Attorney on hot seat over faculty chair in union vote issue

Board remains neutral on election; Gaskin memo encourages maximum participation

By Jeff Atalla
TM News Editor

Following a recent unauthorized decision by the Board of Trustees attorney, John Wagner, involving faculty elections, the Board will consider terminating their contract with his firm, Wagner, Sisneros, & Wagner at tonight's Board meeting.

The proposal was made to the Board by the Administration following the March 7 Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) conference.

During the conference, which was called to discuss an election for a collective bargaining agent for the college faculty, it was argued by Wagner that Department Chairs are management, and therefore, could not vote.

The faculty was outraged and was forced into an uncompromising situation, left to choose between less and nothing.

It has been said that Wagner acted on his own, contrary to specific directions of management and the Board of Trustees.

Cerritos College President Fred Gaskin sent out a memo to all full-time faculty stating Wagner had not followed Board policy and that department chairs may vote in the April 14 election.

Gaskin continued by stating, "We (the Board) will remain neutral in this election and encourage maximum voter participation by faculty. Consequently, we will petition PERB to have the department chairs included in the proposed unit and allow them the privilege of voting in the election."

The District has retained Spencer Covert of the law firm of Parker, Covert, & Chidester to represent the District with PERB from this point forward.

At the same time, the Community College Association (CCA) Consultant, Ray Barney, held a meeting to discuss possible unionization, as well as answer questions concerned with collective bargaining.

The issue of the budget and its "miraculous" ups and downs seemed to overwhelm the meeting.

On July 31, 1993, the budget form CF311, which was sent to Sacramento, was reported to have

Matriculation dedicated to student success, goals

By Jeff Atalla
TM News Editor

The main concern of the Matriculation program at Cerritos College is the success of the student.

As was stated in a previous issue of Talon Marks, "it is a process designed to help students in planning, choosing, and attaining educational goals through the college's programs, policies, and requirements."

To clarify, matriculation is not directly related to the transfer rate of the college.

It is a process that brings a college and a student into an agreement for the purpose of realizing the student's educational goal through the college's many services.

It has been concluded through research that students who go through these steps are more successful than those who don't.

However, their success through matriculation is not dependent on whether or not they transfer.

According to Joyce Ricci, Matriculation Coordinator/Counselor, "in 1992-1993, 81% (4,427 of 5,489) of new students participated in orientation. Nearly 12,000 students were served through assessments and saw a counselor."

A site review team is scheduled to evaluate the College's matriculation program on March 22 through March 25.

They plan to interview the College's leaders, as well as many of its students.

If interested, contact Ricci at Ext. 2136, or Office B in the Counseling Center.

Board tries communication to ease tension with faculty; more campus visits planned

By Marla Amendola
TM Associate Editor

Board of Trustees President Ada Steenhoek made it clear that she thought better communication could ameliorate many of the tensions which have existed between the Board and the Faculty Senate.

The Faculty Senate hosted a visit with the Board of Trustees yesterday.

The members of the Board had an opportunity to introduce themselves, make a statement of their perspective on Cerritos and its problems and answer questions from those in attendance.

Steenhoek said that the Board would make itself available at any time and encouraged direct communication whenever possible.

Senate members claimed they felt they were "out of the loop" on some matters. Board members said they felt the same sense of exclusion.

Senators charged that studies were done only to be disregarded, memos were sent only to be ignored and committees were formed only to dissolve in disinterest or distress.

Steenhoek said open communication was the answer to all these problems.

To that end, Dr. Steenhoek said that each Wednesday, one or more Board Members would lunch at the Cafeteria and be available for the faculty, students, staff and constituents to talk with.

Board Member Ted Edmiston cautioned patience, since it takes time to be effective. He also asked for input from faculty. "Decisions need to be made and you must understand that decisions will be made even in the absence of input."

Edmiston said he wanted the Board to plan ahead and not be limited to damage control.

Senator Tom Whitlock recited some of the Faculty Senate history. He said in recent years it seemed as though the Board didn't listen to the Faculty Senate, and, indeed, operated as if the Faculty Senate didn't even exist.

Whitlock said that issues affecting

ADULT COMEDY IN REVIEW

'Boy's Life' bares generation-X era

By Christy Botero
TM Staff Writer

Talk about "getting real" for real...

This play doesn't leave much to the imagination.

Howard Korder's "A Boy's Life" is a refreshingly adult comedy about relationships between men and women of the so-called "generation X" — people in their twenties, too late to be yuppies — a generation inheriting a world in which they can expect a less comfortable life than their parents.

It has been called a "post-modern comedy of manners" for the way it uses an easy, jokey surface to mask a serious exploration of young males sexual insecurity and tortuous relations with women.

Korder takes us into the world of under 30 hetero men and thinking that shapes their sexual behavior.

You observe three friends who having gone to college together, are now struggling to find their way in the world of adult women. Along the way, we witness the evolution of their own dysfunctional friendship.

The players are Forrest Iwaszewski, Greg Ivie, David Carreiro, Jeri Anaya, Cristina Nava, Laurie Rackley, Sandra Smith, Alicia Romero, and Phil Silverman.

Jack, played by Iwaszewski, is the main character in the play. He along with his other two friends, Don and Phil, are young men who

EDITORIAL Integrity is doing 'right'

Where can we find integrity? Is it lost? Is it dead? Like God, integrity is not dead, it is merely unemployed. Integrity doesn't just spring up in people. It must be taught. For many years school children heard Bible readings in school. About twenty or thirty years ago we decided that this violated the concept of separation of church and state and abolished the practice.

This was probably the right decision especially in a country where the population was becoming more and more diverse. The schools, however, perverted this decision. They decided that any instruction about morality was instruction in religion and so they stopped teaching students anything at all about behavioral restraint, morality, or social responsibility.

It has become easier to blame parents or societal ills than to blame individuals.

We have become afraid to categorically state that we don't approve of something. The fear of appearing "out of it" makes us remain silent when confronted by the cheating, lying, and stealing committed by our peers.

When we receive our phone bills at a friend's house so we can get our children into an out-of-district school, when we use our former neighbor's or our parents' address to qualify as a "resident" for whatever reason, when we plagiarize another person's work and hand it in as our own, when we allow the celebration of violence by our entertainment media, and even when we don't hand in homework or keep up with classes, we are abandoning our ethics, we compromise integrity.

Some people say that values such as these are no longer consensual because of our diversity.

There is still enough of a universal outcry over bad things, bad people, and bad taste, that that argument doesn't hold water. Most religions share basic values and nearly all of them have a version of the Golden Rule admonishing the faithful to treat others as they would have others treat them.

Religion only structures these sentiments. Men believe in an orderly society. They created religion to ritualize these values, but they will seek to maintain these values without religion if they must.

We must get back to teaching the values and we must stop confusing them with religion.

They may be part of religion but they are an essential part of what man needs for survival on a civilized plane.

...Again, just a reminder that the law says that the ASCC President and Vice President must live within the college district. Same for members of the Board of Trustees.

...Of which the student President is a member.

...Faculty checking out union

$3.7 million in reserve. Yet, the internal budget reported only $2.5 million in reserve. One day later, August 1, the budget was "adjusted" to $1.2 million.

Then faculty was forced to take a one per cent salary cut because they were told there was only $400,000 in reserve.

"Magic numbers—take your pick," stated Business Education Professor Bernard Negrete.

Cerritos College was the only school in the state to take a pay cut last year, for which the need still remains questionable.

The CCA Consultant stated that, "We (the CCA) don't believe any figure until it is verified, we have an excellent track record, with expertise and experience...we're not just labor negotiators, we're enforcers."

While certain facts suggest that colleges with unions do better than those without—support for unionization remains on the ropes.

The Faculty Salary Committee elected representatives will be preresented to the Board at tonight's Board meeting.

The Faculty Salary Budget Committee has scheduled a meeting on March 17 with President Gaskin at 11 a.m. in SS 138.

Another meeting is set for March 22 at 11 a.m. in SS 138 in hopes of reaching an agreement and terminating negotiations by May 10.

Whitlock calls for recognition of Faculty Senate role

faculty used to go through the Faculty Senate before going to the Board. He said the formation of the College Council has emasculated the Faculty Senate even further.

Others felt that shared governance worked better before it was enacted as law by HB 1725.

Whitlock said he hoped the faculty Senate would process complete minutes in time for the Board meetings so the Board would know about and act on issues with the best interests of the faculty in mind.

Last year's faculty salary cut, decreasing transferability of classes, equipment obsolescence, grant-seeking, and alternative economic ventures for the college were also discussed.

Dr. Steenhoek said she hopes to get a definitive Board Policy Book produced so everyone can work from the same sheet of music.

She said, "I need a Bible to be a Christian and I need a Policy Book to be a Board Member."

New Board Member Cheryl Epple told a story illustrating how critical clear lines of communication are as issues move from square one to the highest level.

The lines of communication seem to be as amicable as they have been in recent memory. It's a start.

Welcome to square one.

CARRIE ON/Carrie Redfox ...Winter's gone and Spring is here and how

Ahh, the sweet smell of coconut suntan oil. The sand, the waves, warm sunny mornings... what else can you ask for in a season?

Away with the winter blues—spring is here.

This weekend's record breaking heat wave was just the push to get us into the summer groove.

Isn't it amazing how last year's bathing suit has shrunk over the winter?

Half the women in Southern California have been forced to start their "new" diet.

As for the men spring means 5 a.m. workouts, and along with pounding beer, they're pounding protein shakes.

The warm sunny days also mean that Spring Break is around the corner and the end of the semester is near.

Remember to keep in mind that you are supposed to do something more than party over the break.

It's time to get pumped, get motivated, and get back on track.

Let the spirit move you!

Spring Break is designed to get the blood flowing through your veins again.

Think how great it will be to return to school fully rejuvenated and determined to ace the finals.

Finals for Cerritos College begin May 12, a mere five weeks after Spring Break.

I hear there is still snow in Pennsylvania....

ANOTHER OFFICIAL RESIGNS — Webster Hubbel, third ranking Justice Department official and personal friend of the Clintons, resigned from his position Monday.

DEBORAH ROGERS Are fee(s) increases only way to (not) go...

Is the answer more fee increases? Or might there be other alternatives?

With the recession, the decline of a national Cold War economy, future of high technology industries, public complaints about cost and effectiveness of government, and state officials struggling to balance their books—we are in a financial crisis.

State funding has been so severely cut that officials are claiming that additional fee increases are necessary.

But, have they honestly taken the time and effort to investigate all other alternatives?

In 1960 California became a state with a legacy—The Master Plan for Higher Education—in a commitment to providing all qualified Californians, whatever their economic status, with the benefits of a college education.

This legacy seems to be in danger of becoming a thing of the past.

With the hikes in fees over the last three years the opportunity for many potential students has been severely reduced.

On the 20 California State University campuses fees have increased 85 percent since 1990.

The nine campuses of the University of California have seen fees rise annually by as much as 40 percent.

In 1993 alone community colleges increased fees by 30 percent.

At this rate fewer and fewer prospective students will be able to afford to be educated, limiting their possibilities for a "richer" and more successful future.

Californians, when asked to name their concerns about elementary and secondary education, listed quality as first, but when asked to comment on higher education their concerns were cost and access.

We Californians know that access to higher education is threatened. The public agreed (84 percent) with the proposition that "we should not allow the price of a college education to keep students who are qualified and motivated to go to college from doing so."

Two-thirds of California residents (64 percent) accurately perceive that the price of higher education is going up faster than the cost of other things in the state.

A college degree is as important to one's job prospects today as a high school diploma was a generation ago.

It is up to us to realize our priorities. Education is a very important and necessary issue for our future.

We must work on finding alternatives other than fee increases, so the educational future of all our citizens and our state can continue as successfully as it has in the past.

MISC. MARLA/Marla Amendola The Simon Wiesenthal Center's Museum of Tolerance personalizes the Holocaust in a very dramatic way...

For those true tourists among you who like museums, there is a relatively new offering in town.

The Simon Wiesenthal Center's Museum of Tolerance focuses on two themes: the dynamics of racism and prejudice in America, and the history of the Holocaust.

The Tolerancecenter features interactive, high-tech, experiential exhibits profiling issues of intolerance in our daily life.

Multi-media displays deal with such things as the Los Angeles riots, the struggle for civil rights in America, and give information on more than 250 hate groups in America.

In the Holocaust section of the museum, visitors become witnesses to the events of World War II.

Each person receives a passport card with the photo of a victim of the Holocaust.

In this section various scenes of the period are reproduced.

There is an outdoor cafe where you hear a Christian man and his Jewish fiancée discuss the increasing threat of the Nazis.

The Wannsee Conference where "the final solution of the Jewish question" was decided by Nazi leaders is reenacted via an aerial view of the room with dialogue done as a voice over.

In the Hall of Testimony, visitors can hear the stories of the survivors of the Holocaust.

At the end of this section visitors return their passport card to a machine which issues a printout telling if the victim survived or not.

This personalizes the museum experience in a very dramatic way.

The Center has an unequalled amount of photographic and other historical data and testimony.

To a generation for whom the Holocaust is only the plot in the movie Schindler's List, the Museum of Tolerance is a primary educational experience.

The Museum is located at 9786 West Pico Blvd.

It's March Madness.
No, it's not the NCAA 64 team tournament. It's the first annual daytime Co-Rec March Madness basketball tournament here at Cerritos College, March 15-24.

Yesterday the events tipped off with the free throw contest, and will be followed by a three-point shooting contest tomorrow, and a Hot Shot shooting contest the following week.
All events are in the gymnasium at 11 a.m..
The free throw contest consisted of 20 contestants going head to head, each shooting one round of ten free throws. There were a total of 44 games.

The final two contestants were Eric Villalobos and Mike Myers. Villalobos and Myers each dominated the competition most of the afternoon.
In the final Villalobos hit all 10 free throws and Myers missed his very first shot, thus ending his chances early.

Cuesta for berth

Coach Pat Tyne has to be pleased as the team's development has been astounding.
The team will have a strong test on March 18-19 at Cuesta.

Two straight wins for Lady Falcons

Where would the Women's Softball team be without Carolyn Cisneros?
This 28 year-old-pitcher slash outfielder not only drove in three runs that helped Cerritos defeat Pasadena City but she also picked up the win.
Cisneros has five out of the six victories for the Falcons on the year.
The Falcons defeated Pasadena City 7-6 on Monday as Cisneros went the distance to pick up win number five.
On Friday, Cerritos traveled to East Los Angeles where they emerged victorious 4-3 behind Catcher Lisa Chacon's home run blast.
Cerritos hosts El Camino today at 3 p.m.
With the wins, the Falcons improve to 2-2 in conference and 6-11 overall.

the first inning.
Cisneros, starting for one of the few times during the season, settled down and pitched effectively the rest of the way.
The Falcons went ahead for good during their half of the fifth inning. Ronica Williams singled and Stephanie Ourique reached on an error. After a walk to load the bases, Cisneros came up and rid the bases of Falcons as she tripled in all three runs to put Cerritos up for good.
Pasadena City managed to get within one run but could never overcome the deficit and the Falcons came through with the win.

Track, field take places

Falcons 5-1 in conference; Barajas hits top at .400

By William Torres
TM Staff Writer

Baseball is still on fire for a 14-4 mark with the Falcons at 5-1 in conference play.
On March 10 they faced Harbor and were doused when the Seahawks' starting pitcher threw a one-hitter for a score of 1-0.
Last Tuesday they hosted Pasadena 8-2 as pitcher Ryan Dewitt went eight innings.
Leading the way this season in batting averages is DH Rodrigo Barajas at .400. Barajas has 24 hits in 60 at bats. Outfielder Santos Cortez is right behind at .382. Catcher Dusty Wathan is third at .362.

The baseball team has been moving along at a clip of .320.
Still leading the team in pitching is Jim Reinecker at a 4-1 record with a strong ERA of 1.20. Hector Villegas has two wins and one loss. His earned run average is 3.15.
Leading the way in the save department is Reinecker with three of the five overall.

The Falcons have five more games left in the first half of conference play. On March 19 they travel to Mt. SAC., and on March 22 they will host Mt. SAC.
Their last two games of the first half will be against Long Beach City and Pasadena.
The team will also play in the Hancock Tournament. It is scheduled to take place during Spring break in Santa Maria.
Tomorrow at 2 p.m. they will travel to El Camino

Ben Villa:
It's peanuts, popcorn, crackerjacks, and the madness rolls on...

I love this time of year.
Baseball is just around the corner, March Madness is only a day away, and the NBA and NHL are gearing up for the play-offs.
North Carolina may be the favorite to win the big dance, but look for Purdue and Glenn Robinson to make a serious run at the title.
Robinson reminds me of Danny Manning when the former Kansas star led the Jayhawks to the title in 1988.
Manning carried the team, and I expect Robinson to do the same.
It would be nice to see Florida make the sweet 16.
What happened to UCLA?
Best early game of the tournament will be when Cal takes on Syracuse in the second round.
Wake Forest could surprise some people.
Whoever comes out of the East Regional will deserve it.
Do you think that Mike Piazza will suffer from the sophomore jinx? Nope. Never heard of it as he's already cranked out four dingers in exhibition play.
Raul Mondosi of the Dodgers will be their opening day rightfielder and will win the National League Rookie of Year Award.

The Giants, behind Barry Bonds will still win the National League West. Too much pitching.
The Angels have all the bats needed to win the West, but their pitching is atrocious.
The Seattle Mariners will win their first division title.
Say a prayer for Phillies First-baseman John Kruk who is suffering from cancer.
The Blue Jays will not threepeat.
How many games will the Mets win this year?
The NBA title is up for grabs and is wide open for the first time in seven years.
I hope Atlanta makes the finals.
Two teams I wouldn't want to play in the first round are the Indiana Pacers and the Charlotte Hornets.
The center position will walk away with the MVP. Either Robinson, Olajuwon or O'Neal will take the prize.
Charles Barkley and the Phoenix Suns will come up short again this year.

The Kings probably need to clean house next year.
Wouldn't it be something if the Might Ducks make the play-offs? It could happen.
Montreal has to be favored to win Lord Stanley's Cup for a second straight year. How can you argue with any team that has Patrick Roy behind the net?
Did you happen to notice that Long Beach City won the Junior College State Championship in basketball? Did you know that Cerritos blew them out at Long Beach during the year?
Congratulations to Ryan Brass and Javan Rouzan for making First Team All-South Coast Conference.
Kate Larrabee made the All State team in Women's Basketball. Probably the best player to ever come out of Cerritos College. I hope she does well at Michigan State.
Cerritos Women Softball Third-baseman Kandice Ernster is one courageous player. The Falcons are a different team when she's in the line up.
Did you know Cerritos has a Women's Golf team?
Only four more months til' football season.
