.

There is a revote between five contestants.

The final showdown narrows to two, Jill Dayen and Lisa Garza.

Twice, the audience has to vote between the two. The cheers and whistles break the sound barrier.

Silent anticipation befalls the Student Center as Mittleman and McGrath discuss the winner.

The tension mounts.

The silence is broken with chants pleading for votes.

The decision is made, McGrath turns toward the audience — "the winner is ... Lisa Garza."

Garza raises her (his?) hands in triumph displaying armpits full of hair — the crowd is beside itself.

It's noon and the spectators slowly file out of the Student Center to go back to class.

The Mock Rally proves to be the bright spot of the day and of the preliminary events.

"— the princesses stand gleaming at the crowd a name lights up in fireworks and the Queen is crowned."

Float building begins Oct 14. Slowly the ideas and designs come together on the six-by-twelve wooden float beds.

Final voting is suddenly upon us, Oct. 15 and 16, and the student body, after much thought and reflection as to who will represent them Saturday night, casts their ballots.

Walking from the polls, speculation and anticipation cloud the voters' minds — who will it be?

Saturday morning, Oct 19, the floats have all been built and the judges meander, pondering the winners.

The trophies are handed out and all the physical/mental work that went into the building of the floats is duely rewarded.

The participants depart, only to return for that evening's game and coronation.

Has it been already been a month and a half since all the hoopla began?

Is it really here?

Seems all so simple when you see the final outcome — the princesses stand gleaming at the crowd, a name lights up in fireworks and the Queen is crowned.

A parade insues and the floats, as promised, are creative and colorful.

And the game against powerhouse Taft is exciting, although it ends in a tie.

A tie?

Well at least we didn't lose.

Homecoming 1985.

Chalk another one up for the memory books.

Cerritos battles top team Taft to 24-24 draw

By JOHN VAN GASTON
TM Production Coordinator

It had the makings of a great game.

The top two teams in the South Coast Conference squaring off against each other, with the title to be decided that night.

It was the homecoming game for the underdog, the long tiring road trip for the favorite.

The home team was trying to rebound from last year's thrashing by their hated opponent, while the visiting team was looking to improve on their undefeated record.

A responsive crowd of 9,000 was on hand to see the Cerritos College Falcons take on the perennial national champion Taft Cougars last Saturday at Falcon Stadium.

When all the dust, and penalty flags had settled, there still was no decided winner, as the game ended in a 24-24 tie.

The tie is more of a win for Taft, as they didn't lose any ground in the tough SCC standings. Taft's record now stands at 3-0-1 in the SCC, 4-0-1 overall, while the Falcons stand at 2-1-1 in the SCC, (3-1-1 overall).

It looked as though the Falcons were on their way to a victory, up 24-17 early into the fourth quarter, thanks to a Reggie Nettles TD run.

But Taft didn't give up. On their first play from scrimmage after the TD, Cougar running back Ken Thomas (five carries, 76 yards) ripped off a 61-yard gain, to put the ball at the Falcon 19 yard line with 10 minutes to play.

The Cougars didn't score the tying TD until some three minutes and seven plays later, thanks to some stalwart defense by the Falcons.

But on a fourth and one at the one yard line, back-up fullback Ron Mizener bulled his way over the goal line to tie the score.

It took the referees a while to make the TD call, as there were a pile of players on top of the ballcarrier. When the pile was lessened, Mizener then crawled over the goal line, as he could see he wasn't over the line. The referee was unable to see Mizener do this, and signaled a touchdown, amidst the disapproval of Falcon coach Frank Mazzotta.

LOOSE BALL — Football flies out of mad scramble during Saturday's 24-24 standoff with top-rated Taft.

"I thought he made it on third down. He definitely didn't make it on fourth down," said Mazzotta.

The Falcons still had two more opportunities to score after the Taft TD, but on fourth and one, at the Cougar 27, Mazzotta decided to go for the first down, bypassing a field goal attempt.

Quarterback Tony Locy dropped back, and threw to Reggie Nettles, who was wide open. Nettles, who probably would have scored, started to turn upfield before he had possession of the ball, and had the ball slip out of his hands.

"The play happened so fast, it's hard to go back and think what happened," said Nettles.

But Nettles and his teammates were given a reprieve, as the Cougars Bruce Williams fumbled at the Taft 30 yard line with 2:59 remaining, to give the Falcons a second chance.

After a dropped pass by Chris Perez in the end zone sandwiched in between two Nettles carries for nine yards, Mazzotta was given a decision to either go for it, or attempt a field goal from the Cougar 24 yard line with 1:17 remaining.

"Our whole plan was to get into field goal range," said Mazzotta. Well, coach, it was Taft's idea to try and block the field goal.

And as history rears its ugly head once again, Taft took advantage of a missed blocking assignment by Cerritos, and went through the line and blocked Claudio Balboa's kick. Had it not been for a good play by holder Sal Gonzales to put the ball down cleanly after a high snap, there may not have even been an attempt.

The Falcons got on the board first, when Locy (18 for 36, 200 yards, two int's) found Perez (three catches, 55 yards) wide open across the middle, and he scampered for a 25-yard score.

Cross Country squad wraps this afternoon

By MONICA MERTZ

Cerritos College men's cross country team placed 6th out of a competing 20 teams at the Mt. SAC Invitational last Friday morning.

Central Arizona finished first with a score of 44 for the meet. Cerritos managed a score of 192 and placed one runner, David Rivera, in the top 20 finishers.

Rivera placed 19th with a time of 21:06, compared with a winning time of 19:36 for top finisher Gary Schnakenberg of Central Arizona.

"This is not only the best individual time I can remember in many many years in competing this event," said Falcon coach Dave Kamanski, referring to Rivera's run, "but certainly the best team times with four athletes in with times of 22:00 or better that I can ever remember."

The other three Cerritos runners to finish within the 22:00 minute mark were Melchor Lopez, Abe Varughese and Mario Zamarripa; all finishing in the top 50 of the 140 runners competing in their division.

Also competing for Cerritos were Refugio Estrada Sal Garcia and Mannie Martinez, all finishing roughly in the upper half of the competition.

The novice team composed of our second seven runners also competed, and placed six out of 12 teams.

The men's and women's cross country teams finish their dual meet season this afternoon at Central Park in Huntington Beach against Mt. Sac and Orange Coast.

Undefeated wrestlers host San Diego tonight

By ROBERT YOUNG
TM Sports Editor

Tonight the Cerritos Falcon Wrestling team host San Diego City at 7:30 in the gym.

San Diego City should pose no problem for the Falcon grapplers as Cerritos wrestling Coach Jeff Smith says, "They (San Diego) are coming here with six to seven missing weights and whenever that many weights are forfeiting, our remaining guys could lose and our team would still come out ahead on the overall score."

Last Saturday the Falcons traveled to El Camino and placed third out of the ten teams entered in the El Camino tournament.

Cerritos scored 50 points just behind Bakersfield's 55, while Palomar easily outdistanced the opposition with 100.

"We were right with Palomar through the preliminary matches," said Coach Smith. "But Palomar's wrestlers won the matches they needed to put them into the semis, while our guys fell off."

Remember the heart-breaking loss Cerritos' Tom Howe (190) suffered in the Cuesta Tournament due to criteria (warned for stalling). It happened again, this time Howe battled to a 3-3 draw against the very same opponent, Mt. SAC's Moses (3rd place state finisher). "One of these day's one of them will beat the other," said Smith.

Howe ended the tournament with a 3-1 record, good for a second place finish as did Doug Losack (150).

Losack was edged in the finals 2-1 by his Palomar opponent.

George Williams (118) placed third for the Falcons going 4-1 for the day having lost to the champion by one point in an earlier match.

Joel Davis (177) ended the day 3-2 which was good for a fourth place finish.

The Falcons were to match up against Moorpark last Wednesday, but due to the recent fires suffered in that area Moorpark was forced to default.

Water Polo wins first match

By BRENT SIMS
TM Staff Writer

Coach Pat Tyne led the Cerritos water polo team to a sound 21-7 thrashing over Pasadena City College last Tuesday for its first win of the year.

The Falcons pulled out to an early 3-2 lead in the first quarter, and hung on to a 5-4 lead going into the half.

Cerritos dominated the third period, scoring nine unanswered goals, propelling them to their first victory of the season.

Freshman Matt Hohne led the scoring with five goals, matched by sophomores Craig Robles and Shawn McFarland, who had five goals between them.

The team faces Cypress today, at the Charger pool. Cypress is 0-19 this season, after having to forfeit 11 of their past wins because of an ineligible player.

"We should beat them," Robles said optimistically.

In addition to their win over PCC, Cerritos dropped a non-conference match to Orange Coast 8-7, and lost to Long Beach City in a conference game.

Underdog Falcons hyped by Homecoming in emotional thriller

But on the kickoff, Taft's Williams took advantage of a wall of blockers, and outran everybody for a 100-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

The Falcons' Anthony Drawhorn was not going to let Williams outdo him, as Drawhorn took Tracey Rodger's punt, and returned it 83 yards, to put the Falcons back on top 14-7 in the first quarter.

Going into the second half on top 17-7, (Balboa added a 32-yard FG in the second quarter), must have had Cougar coach Al Baldock worried, but no, Baldock felt that their "heads weren't screwed on right in the first half."

"Our kids weren't as high as they should have been for Cerritos," said Baldock. "We feel fortunate we didn't lose the game."

Fortunate or not, Taft came right out in the second half, and drove downfield for a 21-yard field goal.

Taft opted not to go for it, on fourth down at the Falcon four yard line, as the Cerritos defense had been stopping the Taft runners in their tracks.

"Poor field position in the third quarter did us in," said Mazzotta.

Right you are, Coach, as William English returned a 29-yard punt to the Falcon 35, and 10 plays later, the score was all knotted up at 17.

Cerritos opened up the fourth quarter by driving downfield, with Nettles going in from nine to put the Falcons up 24-17.

This set up the incidents which were to follow, leading up to the eventual finish.

In fact, Cerritos even had one more chance to score at the end of the game, after the blocked field goal.

With third and four at their own 40, Taft quarterback Jason Phillips dropped back to pass. He saw wide receiver Larry Jackson, but he didn't see Falcon defensive back Robert Lan. Lan reached across Jackson and had the ball in his hands, but he was already counting six points, and had the ball fall helplessly to the ground.

The Falcon defense, which was led by linebacker James Rivera (19 tackles) and defensive tackle Scott Zowada with 12 tackles, held a Taft team that was averaging 394 yards rushing every week, to just 229 yards on 53 carries. This turn of events kept Cougar defensive coach Larry Mankins guessing all night long. "We didn't really do anything different in the second half," said Mankins. "But we couldn't let what was happening continue."

Cerritos, which was outgained 494-224 last year, turned the tables, outgaining Taft by a slim margin (295-293) this year.

Mazzotta felt his team could have played better, stating "We didn't play as well as we could have. We played better against Bakersfield."

"The only thing that saved us, was the fact we played so emotionally," added Mazzotta.

Emotion will have to play a big part this Saturday, as the Falcons travel to take on a hard-luck Pasadena team, which has only one win under its belt.

SPIKERS IN 2ND PLACE

Cerritos hosts Rancho Santiago tonight

By JOHN VAN GASTON
TM Production Coordinator

With the second round of South Coast Conference action getting under way next week, Jeannine Prindle's volleyball team is stationed in second place along side Saddleback, with a 4-2 record.

The Falcons finish up the first round tonight, when they host Rancho Santiago at 7:30 p.m.

Last Saturday, the Falcons took part in the Saddleback Tournament, compiling a 6-2 pool play record, which was good for first place in the opening round.

But the Falcons were upended by host Saddleback 15-6 in the quarterfinals.

"In the quarterfinals, we had a second chance at Saddleback (they defeated Cerritos the day before in SCC action), but fell behind by our own errors," said Prindle.

The Falcons swept through the pool play, by defeating Grossmont (15-4, 15-13), split with Snow, Utah (15-7, 12-15), split with Fullerton (13-15, 15-6) and swept LA City, 15-6, 15-3.

Cerritos was put into a tough pool of teams, which included a tough Grossmont team, which went on to finish first place in their pool.

"It has been a roller coaster week. We started on a high note, defeating Orange Coast last Wednesday (15-7, 15-9, 17-15); only to suffer a frustrating five-game loss to Saddleback Friday night," said Prindle.

In that loss to Saddleback, the Falcons won the first game 15-9, but suffered two consecutive losses, 8-15, 9-15, to put Saddleback on top two games to one.

"In the second and third games, we made several passing and hitting errors. We fell behind in the fourth game 12-6, and staged a great comeback to win 15-12," added Prindle.

In the fifth game, Cerritos fell behind 9-0. "We regrouped to come back 10-8, but couldn't play consistent enough to win," said Prindle.

For the game, the leading hitter was Chris Dunbar, who was 13 for 29, while Andrea Gasporra turned in a fine match with good defense and a strong service.

Against Orange Coast, the Falcons wasted little time with the Rustlers, winning in three straight games.

Prindle felt a strong start would be the key, and her Falcons responded.

"We grabbed the momentum at the very beginning of the match and never gave it up," said Prindle. "We played very well in all areas, especially passing, led by Linda Bauman, Gasporra, and Monika Del Muro."

Setter Reyna Guterrez led the Birds, with Bauman and Dunbar leading the way with eight kills apiece, while Del Muro and Pam Holland each contributed seven kills apiece. Michelle Linton led the team with five assists.

Women have good shot at conference title Friday

By MONICA MERTZ
TM Staff Writer

With a chance to gain a tie for the South Coast Conference championship if they sweep of Orange Coast and Mt. SAC this Friday, the Cerritos College women's cross country team is coming off one of their best weeks of the season, as they edged Sierra 62-63, to capture the Mt. SAC Invitational title which took place last weekend.

The Falcons left 18 teams in the dust, as they took five of the top 20 places in the Invitational.

Lea MacFarlane led the Birds with a time of 20:24 (9th overall), with Jackie Castro close behind, with a time of 20:46, which was good for 10th place overall.

"The team as a whole glanced at the charts of their opponents on Wednesday, and stated that there wasn't a team they couldn't beat," said Coach Hal Simonek.

Deanne Unzicker turned in another fine performance (20:50, 11th overall), which enabled Cerritos to sweep the ninth through 11th spots.

Ana Covarrubias (21:26, 15th), Shela Jordan (21:36, 17th) and Cheryl Eckford (22:79, 26th) all contributed to give the Falcons their first Invitational title in quite some time.

Saddleback's Stacey McAfee was the overall leader, as she turned a superlative time of 18:11.

Even though Simonek's squad turned in such a stalwart performance, he is quick to state, "We still have improvements to make. We'll have hard practices on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, in preparation for Wednesday's conference championship race."

HOMECOMING DIARY

Spirit of the game in the eyes of the Mickey Mouse beholders...

By ELEANOR COLLINS
TM Staff Writer

7:15 p.m. After weeks of planning, preparation and anticipation, the Big Event — the 1985 Homecoming — is about to begin.

Fans stream into the stands — always looking up into the crowd, before picking their seats.

I'm struck by the variety of people entering the stadium; punks, preppies, octogenarians, babies, baby boomers. The manner of dressing is just as varied; tuxedos, tattered jeans, winter jackets, backless dresses.

As the fans settle in with their cold drinks, hot dogs and peanuts, they act very reserved. I'm a bit surprised.

The pep squad on the sidelines is trying to generate enthusiasm from the crowd.

It's not working.

7:31 p.m. The game begins. About half of the fans watch the action on the field; another fourth watch the late comers entering the stadium; the last fourth just sit and stare. That last fourth seem to be thinking, "Are we having fun yet?"

7:40 p.m. The home team scores the first touchdown. A ripple of excitement goes through the crowd.

An amazing transformation takes place. The fans have come out of a semi-comatose state and entered a state of active participation in the game — all within twenty minutes.

It looks like the Falcon fans have made a collective decision — Let's show our spirit!

7:50 p.m. I leave my family in the 25 yard line section to observe crowd reaction in the other sections.

As I walk, I notice the strollers — mostly young girls walking back and forth, back and forth. To see or be seen? I'm not sure.

I move over to the section on the 50 yard line. It's like another world over here.

While many of the fans watch the game intently, there is one group that is having its own party.

This group is throwing shredded paper — large clumps.

They are not watching the game. They wear gold sweatshirts and Mickey Mouse ears. How appropriate.

8:40 p.m. The sound of the half-time gun crackles through the cool night air. The Falcons are ahead 17-7; the fans are happy now.

The team runs off the field, as the stately Gahr Gladiator Band marches onto the field.

Very few people leave the stands as the half-time show begins.

A horse drawn carriage brings the Homecoming Court onto the field. Nice touch.

The girls have a rather difficult time getting down the steps of the carriage. Perhaps the carriage is better suited to boots and jeans, rather than high heels and billowing gowns.

The announcer directs the crowd to watch the south end of the field. Marina Casteneda's name is lit up with sparklers.

For the first time tonight, all eyes are on the field, to watch the 1985 Homecoming Queen being crowned by 1984's Queen, Suzy Johnson.

Marina's dad is at her side, beaming proudly.

The other members of the court smile, but their eyes look sad.

Here come the floats. The crowd pleasers are Upsilon Omicron's water-spouting whale, with Pinnocchio in its mouth; the water polo team, with a beefcake Mickey Mouse; and LDSSA's hissing Pete's Dragon.

The band plays on, in what may be the longest rendition in history of "Whistle While You Work." Fireworks boom; babies cry.

The Homecoming Court on stage is still smiling; twenty minutes have gone by... but I'll bet it feels like an eternity for the girls with the frozen smiles.

9:05 p.m. The second half of the game starts. Immediately, a little cart backs up to the stage; its occupants jump out and remove the decorations... flowers, columns disappear. I feel cheated. (I don't like it when someone starts clearing the table before I finish eating, either.)

9:10 p.m. To my amazement, people are leaving five minutes into the second half. Where's your spirit guys?

Score: 17-10, Cerritos. Fans are looking anxious.

I wander back to check on the Mouseketeers. Shredded paper is now about one inch thick on the steps. People in this section are covered with bits of paper. Do I sense a bit of annoyance from the folks that aren't wearing gold sweatshirts?

9:50 p.m. All eyes are on the Falcons and Cougars. Falcons now lead 24-17.

The cheerleaders look tired.

The babies are cranky.

The night grows colder. Iced drinks are replaced by steaming cups of coffee and hot chocolate.

9:52 p.m. The score is tied 24-24. Seven minutes left in the game, and fans on both sides of the stadium are on their feet.

Tension mounts.

The cheerleaders are revived. They shout louder; they kick higher.

The babies stop crying.

9:55 p.m. School officials ask the guys in the gold sweatshirts to move, after receiving numerous complaints from fans in that section. To their credit, the exit is orderly.

With 40 seconds left on the clock, the fans are intense, the mood is electric, and the noise is deafening.

10:16 p.m. At the final gun, the 24-24 tie remains. It's over. The crowd doesn't seem to know how to react to a tie.

After that moment of uncertainty, the fans pour out of the stadium. The feeling is not quite somber, but the electricity is gone.

It was a good show, guys.

I think the octogenarians, the preppies, the punks, the baby boomers, the babies and the Mouseketeers would all agree.

KCEB still W.O.O.s with mystery promo

By JOHN VAN GASTON
TM Production Coordinator

With Phase I of KCEB's "W.O.O." promotion well underway, station manager/"W.O.O." creator Alan Derwin is looking for the meaning of "W.O.O."

In Phase I, when the D.J. says the term "W.O.O." over the air and you are the designated caller, you will win an album.

Phase I will take place for three weeks, with a different album to be given away each week.

In week one, "Triumph Live" is the designated album to be given away, with week two being The Untouchables and the Alarm rounding out week three.

KCEB will say "W.O.O." every two hours on the radio, but Derwin states, "We hope to change it to every one hour very soon."

In week three, Derwin hopes to be able to give away Alarm tickets along with the album.

"Right now it's just a possibility," said Derwin.

Phase II will consist of finding the meaning of "W.O.O." Students and faculty are invited to submit their idea as to what they think "W.O.O." means.

The winner will receive a grand prize, which is being kept a secret until the last minute.

Auditions open Oct. 28 for 'Hansel and Gretel'

By ANSELMO PEREZ
TM Copy Editor

Auditions for the Cerritos College Children's Theatre musical production of "Hansel and Gretel" will take place in the Student Center on Oct. 28 through 30 at 6 p.m.

Acting and singing roles are available for eight females and eight males who can play young people twelve to sixteen years old. Also available are dancing and singing roles for children fourth through seventh grade.

This and other productions are presented by the Cerritos College Children's Theatre Series.

The Children's Theatre will kick off its series with the "Magic Brush" on Nov. 17 in the Burnight Center Theatre.

The Series will also present "The Nutcracker" in December, "Hansel and Gretel" in January, and a rock musical spoof of "Aesop's Fables" in March.

Tickets for "The Magic Brush," "Hansel and Gretel," and "Aesop's Fables" are $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for children. Tickets for "The Nutcracker" are $9.50 for both children and adults.

Come fly with me

Want to learn to fly?

The U.S. Army will have representatives on campus to explain their Flight Training Program and its benefits.

Interested students can meet with representatives in BK 111 on Nov. 5 at 10 a.m., 12 p.m. and 2 p.m.

Falcon Soccer team defeats top team; now 3-0-1 in conference

By ROBERT YOUNG
TM Sports Editor

Cerritos soccer squad will try to improve on their 12-1-2 (3-0-1 South Coast Conference) record against host Fullerton this Friday at 3:00 p.m.

In the Saddleback (Irvine Valley) game, the Falcons defeated the then-first place Gauchos 3-0, with Stan DeBeor scoring his first goal of the season, which was the eventual winning goal in the first half.

DeBeor scored what has to be one of the most difficult ways to score a goal, the flying headball.

This is when a player (DeBeor in this case) dives forward and directs the ball with his head, hopefully into the net.

The Falcons scored their second goal of the game in the second half, when Hector Barerra opened the lead early in the second half.

Juan Jauregui capped off the scoring, when he put one by the Gaucho goalie late in the game. Jauregui took advantage of the goalie's mistake, as he practically handed the ball to the Falcon, after scooping up the ball in effort to pass it to one of his Gaucho teammates.

Eddie Garcia was instrumental in the victory, assisting on the last two goals.

The Falcons continued their tight defense, as they shut out Rancho Santiago last Friday, 1-0.

With the score tied at 0-0, it looked as if this one would end up in a tie, but with just minutes left to play, Joel Medina scored on a pass from Claudio Balboa.

"We turned in another strong defensive showing," said Coach Robert Flores. "Center fullback Marcelo Balboa led the defense."

"Goalie Steev Snyder played another strong dependable game, having had nine saves," added Flores.

"I'm very happy with our performance. We have a good bench, which enables me to play 19-20 players a game."

The Falcons were in action yesterday against Mt. SAC (score unavailable at press time.)

STUDENTS CONSIDER LOTTERY LEGAL COUNSEL

ASCC may support Board hopefuls

By VERNON MORROW
TM Staff Writer

The Student Senate might be hiring legal counsel to represent the ASCC on the controversial removal of lottery ticket sales by the Board of Trustees.

The Senate has also made a tentative list of the candidates it intends to support in the November Board of Trustees election. The candidates would represent what the Senate feels is "the proper attitude of harmonious cooperation between the ASCC and the Board."

The Senate has called the Board's action "unlawful, due to the fact that there was no majority vote to remove the lottery sales. Any action that changes the status quo requires a majority vote. The Board had a tie vote, 3-3."

The Senate wants the lottery back into the bookstore before the bookstore loses its Lottery ticket sales license. In that case, the bookstore would go to the bottom of a waiting list that is thousands long if it wanted a license back. Any such delay would cost the ASCC considerable revenue.

Any legal fees incurred will be paid for out of the undistributed reserve account.

The Board will also be receiving a rather heated letter from the Senate in which it expresses distress and anger over the recent lottery trouble. In the letter, the Senate describes the Board's action as "immoral and possibly illegal."

With conflict arising between the Board and ASCC government, the Senate has put out its list of the candidates it supports in the election coming up on Nov. 5.

The list includes Hayward Nishioka for a two year term, and for four year terms, Bob Epple, Mark Durant, and Helmut Schnieder.

The Senate said "that with these people on the Board the ASCC government might now be able to operate with the Board instead of against it."

Both the bills regarding legal counsel and the Board candidates will go before the Senate today.

Another bill proposes to add ramps to the East side of Falcon stadium to provide access for the handicapped. Ramps already exist on the West side, but they were never installed on the East side for visitors or those wishing to sit there.

Last week ASCC President David Mittleman went on record before the Senate in saying "I do not inflict my own religious or moral beliefs in the student government or its policies."

This comes after a comment made to him by anti-Lottery Board member Ada Steenhoek, was printed in Talon Marks last week. Steenhoek questioned Mittleman's position on the lottery sales in regard to the Mormon religious beliefs shared by Mittleman and Steenhoek.

Other action saw Cathy Thrower voted in as Commissioner of Extended Day Operations. Commissioner Thrower's duties include ascertaining the needs of the Extended Day students. She will also solicit various campus service organizations and disseminate information to the Extended Day students.

LDSSA's 'Dragon' takes top Dozier Homecoming float

By LESLIE BERESTEIN
TM Campus Editor

This year's Amy Dozier Sweepstakes award for the best overall Homecoming float went to LDSSA's representation of "Pete's Dragon".

The special award was presented by Gaile Dozier, the father of the late Amy Dozier, at a special Judges Luncheon held in the Student Center last Saturday immediately following the 11 a.m. float judging in the football stadium.

Keeping with this year's Homecoming theme, "Disneyland — 30th Anniversary," the LDSSA float depicted a gigantic version of Disney's cartoon dragon, complete with moveable ears, wings, neck and tail as well as an occasional puff of smoke.

The luncheon was emceed by Dick McGrath with the thirteen trophies presented by a representative from each sponsoring organization. ASCC President Dave Mittleman and Vice-President Don Trapp also assisted with the presentation.

Judges included representatives from Classified Staff, the Board of Trustees, the Alumni Association, the Cerritos College Foundation, the Bench Club Boosters, administrators, students and guests of honor Gaile and Joan Dozier and Suzy Johnson, 1984-85 Homecoming Queen.

Other winners include the following: Queen's Trophy for best utilization of theme, Sigma Phi; Board of Trustees Trophy for most creative and original, Upsilon Omicron and Delta Phi Omega; President's Trophy for the best display of the spirit of Cerritos College, Big C; Coaches Trophy for most unusual, Water Polo; Golden Falcon Trophy for best utilization of color, MeCha; ASCC Trophy for most humorous, Mu Omega Alpha; CSEA Trophy for best utilization of animation, Student Nursing Association; Dr. Burnight Trophy for most inspirational, Lambda Alpha Epsilon; Foundation Trophy for most educational, Veterans Club; Alumni Trophy for best utilization of paper, Black Student Union; and Bench Trophy for best craftsmanship, Phi Kappa Zeta and Lambda Phi Sigma.

Center Opens House

Last week's Open House at the new Cerritos College Transfer Center was termed "very successful" by the Center's co-ordinator, Lisa Sugimoto.

Visitors to the Open House included local public officials, high school counselors, members of the college administration, faculty, staff and students.

On hand to greet the visitors were representatives from USC, UC Irvine, and CSU Fullerton.

Campus Blood Drive Nov. 6

The ASCC is sponsoring a blood drive on campus Nov. 6 from 4:15 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. in BK 111-112.

"Giving blood is one of the most unselfish acts that a person can engage in," says Blood Drive Chairman Keith Estabrook. "It is always in short supply, and donors can save a life by donating 20 minutes of their time and a pint of themselves. It is perfectly safe, as everything that the Red Cross uses to withdraw the vital fluid is brand new and sterile. You can watch the nurse take it out of the package. You won't walk out of there with anything that you didn't walk in with."

Clubs and organizations will receive service points for donating, and all donors will be entered into a drawing for prizes. Day students may sign up to donate in the Student Activities Office, and night students can sign up at the north and south Elbow Rooms on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 23 and 24, or Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 29 and 30 from 6:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.

"Everybody is so concerned with helping the rest of the world, that we sometimes forget to help to people at home," states Estabrook. "Here is a chance for us to have an impact on the local level."

CC Alumni Association slates 1st Social

By JUDY REJON
TM Staff Writer

The Cerritos College Alumni Association is holding their first annual Dinner 'n' Dance on Friday, Nov. 15 from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Golden Sails Hotel Marina Ballroom, 5285 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. in Long Beach.

The evening begins with a social hour at 7 p.m. Dinner is from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. and dancing follows from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Dance music is provided by "Jazz Society Big Band," a group that plays songs ranging from the 40's to the 80's.

The cost for the evening is $14 for alumni, faculty, and staff and $16 for unaffiliated friends and family.

The Alumni Association began three years ago after the Cerritos Foundation saw the need for an alumni organization. Steps were taken by the Foundation to give "seeding" money to get the group going. A banner and newsletter announcing the start of the Association were sent out to over 3,000 former students.

Membership in the College Alumni Association consists of a $10 due and either a certificate of graduation or a set amount completed units for the given major.

The Association is divided into different categories, including the Court Reporting and Nursing Groups, Forensics, Administration of Justice and Dental Assistants are just now getting actively involved. Finally there is a general category, for those who do not fit into the other categories.

Lorraine Mealy is this year's president and has been involved in the Alumni Association off and on since its conception. Mealy was a graduate of the Cerritos Nursing program in 1968.

Ms. Mealy says of the Association that "it's young and growing." She encourages ex-students to become "involved" in the Association.

The Association itself has had a slow start, and so far can boast a membership of approximately 250.

The Dinner 'n' Dance is the first major function the Cerritos College Alumni Association has sponsored in its three year existence. They are expecting approximately 200 people to attend the function. The different groups in the Association have had picnics and other social events under the "umbrella" of the Cerritos Alumni Association.

The Association also sponsors two scholarships a year and awards a trophy at Homecoming to the float with the Best Utilization of Paper. This year's winner is the Black Student Union.

For further information regarding the Dinner 'n' Dance or the Alumni Association here at Cerritos College you can call the Cerritos College Community Services at 860-2451, ext. 536.

There is limited seating and a RSVP of Friday, Nov. 1 is encouraged.

State artifacts exhibit here in November

"Gateways to Eden," an exhibit displaying the early tourist promotion of California, will open on Nov. 4 in the main lobby of the library.

Developed by the California State Archives, the free standing exhibit features travel posters and brochures circulated by South Pacific Railroad, land promoters, and other travel and tourist agencies during the 1920's and 30's. These posters and brochures encouraged people to discover the offerings of California's virtuous landscape.

Appearing for the first time at the L.A. County Fair last September, "Gateways to Eden" will tour throughout the state until the summer of 1986.

Cerritos will be the first community college to host an exhibit provided by the California State Archives Traveling Exhibit Program.

"It is a compliment to the college," states Wendell Hanks, Associate Professor of the Speech-Communication Department, who is responsible for arranging the exhibit to be displayed here at Cerritos.

The eighteen feet, 600 lbs of showcased artifacts will be open for free public viewing from Nov. 4, to Dec. 4.

What you get is what you vote

Some people like to bite off more than they can chew.

That just might be the case in regards to the recent Board of Trustees meeting.

Several members chose to put a halt to the sale of lottery tickets in the bookstore.

Fair enough. The Board was designed to deal with such tough problems as whether or not we should allow the sale of lottery tickets on campus.

But just how far is the Board allowed to go?

When polled by a Talon Marks reporter, those opposed to the lottery also stated they would refuse all funds from lottery proceeds ear-marked for Cerritos College.

Was any thought given to that reply or was it just a quick, unconsidered response?

What would happen to this campus if Governor Deukmejian decided to divert part of the campus budget and replace it with lottery generated revenue?

Would the Board refuse that money and ask the college to operate on a deficit?

And why did the Board approve a budget for Cerritos College that included a line item for lottery generated funds?

Quick decisions are an asset when backed by clear thinking?

In this case, the Board members who spoke so strongly against the lottery and the money it will generate were not backed by the ability of clear thinking.

They spoke out of bias and prejudice and maybe out of anger during what was a long, drawn out meeting punctuated by verbal barbs.

The Board of Trustees needs to take a long, hard look at its decision making policy.

And we need to take a long, hard look at the Board members we entrusted with the running of our campus.

Election day is Nov. 5.....

Co-Rec scheduling defended by writer

Dear Editor:

Give me a break!

David Cobine, most people don't go to church all day long on Sunday. Some people find it better just to go in the morning, and others don't go at all.

While Christianity is the religion derived from Jesus Christ, based on the Bible as sacred scripture, and professed by Eastern, Roman catholic, and protestant bodies; we can also say a Christian is one that promotes the fellowship of man through the word of God.

Co-Recreation nights adds to the fellowship of all students that participate even though it is only one Sunday evening a month.

I fully support the people representing Campus Crusade for Christ at Co-Rec, for they realize your body is a temple.

Christianity is in the soul. It intertwines through mankind's ethics, morals, and beliefs. While you may question the ethics of Campus Crusade, they believe they are morally right.

Prexy Mittleman lauded for stand

Dear Editor:

I would like to commend ASCC President David Mittleman for speaking up for the rights and views of the Cerritos College students.

Hearing of the grand coup of Steenhoek, Hardeman and Tredway in banishing sales and possibly revenue generated from lottery ticket sales, "because it's a tax (TAX?) that preys on the poor," puzzled me.

I've yet to receive a notice from the tax board informing of my failure to buy my necessary allotment of lottery tickets this month.

I do enjoy a game of chance on occasion. Not selling tickets to me in the bookstore won't stop me from purchasing one at the nearest "7-11" or "Winchell's" when I choose.

As for the poor, after spending over $300 on books from the bookstore, a little lottery ticket revenue to reduce the cost of books for next semester would keep me less poor.

With one eye on my pen and the other on Ada Steenhoek's name on my Nov. 5 sample ballot, I feel a sense of gratitude for the democratic system.

Hopefully, Ms. Steenhoek will have more time next year to read the Book of Mormon and less time imposing her personal values on the Cerritos Community College Student Body.

Don't forget to vote.

Poor Student,
Terry M. Knight

Board credibility on Lottery stand hit

Dear Editor:

Three members of the Board of Trustees of Cerritos College seem to have lost their credibility recently based on two principles. One on the failure to separate church and state and the other on the authoritarian versus democratic concepts.

Last election, the voters supported the State Lottery. The responsibility of elected officials is to represent and enforce the mandate of the voters. The community and students of Cerritos College expect no less from our Board of Trustees.

Elected officials should not allow the church, any church, to influence their decisions contradicting what has been mandated by the voters. For example, one many not morally or religiously believe in capital punishment, but if it is in his realm, then it becomes his obligation to enforce the letter of the law. The church never should have entered into the discussion in the recent board meeting regarding the

BOARD CANDIDATES ON CAMPUS TODAY

Candidates in the upcoming Board of Trustees election will be guests at an open house today in the Board Room from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Cerritos College Faculty Association, the open house is designed to give faculty and staff the opportunity to meet and question prospective Board members.

Balloting for the Board of Trustees election is Nov. 5.

issue of the lottery sales at the bookstore. There must be a separation of church and state to maintain the principles of democracy.

Another issue at the board meeting was the discussion as to how students spend their money with regard to the lottery sales available to students. I know the expressions were well intended by board members, but, since this is an individual decision and a personal matter, elected officials should probably not infringe (sic) on individual rights by dictating how one should spend his money. There is little room for authoritarian decisions imposed on students or the community. However, there is room for a democratic approach to developing better students through decision making experiences in the educational setting.

In the past I have avoided playing partisan politics. However, as an educator I feel it is my duty to express a position on such fundamentally democratic principles which are so extremely important to the community and students at Cerritos College.

Hopefully the Board members will allow the lottery to continue at the bookstore and deal with more important issues. They should continue to expend their energies to getting on with the business of education.

Cerritos College Counselor

Letter talks dirty politics, tactics

Dear Editor:

Having read the Talon Marks for the past six semesters, it is my opinion that the present format is more professional in appearance. The reporting continues to reflect the campus spirit and continues to keep us informed about campus politics.

In the October 16, 1985 issue there was an article written by you and Keith Estabrook (Board axes campus lottery sales). The article was very enlightening, especially so close to the November 5th Consolidation elections. This article has helped me to decide not to vote for Steenhoek as the incumbent Governing Board Member. Furthermore, if Hardeman and/or Tredway decide to run for their seats next election I will not vote for either of them.

My lack of support for Steenhoek, Hardeman and Tredway has very little to do with the issue of not selling lottery tickets on our campus. However, it is the method used in order to halt the selling of lottery tickets that I strongly oppose. Tredway may have used a legal method to get his way, but this method appears to "smack" of "dirty politics". Also, by allowing Tredway to use this tactic, Steenhoek and Hardeman imply their support. It appears to me that taking an unfair advantage of the situation such as they did, is unethical. This type of tactic is appalling to me and I can not support it in any way.

Since, I do not wish to have Governing Board members at Cerritos College that would use or support political methods that take unfair advantage I intend to do something. I intend to, air my disapproval both here in the Talon Marks and at the polls on November 5, 1985

Sincerely,
T.L. Robbins
