

Voting kicks off today for Fall '88 Homecoming Court

By KARIBETH MYERS
TM Associate Editor

Polls open at 8:30 a.m. today for voter selection of the 1988 Fall Homecoming Court.

All students with a current ASCC sticker are eligible to cast their ballot for up to seven candidates for the Homecoming Court.

Each of the seven top vote-getters will receive the title of Homecoming Princess.

The Homecoming Court Princesses will then vie for the prestigious title of Homecoming Queen."

The 16 Court hopefuls, with one exception, are sponsored by campus organizations and clubs.

Monday saw the beginning of enthusiastic campaigning with posters decorating campus buildings and flyers being passed out by the candidates and their backers.

Early indicators show that this will be a highly competitive race.

Voting is scheduled to continue today and tomorrow, from 8:30-2:30 p.m., and 6-9 p.m.

Court introductions will take place on Tuesday, Oct. 18, at 11 a.m. in the Student Center.

A class-to-class presentation to the evening students will be held on Oct. 19, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The Mock Rally, where males dress up as their favorite Court member and participate in a "talent competition," is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 20, at 11 a.m. in the Student Center.

All of the available 20 float beds have been secured by campus clubs and organizations which will compete for various awards, including the Amy Dozier Sweepstakes award for the best overall float.

Construction begins Monday, Oct. 24, behind Falcon stadium, and will continue through Friday, Oct. 28.

Entries will be judged on Saturday, Oct. 29, at 10 a.m., culminating with a luncheon for judges and participants in the Student Center. Float awards will also be presented at the luncheon.

Retirement plan's passing may cause faculty turnover

A retirement incentive plan passed by the Cerritos College Board of Trustees last Tuesday could lead to a turnover of up to 50 full-time faculty positions.

In order for the plan to take effect, not less than 35, nor more than 50 faculty members over the age of 55 must announce their resignations between May 24, 1989 and June 30, 1989.

The college could lose up to 20% of its 250 full-time faculty if the maximum number of slots are filled by retirees.

The incentive program calls for a supplemental income for retirees who qualify for the program.

In other business, the Board voted unanimously to request the County Committee on School District Organization to establish seven Trustee areas for the college district.

As a part of its motion, the Board included, "one member residing in each Trustee area be elected by the register voters of that particular Trustee area."

At least one public hearing will be held by the county committee on the matter and if the Board approves the proposals, the issue would be placed on the district's November 1989 election ballot for voter approval.

Board seats will not be affected by the districting until the November 1991 election with the remaining seats coming into assigned areas on the November 1993 election.

Area boundaries would be established by the county committee based on equal voters in each area.

The Board also authorized professional training of campus police so they can resume their car door openings and battery starts for students and staff who are stranded on campus.

Disaster safety plan considered top priority for Faculty Senate

By KARLA HUFENBACH
TM Managing Editor

"Our disaster preparedness plan is a disaster," said Connie Mantz, Faculty Senate president at yesterday's meeting.

The statement expressed her frustration with the lack of preparations and specific plans available to the faculty and staff.

With strong interest sparked by the one year anniversary of the Whittier earthquake, the implementation of a disaster plan was favored by the Senate. "We would like to get started on this," said Mantz.

"I will invite the chairman of the safety committee to present the disaster preparedness plan at our two-hour meeting next week."

Senate committees have been gathering input on a variety of issues pertinent to faculty and staff.

The proposal concerning credit given for attending professional conferences was accepted in theory, but was sent back to the academic affairs committee for more specifics regarding implementation.

Other committee concerns include a grievance policy for part-time faculty, guidelines for overload and summer school classes, and the possibility of a "formalization" of faculty providing academic advisement during registration.

The faculty grievance policy does not specifically include part-time faculty.

Faculty Senators have been asked to gather input and discuss the inclusion of adjunct faculty into the existing grievance policy at their division meetings. Reports are expected at next week's meeting.

"Students informally receive academic advice from faculty in their particular fields already. We would like a clear delineation between the advice given by the counseling staff and the faculty," said Richard McGrath, Senate vice-president.

Red wraps campus for drug-free week

By KARIBETH MYERS

Red ribbons, signifying an anti-drug attitude, will be presented to club representatives tomorrow, Oct. 13, at the Inter Club Council meeting, in an effort to encourage the participation of campus organizations in Drug Free Red Ribbon Week.

Campus Red Ribbon activities are expected to be high profile from Oct. 24-28, with the week officially lasting from Oct. 23-30.

Red Ribbon Week got its start in 1985 as a way to increase drug awareness among young people, from kindergarteners through college seniors.

This is the first year Cerritos College will take an active part.

A resolution expected to be passed on

Oct. 18 will make it an annual event on the campus calendar.

Ribbons will be distributed through clubs, organizations, and various other volunteer methods.

The drug-free theme is expected to be highly visible throughout the fall Homecoming activities, with posters and red ribbons being the greatest means of getting the message out.

● REC NIGHT

Sunday, Oct. 16 at 6 p.m., the second ASCC-sponsored Recreation night of the Fall 1988 semester will be held in the gym.

● HONIG TO SPEAK/3

Superintendent of Public Instruction Bill Honig will discuss the future of education tomorrow in the Board room at 2 p.m.

● VP BUSH TO RALLY

Vice President and Presidential hopeful, George Bush will speak at Heritage Park in Cerritos this Friday at 11:30 a.m.

Editorials

Can we afford cops at security guard prices?

Overtrained and underpaid. An upheaval is occurring in the trailer the Campus Police call home.

In outside police agencies such as Norwalk and Downey, the whole department is being upgraded to POST (Peace Officer's Standards in Training) specifications, with which all city and state department must comply.

For the student, this can only be good news. A campus police officer who is a POST graduate is much more capable and qualified to assist the student body.

Now the bad news. Officers receiving the advanced law enforcement training will get only that.

No accompanying pay increase is in the immediate future. The security guard pay given to Campus Police is nowhere near industry standards for officers at this level of qualification.

This, combined with the fact that there is a statewide need for qualified officers, leads to the obvious conclusion there are greener pastures available for campus officers.

El Camino Community College in Torrance is a prime example of the result of this. Their POST certified police department serves as a jumping off place to the city and state level.

According to El Camino's Sergeant Kirk Johnston, "there is an extremely high attrition rate among officers here."

Our newly trained officers must be willing to wait for a slow-moving reclassification committee to decide on a new pay scale for them. While this should have started long before POST was instituted, rates offered are not expected to be competitive.

Although it is an altruistic profession, many campus officers support families. They cannot afford to turn down the higher pay and greater chance for advancement offered by outside agencies.

Since 60 percent of an officer's salary is paid by the college during POST training, we stand to lose money and personnel if a new policy is not drafted to bring pay up to industry standards.

The time has come to make up our minds on whether we need a "real" police force.

Should this be the case, changes must be instituted within the organization structure. Instead of reporting to a dean, the campus police chief should be able to jump up a few links in the chain of command and talk directly to the president.

The question of guns must be raised. A Los Angeles County sheriff's deputy would never be expected to uphold the law without one.

The bottom line is money. Security guard pay for a peace officer's job.

If, indeed, a security force is all that is necessary on campus, then by continuing on our present course, that is exactly what we will have.

Education is a prize that money can't buy

Where money lies, honor dies.

The future cash return a college degree offers can lead some people down the path of unethical behavior.

One of these pitfalls is the commercially written research paper.

Students at Cerritos have the option of buying them by the page.

In our disposable society of fast food, casual sex, and planned obsolescence, a quick education seems to fit the mold perfectly.

In truth, there is little difference between the student who copies from his neighbor's test and one who takes another easy way out and buys research papers.

Education is a tenuous thing at best without its honor system being compromised by homework for dollars. The replacement of good old-fashioned elbow grease by a toll road to sheepskin will only hurt all of us in the long run.

Sure, tuition costs, but with it comes the promise of self-betterment.

A store-bought paper may satisfy class requirements, but it does not teach the subject matter or expand writing skills.

It is doubtful the "professional" researchers who write such papers could do so if they had used plagiarized material throughout school.

Isn't the next step the direct purchase of grades?

If dishonest practices continue, will the wealthy have a lock on education by buying diplomas directly?

The most effective way to rid the campus of this academic scourge is simply to boycott the product. If these shady firms have no customers, they will be forced to seek out a more legitimate business.

After all, if one can afford to buy his way through college, then he probably doesn't need the prestige and added earning power a degree can bring.

Oval or cartoon-shaped one a day's a girl's best friend

Aaaaaaaachooooo! (Excuse me.)

No less than two weeks ago, I was as fit as the perennial fiddle, with a healthy pink glow in my cheeks and a click in my walk.

While all those around me succumbed to the bacilli of the latest flu virus, I laughed heartily and swore to withstand even the most hostile attack those bacteria could dream up.

What did I have to worry about? After all, sickness is only a state of mind, isn't it?

"A thousand milligrams of vitamin C an hour will keep the old flu bug from your door. It's working for me," I was optimistically told.

All right, I thought, what can it hurt? Positive thinking and vitamin C. The worst that can happen is I'll never get scurvy.

"Take two aspirin every six hours and drink lots of hot tea and juices. My doctor said so," I was told by another flu avoider.

Well, hey, doctor knows best.

After following this well-meant advice, I began to feel slightly sloshy, a walking drug factory. My sleep became sporadic and disturbed. My subconscious knew I was missing my hourly dose of vitamin C, and it couldn't stand the anxiety.

couldn't stand the anxiety.

I became a walking zombie.

There was only one thing to do. Quit.

Cold turkey.

No more vitamin C, no more aspirin, no more sure-fire flu deterrents.

The thought sent me reeling to the refrigerator for a bracer of orange juice. No! I couldn't. Not even orange juice.

With a shaky hand, I dialed the number I saw flashing before me on the television screen.

The first step to recovery, the spokesman said, is admitting your addiction.

Now, after three treatments, I can confidently state I am a recovering chemical substance abuser.

And with a little ahahh ahh... Aaaaaachooooo!

(Excuse me)...a little luck, I will overcome this flu with some positive thinking and some good, old-fashioned chicken noodle soup.

You see, a friend told me she ate a large bowl of chicken noodle soup every two hours, and she got over the flu in only three short days!

Lady spikers hit big with third place tourney finish

By JEFF OCHOA
TM Staff Writer

The Cerritos College women's volleyball team had another impressive outing over the weekend while placing third in the College of the Sequoias Tournament that fielded 30 teams from California.

Cerritos opens conference play next Wednesday at Long Beach City College.

The third place finish was the highest in recent history for a Cerritos College volleyball team.

With defeats over Cabrillo (15-3, 15-2), Chabot (15-5, 15-8), Allan Hancock (15-6, 15-6), and a split with San Joaquin Delta (15-17, 15-7), the lady Falcons breezed through pool play with a 7-1 record.

Throughout pool play, Yolanda Jefferson was effective with 71 assists, while top hitters were Evelyn Sefuvia (24 kills) and Adrian Webb (20).

Advancing to playoff action, the Falcons took on Ohlone and won in straight sets 15-5, 15-7, to move on to the quarter finals where they met De Anza.

Avenging a previous loss in the Rancho Santiago Tournament, Cerritos dominated De Anza in straight sets 15-5, 15-6.

Despite defensive efforts of Melissa Lynch, Carla Bass, and Rosa Carillo, in semi-final action Cerritos lost a tough match to eventual Tournament champs Golden West 7-15, 15-7, 10-15.

Playing its fourth match in a span of five hours Cerritos overcame fatigue and defeated Diablo Valley 15-7, 8-15, 15-12 in a close match where Jefferson and Webb were once again a spark connecting for 11 kills between the two.

Sefuvia was selected to the all-tournament team.

Falcon kickers look for home kill against Santa Monica on Friday

By KENNY O'LEARY
TM Assistant Lab Tech

The men's soccer team is preparing for its next match at home against newcomer Santa Monica on Friday. Match time is 3 p.m. The team's current SCC record is 2-1.

Last Friday, the Falcons suffered a tough loss. After playing for more than an hour, the Falcons made a crucial mistake and Oxnard quickly took advantage.

The game was scoreless until Oxnard scored the only goal, making the final outcome 1-0.

Coach Bob Flores described the game as "frustrating!" "We had no pressure on the Oxnard defense, and we didn't take enough shots on the Oxnard goalie during the game. We came up short on scoring drives."

Flores described the game as a one mistake confrontation. Unfortunately, it was our team that made the mistake.

"This game was a tough one to lose," he said. "I was planning on winning this one. We need to go undefeated in the rest of the first round competition."

On Tuesday, Oct. 4, the Falcons beat Long Beach City 4-1.

Sophomore Mario Orozco scored the first two goals for the Falcons.

The third Falcon score was a generous gift from Long Beach City College. Long Beach City's defense accidentally put the ball past its own goalie.

Sophomore Galdino Rodriguez scored the fourth Falcon goal.

"The team played very well, we put pressure on their defense. We had a good game that day," Flores said.

He was followed by Andy Nogal (4th), who clocked-in at 20:57.

Nacho Lopez finished in 21:16, placing 6th.

Eddie Perez crossed the finish line in 21:26, getting 8th place.
